BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Shirley Anita (St. Hill) Chisholm (1924-2005) was born into a family of immigrant parents; her father Charles St. Hill hailed from British Guyana and her mother Ruby Seale hailed from Barbados; and raised in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn along with her two younger sisters Odessa (born: 1925) and Muriel (born: 1927). By 1927, Charles and Ruby St. Hill found themselves struggling to keep up with the new and expanding industries of the 1920s while trying to take care of their three young daughters. From 1928 to 1934, the St. Hill girls lived in Christchurch, Barbados, with their grandmother, Emmeline Seale. Shirley was ten-years-old when she returned to Brooklyn in 1934 with her sisters. The St. Hill's first lived in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn and then by 1936, moved back to Bedford-Stuyvesant for the necessity of a larger home.

Shirley attended Girls' High School from 1938-1942 where she excelled in French and graduated at the top of her class. Although she received offers from Oberlin College and Vassar College, she decided to further her education at Brooklyn College because tuition was free for city residents and it was close to home. She majored in Sociology and minored in Spanish and became quite active in student organizations including the Harriett Tubman Society, the Pan-American Club, and was one of the founders of IPOTHIA (In Pursuit of the Highest in All). She enrolled in a Political Science course, where her professor, Louis Warsoff, recognized her political potential. Although he was blind, he inspired her to enter politics regardless of the odds against her. She continued her education by receiving her Masters from Columbia University in Early Childhood Education in 1952; it was also during this time that Shirley married Conrad Chisholm. From 1953-1959, Shirley was director of the Hamilton-Madison Child Care Center and from 1959-1964, was the educational consultant for the Division of Day Care in New York City. Her interest in politics arose once again in 1960 and by 1964 she won a seat in the New York State Assembly.

Shirley Chisholm was one of the most outspoken members of the Assembly. She decided to run for an open seat in Congress in 1968 and won the election against Republican James Farmer, becoming the first African American Congresswoman in the United States. Shirley Chisholm made great contributions throughout her time in Congress. She was one of the founding members of the Congressional Black Caucus and the National Women's Political Caucus; both of which still exist today; and spoke out against President Nixon and the war in Vietnam. In 1972, she entered the Presidential race and showed the world how "Unbossed and Unbought" she truly was.

Although she did not win the Presidential race, Shirley Chisholm continued to serve in Congress until her retirement in 1982. Sometime after retirement, Shirley Chisholm moved to Florida with her second husband, Arthur Hardwick, and lived there until her death in January, 2005. The legacy of Shirley Chisholm is very much alive and well in the present day. Her legacy has been carried on through the efforts of Shola Lynch and her award-winning biographical DVD Chisholm '72 – Unbought and Unbossed; as well as through Professor Barbara Winslow and The Shirley Chisholm Project of Brooklyn Women's Activism.
