Dear 1992 Graduates,

As you leave Bronx Community College, it is with a sense of pride that I salute the Class of 1992.

Our efforts at Bronx Community College have been directed to opening your minds to new ideas and knowledge and to developing your skills and talents to meet the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead. There are many problems in our nation and city that will need your expertise. The challenge is there and you have much to give.

Your graduation from BCC is a milestone. You have earned your first higher education degree and most of you will continue to study, while others will seek full time employment. Whether you continue your education or enter the world of work, you will discover that you have been well prepared for the future.

It is however, up to you to keep growing and learning so that you continue to build on the solid foundation you received here at BCC. I know you will make a difference in the future.

Best wishes and good luck.

Sincerely,

Roscoe C. Brown, Jr.

Major E. Thomas Named Dean

Major E. Thomas is the new Dean of Continuing Education, Grants and Development.

Prior to his BCC appointment, Dean Thomas served as Associate Vice Chancellor for Special Programs at the State University of New York Central Office in Albany.

A native of Quitman, Ga., Dean Thomas was reared in Detroit. He earned B.S. and M.S. degrees from Wayne State University and holds an M.A. in Education from Columbia University Teachers College. He began his career as an elementary and middle school mathematics and science teacher, first in Detroit, then in Scarsdale, N.Y.

In 1970, he joined the State University College at Purchase. His first assignment was to manage the Mount Vernon Cooperative College which assessed the needs and defined programs for the non-traditional adult population who required academic and financial assistance.

He moved to the State University Office of Special Programs in 1982. Dean Thomas cites as his accomplishments the formation of an Educational Opportunity Center at BCC, the establishment of a training restaurant in Rochester, and the improvement of statewide EOC facilities. These community-based adult education centers serve a diverse student body.

BCC Grad Named UN Ambassador

After failing and dropping a few too many classes as a freshman at Bronx Community College, Charles Flemming received a letter from the college threatening his expulsion. To stay in school, he successfully convinced a professor to give him another chance.

Fifteen years later, Dr. Flemming is still battling to change people's minds. But now his audience is larger and tougher to persuade.

As the Ambassador of St. Lucia to the United Nations, Dr. Flemming describes the thrust of his job as "a constant battle arguing that we are a poor country" in order to qualify the small Caribbean island nation for development assistance from the U.N.'s major aid agencies.

At 13, Dr. Flemming, a native of St. Lucia, dropped out of grade school to work on merchant marine ships. In the early seventies, at 23, he left his job and his country to come to the United States after he heard it was possible in America to get a G.E.D. and go on to college.

Describing his initial troubles at BCC, Dr. Flemming said, "I was completely lost because I had almost no educational background." But coming so close to being expelled straightened him out. "That was when I realized I had to stop fooling around. I buckled down and started reading."

He went on to earn a B.A. from The City College in record time and subsequently earned three degrees from New York University, completing his education in 1985 with a Ph.D. in International Relations.

Dr. Flemming, in addition to his diplomatic career, now serves as the Vice President of the U.N. General Assembly and is a declared nominee to be the body's president in 1993.

at the senior colleges and 3,300 annually at the community colleges for full-time undergraduates, starting with the Fall 1991 semester.

The increases were necessary because of the rise in residents tuition rates were also increased.

"Any tuition increase is painful," said CUNY Chancellor W. Allen Reynolds, "but because of the budget cuts incen-tes with incomes between $7,000 and $12,000 will pay less than $50 out of pocket per semester. Those with incomes between $12,000 and $20,000 will now face less than 10% of the tuition increase. Nevertheless, the college must still account for the $4 million shortfall. Faculty/staff separations and attrition-including 22 staff positions eliminated dergraduate students, a move that they helped to fund. Refreshments were served at the reception.

Trustees To Vote On Disciplinary Amendments

To vote on disciplinary amendments, the college's General Council will meet on February 26 to discuss and possibly vote on potential changes to the college's disciplinary procedures. The amendments are intended to clarify and streamline the process for handling student misconduct.

The amendments include provisions to:

1. Establish clearer criteria for disciplinary actions.
2. Increase the involvement of student representatives in disciplinary hearings.
3. Clarify the notification process for students and faculty.
4. Enhance the appeal process for students.

The amendments are the result of a joint effort between the administration, faculty, and student representatives.

Amendments will be discussed during the meeting, and a vote will be taken. The amendments are expected to be approved and implemented soon.

The Last Poem

This is the last poem I'll write for you. You don't deserve any more words or lines that rhyme, or an old/new song. The heart you hurt was mine alone. You don't deserve a word of love or even a tear, or a kind word from someone who thought you once were very dear. This is the last poem I'll write for you, which you don't deserve. You have deceived me for the last time. You have lied to me one too many times, having me think that things will work out. It was all a lie. You've made my love for you vanish into nothing. This is the last poem I'll write for you; A poem cold in heart just like you!!

Carmen Vasquez
Searching: A Quest For??

I'm tried of searching so I look no more.
What makes it ironic was I never knew what I was searching for.
Be it as quest for love, fortune, or fame, I really don't know for it's rotted my brain.
It may sound familiar this journey of doom;
Your head never clears in a smoke-filled room.
Reality crashes like glass on the floor, though you fight to survive you still search for some more.
Your widening eyes, your blood pressure rise, yet the lie in your mind says that you feel fine.
Paralyzed, immobile in a state of shock—it is then that you realize that your heart has just stopped.
This is a plight I wish not to know, for this is the sign of the end of the show.
So if you're searching make sure that you know the search for one's self is a treacherous road.
One wrong turn and this could be your story to conquer one's self is the best of the glory.

Sheldon Pipkin
The Rev. Jesse Jackson brought his voter registration drive to Bronx Community College last week.

In a rousing speech before an appreciative audience that overflowed the Gould Memorial Library Auditorium on March 18, Rev. Jackson urged students to register to vote and to make sure that their friends and family members are also registered.

He noted that the civil rights struggle is full of people who sacrificed for the right to vote — "this right of self determination, this right to choose the leadership, this right to be the leadership." Rev. Jackson told the audience, "You cannot look casually upon the power in your hands. You cannot take that power lightly."

The Rainbow Coalition wants to "sign up" 5,000 deputy registrars in New York City who will register 100 voters each. Noting that voting is empowerment, he reminded students that CUNY tuition levels are a product of the political process. He added, however, that, "Our motivation is not the dollar but our dignity, our survival."

Next, sounding very much like a clergyman and not a political activist, the Rev. Jackson warned that as a society "we face a whole new set of enemies." As important as voting is, we've got to do more. We've got to decrease crime and illiteracy by 25 percent for a start. "It means teaching our children in their formative years alternatives to violence," he said.

The Rev. Jackson urged students to live lives of strong morals and values. In an allusion to a prominent athlete who is now HIV positive, Rev. Jackson said, "Living at risk is tragic, never magic."

Rev. Jackson added that he has a ten point urban policy plan "to make life safe and stabilize our families." Actually, he said, it is a plan he picked up from someone else. "I borrowed it from Moses," he said.

In closing, Rev. Jackson reminded students that "nothing great comes casually or easily. It's not just ambition. You've got to have character."
