This year is a beginning for Bronx Community College. It is a beginning for the senior class. But beginnings are only the first moment in time—and over as soon as they’ve begun. So we are dedicating this book to the future—the future of BCC and every graduating senior. May its treasures be infinite.
Bronx Community College Buys
New York University’s Campus

Bronx Community College will move virtually all its operations to the site of the present NYU uptown campus at University Ave. and E 181 St. beginning with the September, 1973 semester, BCC President, Dr. James A. Colston has announced.

The president's statement followed the sale of the University Heights campus to The City University of New York on Tuesday, March 20, for $62 million. In addition, a tentatively estimated $38 million will be provided to modernize the campus.

The campus, encompassing more than 50 acres on a bluff overlooking the Harlem River, will become the permanent home for BCC, replacing the air-rights campus that had been planned on the subway storage yards at Bedford Park Boulevard and Paul Ave.

BCC will acquire all the property, buildings and furnishings, excepting the Harlem River Aerospace Center, three off-campus residential apartment houses and a Univac 1108 computer. There are more than 1.3 million square feet of building space at the new campus.

Included in the sale are about 56 buildings, including the largest two-year nursing program in the country, which will remain in the Bronx Municipal Hospital Center at Pelham Parkway and Eastchester Rd.

The college’s Nursing Center, which houses more than 120 cultural events—drama, concerts, films, lectures, dance—on evenings and weekends, is one of the facilities which will be free to the public or have minimal admission charges.

The move to the new permanent home of the college replaces former plans for the construction of BCC on an air space campus over the subway storage yards at Bedford Park Blvd. and Paul Ave.

Of the whole NYU plant at that Heights campus, all will be taken over by BCC except the Harlem River Aerospace Center, three off campus residential buildings and a Univac 1108 computer. The property contains buildings at the campus and the 26 buildings with a total of more than 1.3 million square feet go in the deal.

The Hall of Fame will stay open to the public.

Dr. Colston says that Bronx Community College, now operating out of five major centers with a six square block area in the Fordham—Concourse section, will retain two of the buildings, on permanently and one during the change over period: the main building, formerly Bronx HS of Science, at E. 164th St. and Crest

NYU Campus
Sale to BCC
Completed

Practically all of the scattered facilities of Bronx Community College will be centered on the present campus of New York University, in University Heights, starting in September. BCC president Dr. James A. Colston declares.

His statement follows the announcement on Monday that the sale of the NYU campus at University Ave. and 181st St., for $62 millions, was arranged. Some $38 millions additional will be provided the Community College for modernization of the 50-acre camp

The Regents approved the City University of New York's master plan amendment which would authorize that institution to acquire the Heights Campus of New York University for use by the Bronx Community College.

The sale was made possible by the agreement between Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and the City University of New York. Under the agreement, the two schools will operate as a single institution.

NYU Unit

New York University has merged its two undergraduate liberal arts divisions into a school that will be located in its Washington Square campus.

The new college will consist of the old arts and science branches at NYU's Washington Square Center and the University Heights campus in the Bronx.

It will be called the Washington Square and University College.

The Regents approved the City University of New York's master plan amendment which would authorize that institution to acquire the Heights Campus of New York University for use by the Bronx Community College.

The administration also with held comment on the number of jobs that might be lost by the amalgamation. The resulting is part of a reorganization of the Heights campus, a result of having sold the University Heights campus to the City University for use by Bronx Community College.

The sale of the University Heights campus to The City University of New York and reports of the Museum of Modern Art that the museum is looking for more space to be able to expand, have raised questions about the financial savings through the merger, spokesman refused to speculate yesterday on the actual mount.

NEW CAMPUS SURVEY
Classes Begin On Heights Campus
As Fast Moving Feat Is Completed

Bronx Community College's new 50-acre campus at University Avenue and 18 officially opened its doors on Saturday, September 8, 1973, when classes began for the college's nearly 15,000 students. Most classes will meet for the first time today.

During the last month since the campus officially was transferred from New University to the City University of New York for use by BCC, the faculty and administration, headed in their by Dean Paul Rosenfeld, have been trying to prepare for an inevitable confusion which from the moving of the college to a new location which Dean Rosenfeld to a "giant caper" and deems unparalleled in the history of any academic institution.

The college has made preparations for this first day, but as Dr. James A. Colston, president of the college, has been difficult to quickly into a campus which was not originally designed for a community college.

BCC has been allocated $1 million to redesign the campus to suit the needs of the body. A group of master plans has already been en- to fit specific college plans into particular spaces on the campus. These plans may mean the demolition of some buildings and the construction of new ones where necessary.

Dr. Colston cautioned that the physical facilities of the college may not be perfect for up to five years. The basic change will be made soon.

One of the biggest immediate problems is a shortage of room space, as well as that some rooms are not too large, or contain inadequate equipment. Other classes may be without blackboard or chairs temporarily. The and help of all students have been requested by...

To the Class of 1974:

The Commencement that will honor your graduation this year is significantly different from all previous such ceremonies in the college's history. It will be held outdoors in a beautiful, park-like campus setting to mark a new era at Bronx Community College.

You have been fortunate to have experienced the excitement and thrill of moving to a "new" campus, and it is my sincerest wish that the uplifting experience you have had during this first year at the University Heights campus will provide the impetus to your post-BCC phase, be it at a four-year college or in the world of work. I hope you will come back to visit us and bring that "special" feeling you have as the first graduates of the Heights campus to a reinvigorated Alumni Association.

Of course, we hope to welcome you back not just as alumni but as subscribers to the life-long learning process. Your degree does not close the book on benefits you can derive from BCC. There are many programs and courses, both credit and non-credit, that can help you toward a better career and a better life.

All of us cherish fond memories of the "Old Main Building" and the mad dashes under the Jerome Avenue El to get to class on time. In those widely separated facilities, we created an inner campus of "spirit." Even though we now have a real campus, we have all profited from the personal fortitude that enabled us to transcend our surroundings and achieve education and closeness. You are special because you have experienced the best of both worlds.

If there is any lesson to be drawn from your unique experience, it could be that a consciousness of one's past is the only reference point for determining the future. A life motivated in escaping the past, no matter how humble, will abort any real sense of purpose. We release ourselves from the enslavement of escapism by recognizing the essential connection between past, present, and future. This totality of perception is sometimes called heritage or culture. It is the mark of civilized man.

Sincerely yours,

James A. Colston
President

goodbye to . . .

Dr. Clement M. Thompson
Dean of Students

For twelve years, Dean Thompson always believed that, although he was a part of BCC’s administration, he was most of all a teacher. While other college administrators would speak about the role of students in college affairs, Dean Thompson, with his faith in students, paved the way for it at Bronx Community College.

Prof. Daniel S. McGrath, Jr.
Dean of Administration

Dean McGrath has been with Bronx Community College since the day it opened. During these past fifteen years, he served the college’s students, faculty and administration as Coordinator of Student Activities, Director of Athletics, Chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education and as Dean of Administration, managing to keep everything “ship shape” along the way.
IN MEMORIAM

in february, richard mayer died, one term and a few credits short of his graduation from bcc. some felt that richard was made of wires and transistors because richie was the chief engineer, the designer, the station manager, and the father of the bcc radio station. some mistook as stubbornness what was, in reality, sincerity, involvement, and dedication. we will remember richie for his courage, his conviction, his involvement, but most of all his idealism.

—carl aylman

. . . . his father said to me, “how do you tell a boy he’s always right? that’s richie. he’d watch, he’d know and he’d fix it . . . . he grew from the frustration of wanting to run the radio station his way and finally realizing he couldn’t do it all . . . . and he taught the others to give by his example. he brought in all his records and played them over the radio all the time. then the others started doing that too . . . . he was a natural person, he related to others in a natural way and i just like being with him . . . . i think he’s happy. i believe in a hereafter. he did too. and now i think he’s happy.

—from an interview with prof. henry frisz

richard was an extraordinary engineer. he was intensely serious about his work and generated a great deal of excitement for wbcc. because of richie’s expertise the experience of radio broadcasting is now available to us the students. in the hospital the only thing rich would talk about was returning to school and completing his task and several hours before his death he said to me. “glenn, just treat the radio station as if it were a baby.” i’m trying, rich.
