Brooklyn Movies Focus of City Tech Library Display through August 30

Brooklyn, NY -- June 26, 2006 -- Motion pictures either made in or about the borough of Brooklyn are the focus of a summertime display at the Ursula C. Schwerin Library of New York City College of Technology (City Tech), Atrium Building, 4th floor, 300 Jay Street (at Tillary) in Downtown Brooklyn, from now until August 30, 2006.

The exhibit includes facsimiles of posters, lobby cards and photographs of Brooklyn movies from the personal collection of City Tech alumnus Ron Schweiger '64, who is the historian of the Borough of Brooklyn. Mr. Schweiger graduated from the College with an associate degree in hotel technology.

The posters spotlight such films as It Happened in Flatbush (about baseball in Brooklyn) and It Happened in Brooklyn, starring a young Frank Sinatra. Another highlight of the display is an original large poster (autographed by filmmaker Morris Engel) for the 1953 film, The Little Fugitive, which was shot on location in Coney Island. Rounding out the exhibit are books and multimedia items from the collection of the Schwerin Library.

Library hours are:

Closed on Fridays, except for July 7 (open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.)
