Historical Note

Search for Education Elevation and Knowledge (SEEK) began in the City University of New York in 1965, and it was signed into law in 1966, as higher education opportunity program at CUNY's senior colleges. This law was the result of efforts from social activists and politicians in an attempt "to provide access to CUNY for poor students, then largely African-American and Puerto Rican, who graduated from high schools that had not prepared them for the rigors of college."<sup>1</sup> Among these politicians was the honorable Percy Ellis Sutton, a member of the New York State Assembly. In his words, SEEK was created to help "the injured of society" (see footnote 1). To honor his memory, in 2011, the program envisioned by him was officially renamed The Percy Ellis Sutton SEEK Program.

College Discovery began in 1964, as an experiment, but its success enabled it to be signed into law in 1966. This Higher Education Opportunity Program is part of the two-year CUNY Colleges. "The SEEK/College Discovery mission is to increase the level of education, social mobility, and vocational capability in New York City and New York State by providing access to higher education to students who are: educationally disadvantaged (as defined by CUNY), and economically disadvantaged (as defined by NYS). Also, to provide comprehensive services in academic support, counseling, and financial aid."<sup>2</sup>

Scope and Content Note

The collection of the Percy Ellis Sutton SEEK and College Discovery Programs contains materials of various categories, mostly related to the SEEK Department at Brooklyn College. The administration, plans, and reports papers constitute the majority of the collection. Along with these files, this collection provides details about the SEEK and CD structure, as well as summer programs, basic skills, remedial programs, and others.

As these special programs are geared towards improving education accessibility, much information can also be found about students, such as alumni biographies, reports on expectations, outcomes, motivation, retention, and graduation. Furthermore, newspaper clippings, SEEK and CD newsletters, a draft of a commemorative journal, and photographs are materials that help tell the history and mission of these two special programs of the City University of New York.

The series of this collection are organized alphabetically, aside from the series ephemera, which is the last series. When series are comprised of subseries, these are also arranged alphabetically. The arrangement within each subseries varies, and is specified in the Series Descriptions section.

Series 11, Subseries A: Alumni BiographiesDates: Inclusive: 1995*Extent: 14 folders*Arrangement alphabetical

In 1995, the governor of New York announced a budget cut that would directly affect SEEK and College Discovery Programs. Fearing the fate of these programs that had helped over 20,000 students since their inception, Professor Martha Bell reached out to SEEK/CD alumni from all CUNY schools to ask for their help. In her letter (folder 1), she mentions that public officials have claimed that programs such as SEEK and College Discovery have “unproven program effectiveness...” She then asks students to write brief biographies and how they were able to acquire education and launch their careers through SEEK and CD. This subseries is organized alphabetically by school, and contains the biographies written by SEEK/CD alumni.
