Biographical Note

Annie Smith Peck (1850-1935), scholar and mountaineer, was born in Providence, R. I., October 19, 1850, the youngest of five children of George Batchelder Peck and Ann Power Smith Peck. Mr. Peck (father) was a graduate of Brown University and a member of the Providence City Council with a successful law practice. He also owned a wood and coal yard. Annie's schooling began at Dr. Stockbridge's School for Young Ladies. She then attended Providence High School and the Rhode Island Normal School graduating in 1868. After teaching for a while, she moved to Saginaw, Michigan, to become a principal (1872-1874). But, she wished to continue her education and enrolled (in 1874) at the University of Michigan, which had just started to allow women to attend. She graduated in 1878 majoring in Greek and classical languages and went on to receive a master's degree in 1881. Ms. Peck accepted a position as professor of Latin and elocution at Purdue, one of the first women to have such a job. Ms. Peck left for Greece and became the first woman student at the American School of Classical Studies there (1885-1886). Upon her return, she accepted a teaching position at Smith College which she kept until 1892, when Ms. Peck realized that she could support herself with her public lectures on Greek and Latin archeology.

At the age of forty-four, Annie Peck took up mountain climbing. She was the third woman to scale the Matterhorn in the Swiss Alps. She climbed mountain peaks throughout the world and ascended the north peak of Peru's (22,205-foot) Mount Huascarán in 1908 at the age of fifty-eight. Ms. Peck climbed the highest summit in the Americas, but was still ridiculed by many male mountaineers. She was also hampered by limited funding and poorly constructed equipment (because they were designed for men). For her ascent of Mount Huascarán, she designed and made her own mountain shoes. In 1909, Ms. Peck climbed Peru's Mount Coropuna (21,083 feet) and, as an early feminist, planted a "votes for women" pennant on its summit. She continued traveling and mountain-climbing until the end of her life; her last ascent was of New Hampshire's Mount Madison (5,636 feet) at the age of eighty-two. Annie Smith Peck, a woman of many "firsts," died in New York on July 18, 1935.

Sub-Group/Series Descriptions

Sub-Group I: Peck Diaries, Correspondence /Printed Works /Ephemera

Series 1: Diaries

Dates: 1862-1931.

Bulk: 1862-1931

Extent: 1 cubic foot.

Arrangement: Chronologically by year

The diaries are in book form and are divided by the year with some gaps. For example, there are none between the years 1863-1871 or the years 1909-1920 so that some portions of Ms. Peck's life are better documented than others. Each diary contains personal insight into Annie Peck's life with her commentary on events during a certain time period. Most of the diaries deal with her love of travel and some take on the form of a travel log.

Series 2: Correspondence, Incoming

Dates: 1856-1935

Bulk: 1856-1935

Extent: 9 cubic feet; 3.9 linear feet

Bulk: 1861-1935

Extent: 1.5 cubic feet; 1.8 linear feet

Arrangement: By Date

The outgoing correspondence consists of some drafts of Peck's letters, but is ambiguous and does not contain much of her letter writings. In a separate folder are mostly undated letters that Peck received.

Series 4: Printed Works.

Dates: Miscellaneous

Bulk: Miscellaneous

Extent: .5 cubic feet; 3 cubic feet

Arrangement: Miscellaneous

The printed works are divided into three groups; articles and manuscripts, journals and books, as well as miscellaneous pamphlets. The articles and manuscripts are writings by Ms. Peck and contain items on her travels and her interest in women's rights. The journal articles are either by Ms. Peck or about her. The miscellaneous pamphlets include writings of interest to Ms. Peck and/or others that were printed for organizations in which Ms. Peck was involved. A number of pamphlets deal with women's rights issues.

Series 5: Pamphlets/ Publications

Dates: Miscellaneous

Bulk: Miscellaneous

Extent: 1 cubic foot; 2 linear feet
