Biographical Note

Feliks Gross was born in 1906 in Karakow, Poland. He taught at Brooklyn College for the Sociology Department from 1946-1977 and also lectured at the CUNY Graduate Center on political sociology. He was a member of the Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences of America. Over his long career, Feliks Gross also held positions at the League of Nations, London School of Economics, lectured at NYU and the College of Europe. He authored more than 20 books and countless articles which have been published in many languages.

Scope and Content

In this collection, there are mostly administrative files. They include but are not limited to, appointment letters and information, meeting minutes, and correspondence from 1939-1975. Some of Feliks Gross' personal publications that he wrote, edited or directed (such as American Slavs, Power and Culture, La Ricerca Di Valori Universali, The Calcutta Review, and The Social Myth of Napoleon Bonaparte) can also be found. In addition, Newspaper articles, information and requests for grant money, letters requesting and approving Feliks Gross' leave of absence over the years, and information on his promotion and retirement make up the remainder of this collection.
