Course Description

This course is an introduction to the American political system. We will examine the structural foundations, key institutions, players, and themes that will help us understand and analyze how government works. We will also discuss public opinion, interest groups, social movements, and political parties as elements of our democracy. Finally, we will focus on the interaction between government and citizens as the framework for political processes. The goal of this course is to enable students to gain deeper understanding, stimulate critical thinking, and form their own informed opinions about the forces that shape American politics.

- Three exams, two midterms and one final, consist of multiple choice and short answer questions. Don't be absent on exam days! Make-up tests are worth less points, and they are only made available to students who provide legitimate reasons for their absence and appropriate documentation.
- There will be three or four quizzes on key terms of a specific chapter.
- Regular homework assignments are submitted on Blackboard.
- Come to class on time and attend all classes. If you cannot attend class, you should notify me by Email. It is your responsibility to make up missed work.
- All assignments, quiz and exam dates will be posted on Blackboard. Please check Blackboard regularly for updates.

Learning Goals*

1. To advance students' understanding of the essential elements of the US political system, including its Constitutional system, political processes, governmental institutions, and political culture(s).
2. To advance students' understanding of how political power operates in the US. Students will be able to explain political outcomes from a variety of different perspectives on US politics and evaluate critically the political institutions and processes of democracy in the US.
3. To promote students' ability to think critically about different perspectives and ideologies on US politics among the public, political parties, and scholars.
4. To promote students' ability to engage in political debates effectively orally and in writing. Students will learn how to write and speak about important issues in US politics coherently & knowledgeably.

Assessment *

1. Assessment will be done with homework assignments, quizzes, and exams that contain multiple-choice and true-false questions, as well as short answer type questions.
2. Homework assignments which will require students to reflect and critically think about political institutions and processes. Following current events and searching for appropriate materials relating to the issues at hand will help students connect abstract knowledge with everyday life.
3. Participation in class discussions and writing short essays on corresponding issues such as the topics discussed in class.
4. Assessment will be done with exams, homework assignments, and class discussions (participation).

BMCC Policy on Plagiarism and Academic Integrity Statement:

Plagiarism is the presentation of someone else's ideas, words or artistic, scientific, or technical work as one's own creation. Using the idea or work of another is permissible only when the original author is identified. Paraphrasing and summarizing, as well as direct quotations, require citations to the original source. Plagiarism may be intentional or unintentional. Lack of dishonest intent does not necessarily absolve a student of responsibility for plagiarism. Students who are unsure how and when to provide documentation are advised to consult with their instructors. The library has guides designed to help students to appropriately identify a cited work.

Plagiarism carries a range of penalties. You may receive a failing grade for the course or be referred to the dean's office.
