To the Class of 1984:

The symbolic significance of "1984" for this year's graduating class is not the curbing of freedom of choice, as described by George Orwell, but the broadening of that freedom through education.

You have all experienced some of the ills visited upon members of a modern world society in recent years: economic setbacks, threat of nuclear war, reversals in human and civil rights. You have, on the other hand, also experienced the benefits of membership in the academic community and the Bronx Community College family, the acquisition of knowledge and skill, increased access to higher education and security, and an expanded awareness of your abilities and entitlements.

Your study at Bronx Community College has prepared you to face the challenges with which you will be confronted in 1984 and beyond; you will be better able to contribute to the development and maintenance of a sane society—one in which advances have no limits, one in which expectations are realized, one in which quality education leads directly to a betterment of the human condition.

As President of this College, I am pleased and proud to lead an institution able to boast of having played a part in preparing a student body to make its mark on this society . . . and leave it better for generations to come.

Congratulations and best wishes,

Dear Seniors

As the academic year draws to a close I wish to extend my sincere congratulations to the members of the “Class of ’84”. I know that time you spent earning your degree was not always an easy task to accomplish, but your perseverance made the difference. Continue to strengthen those skills which will prove essential in the success of your future endeavors.

As you depart from Bronx Community College and move out into the next phase of your career development, I urge you to keep in touch and join the Alumni Association and continue to strive for excellence. New York City needs responsible contributing citizens like you working for the improvement of services for all its diverse residents.

HEALTH FAIR
On this day of the Health Fair many students received a wide range of information for their health and home security needs.
Students are motivated for the 1984 elections as Jesse Jackson speaks on the importance of getting involved in the voting process. This day marks a new beginning for those of us who can see far beyond the rainbow. Good luck, Jesse.
VOTE FOR THE FUTURE

Janet Frazier helps a student to register (top photo) Joan Seals looks on as many students join the effort. Prof. Seals (second from the left bottom photo) watches as one student decides that his vote does not count.
Jones Frazier (second from the left) convinces a student to register and Virgle Wilder gives the student an official B.C.C. button.

In 1984 the people will decide the future of the country. B.C.C. students are proving that they are good citizens by registering to vote. Student Government, IOC, and everyone on this campus is helping (bottom photo).
BRONX DAY PARADE
During the Spring Fair of 84, many clubs and organizations participated by having many international dishes, fashion shows, musical performances, and the largest Flea Market ever! The campus was alive with clowns and balloons to complete the event.
Student government has provided many services to the College. This Organization has represented the students in our nation and state capital. Student government has also given the students many leisure time activities from dances to the latest films.

YOU MAGNIFY MY LIFE

When I was feeling small like a seed underneath the ground
Someone heard my cell
and like sunshine you came around.
Now I'm growing more and more taller than I thought I could before.
To the point where I forgot which way is down.

You encouraged me to strive
You said "Yes, you can make it."
You built me like a house
brick by brick till the storm couldn't shake it.
You made my small life seem as if it was only a bad dream and now a giant has been awakened.

You magnify my life
and I'm growing stronger everyday.
You magnify my soul
and I don't crawl any longer I'm not afraid you made me believe there's a bigger, better me and when you're bigger it ain't nothing to be brave.

COLLEGE DAYS

Days go too fast!
Never enough time!
Friends made to last.
Why didn’t Shakespeare rhyme?

Days at BCC
Are days well spent
The learning center is free
And now I worry about the rent

We’ll never forget these days
Especially when we are old & gray
The studying, learning, crams
The days of countless exams

Time goes fast
Make time last
Enjoy all these days
For the future awaits!

Little One

Why are you not laughing little one?
Because I am sad.
Why are you sitting there by yourself little one?
Because I am lonely.
Why are you not playing with the other children little one?
Because I fear them.
Why do you not tell someone these things?
Because I live in my own world.
Then take my hand little one.
So that I can enrich your mind with knowledge your soul with friendship
and your heart with love.

SMALL MOMENTS ARE NOT ENOUGH

Please forgive me,
If sometimes I like seeing
What I wish to see.

When I look into your eyes
The colors brown and green
Are very warm to me.

Those small moments are not enough
Might I be too forward
If I invade the space that's yours
And place the lips that are mine upon you,
I wish to hold them there forever.

Please forgive me
If it seems I have no pride
But the visions I see, are ones
I wish to see.
They include you who I want to be part of me.

A THING CALLED LOVE

Here I stand
Waiting for an answer
To a question I never asked
So, how am I to prosper.

If there's a rhyme
Then there must be a reason
If it's that time
It must be in season.

I ponder on the moment
Which is as whimsical as a thought
But come tomorrow
I'll know just what my question's brought.

Like a dream
Since I met you, life has seemed.
Yet, I've tried to better
And I've tried to scheme.
Yet like all before me,
I'm caught like a dove
In a strong wind
Caught in a thing called love.

FOR YOU

I ride the winged horse of time
In search of a destiny unknown
With my heart in hand
And the forever thought of stone.

To meet out my judgements
And to help the meek stand tall
In a land where fear resides
I will try to comfort all.

Though the vale of death
Will always await me with relish
I will trudge on in my dream
And worry not if I am to perish.

Happiness is my goal
For all mankind to share
So that his sins may be vanquished
Along with his sorrow and despair.

Think not of the sacrifice I make
But of the deeds I do
So that a world may be saved
By my love for you.
FROM WHENCE I CAME . . .

Often students graduate from college wanting to say thank you to someone special or maybe share an experience, but somehow never taking the time to do so. I am a student with an experience and a special thank you, but instead of doing it personally I would like to share it with everyone.

Reminiscing over the years of struggling back and forth to work, I remember starting at the long steps that lead to the top of the hill, at that time NYU, but now BRONX COMMUNITY COLLEGE. Like magic, an inner voice kept telling me that someday I would be taking that trail. The thought was obsolete then, because being divorced mother with six small children, I was in no position to quit my job. However, the thought was still beautiful. I kept thinking, what a life! Suddenly time had moved on rather quickly; my children were all grown up, and I was still holding on to my dream.
Finally, I decided to take action. I went to Loew Hall to get an application. In the meantime, I applied for two grants (PELL AND TAP). By the time I returned to submit my application and the twenty dollar filing fee, I had already received notice that I had been accepted for the grants. While I was in the process of enrolling I felt great because I knew that my fees would be paid. But, somehow I was frightened by the thought of younger students who would be in the classes, not knowing that there would be almost as many older ones. A few months later I received a letter inviting me to an orientation to be held in the cafeteria. On that evening I was one hour earlier than the scheduled time. I was so excited that I somehow missed the long steps and ended up at the 181 street entrance. The orientation was great: we were congratulated, given a short tour of the campus and then escorted to Community Hall’s lower level where registration was taking place. I managed to be sitting at a table with three ladies who were having some of the same problems as I, doing and undoing program cards. After four hours, I thought, how could anyone go through this type of aggravation? Three ladies and I finally decided that maybe college life was not for us after all. We were staring into space feeling sorry for ourselves when one of the ladies mentioned, how nobody cares to be bothered with the older crowd, then she said “let’s go”. But, someone did care. Out of the blue a very polite and pleasant gentleman came over to the table. I am sure he could tell that we were having problems just by looking at us. He introduced himself as Prof. Skinner and asked if he could help in any way. We were so excited that we all yelled yes at the same time. He sat down with us and we were finished in less than ten minutes. I shall be eternally grateful to him because he helped me save my dream. On my way home that evening, I kept thinking that some way or somehow I would find a way to show this person how much his helping me that day really meant to me. My first day of classes was beautiful. The long steps seemed very short that day. I had finally started college! A semester had passed and I hadn’t seen my friend, Prof. Skinner. But the following semester I was accepted for college work study. I refused to take a job off campus. Somehow I ended up in the office of student Activities, where Prof. Skinner is the director. Now it was up to me to thank the person who saved me from walking out of registration. I have been doing everything humanly possible to make the job beneficial and also the workload easy on everyone. Everything has worked out very well since I’ve been here. Prof. Skinner is still there for people in trouble because that is the way he is. I THANK YOU PROF. SKINNER: YOU have truly made my life and job pleasant and rewarding. Every day has been a new discovery.
