INTRODUCTION

Jerome Krase, professor of sociology at Brooklyn College from 1970-2003 and chair of the sociology department twice, taught classes in urban sociology, inter-ethnic group relations and introductory courses. For three decades, he worked as a community activist-scholar and was a student of "ordinary" urban neighborhood life by lecturing, giving photographic exhibitions, and writing for alternative newspapers. He lectured and did research at Universities of Perugia, Pisa, Trento, and Trieste. Dr Krase was a visiting professor at the Jagiellonian University in Krakow and University of Rome, "La Sapienza." He retired from Brooklyn College in Spring 2003.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

"I have had many major influences but you might say that growing up poor in Brooklyn and seeing so much wasted potential in people led me to believe that things could be made better if people spent more time and effort 'doing the right thing while doing what you gotta do' to quote Spike Lee." Jerome Krase, Dec. 2003

Jerome Krase, noted sociologist, author and social advocate was born in Brooklyn, March 2, 1943, to Stephen and Martha (Cangelosi) Krase, the fifth of seven children. He married Suzanne Lillian Nicoletti, director of Patient Relations at Brooklyn Hospital Center and an adjunct associate professor at Brooklyn College in Health and Nutrition, in 1964. They have three daughters, Kristen Martha, Karen Rose, & Katherine Suzanne.

He attended the University of Indiana (UI) in 1961 on a football scholarship and first majored in physical education. Three years in the Army as a security officer in Germany from 1962 to 1965 interrupted his education. While there, he married. He was honorably discharged and returned to UI, and switched his major to sociology. He received a BA in sociology in 1967 and began on his PhD studies in sociology at UI but transferred to New York University (NYU) after one semester. Krase defended his Ph.D. thesis, The Presentation of Community in Urban Society, at NYU in 1973. While at NYU, he was a recipient of research assistantships as well as a summer study scholarship. To make ends meet, he worked odd jobs such with the NYC Parks Department and at A & S department store while pursuing his degrees.

Jerome Krase began his long career of teaching and scholarship at Brooklyn College as an adjunct professor in 1969. He became a full-time assistant professor in 1970 while pursuing a PhD at NYU. He achieved tenure in 1976. Professor Krase was named Chair of the Sociology Department at Brooklyn College twice, once in 1980, and a second time in 1999, a title he held until his retirement in 2003. Professor Krase took one sabbatical, as visiting Professor, University of Trento, October 1996, and won the Kosciuszko Foundation and Polish Ministry of National Education Fellowship Award to "Explore Polish Vernacular Architecture" in 1997.

Krase was and is an active member in a large number of sociological and humanitarian organizations, public and private. Early in his career, he was active in the Prospect Lefferts Garden Neighborhood Assoc. (PLGNA), and Lefferts Manor Association, plus various local, city, state, and national election campaigns. He ran for a seat on the Community School Board Dist. 17 in 1975, but lost. Krase was one of the founders of Urban Studies Program and Italian-American Studies Institute at Brooklyn College. Commenting on his own career, Dr. Krase said, "My primary interest is what makes it possible for people who are different from each other to share urban residential spaces.

My approach over the decades has been termed as "phenomenological," "symbolic-interactionist," and most recently "social semiotics." I call what I do simply "sociology." In recent years, I have been exploring these issues photographically." (From H-Net, a Humanities & Social Sciences Online forum)

In addition, Dr. Krase is a prolific writer on many topics in sociology. Representative books titles include Self and Community in the City (1982), Ethnicity and Machine Politics" (with Charles La Cerra, 1992), and Italian Americans in a Multicultural Society (with Judith N. De Sena, 1994). He authored/co-authored several scholarly articles in publications such as the Journal of Architecture and Planning Research, Revista Internazionale di Sociologia, The Polish Review, and The Italian American Review. Professor Krase co-edited with Ray Hutchinson, for 2003 & 2004 publication, in Research in Urban Sociology: Race and Ethnicity in Urban Areas, Visual Sociology of Vernacular Landscapes: Images of Social and Cultural Capital, Ethnic Communities in New York City and New York City's Ethnic Landscapes. For a complete listing of his writings/affiliations, see his CV.

Throughout his career, Dr Krase has lectured nationally and internationally on the sociological aspects of community and cultures. A sampling of Professor Krase's latest conference presentations are: in Dubrovnik, Croatia in November 2003 he presented, Seeing Community in a Multicultural Society: Theory and Practice at the request of the Croatian Commission for UNESCO at the Experience and Perspectives of Multiculturalism: Croatia in Comparison with Other Multicultural Societies Conference. In July 2002 he presented 'What Does Community Look Like?' at the International Visual Sociology Association Annual Meeting in Santorini, Greece. He gave the keynote address On Seeing Exclusion at the Irish Sociological Association Annual meeting in April 2001. For a complete listing of all his writings, presentations, and affiliations, please see his CV at the end of the container list, page 21.

Although retired, Prof. Krase continues to teach several classes each semester, participates in community activities & affairs, writes articles, reviews, attends sociology conferences, and is in the process of writing another book. He created, with Professors Timothy Shortell and Mary Howard, an e-journal, "The Brooklyn Journal of Social Semiotics," as well as a virtual Brooklyn Neighborhood Archives Project. Krase is currently on the Board of Urban Academic Librarians Assoc. of New York City, American Italian Historical Association and the International Visual Sociological Association. Other important affiliations include being a member of the editorial board at Urban Affairs Review, American Sociological Assoc., Community Section, Race and Ethnic Relations Section, and member on the advisory board of Italian Americana.

Professor Krase and his family live in Brooklyn's Park Slope section. [For a complete listing of Professor Krase's publications, his professional and personal activities, please see his Curriculum Vitae.]

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection of papers documents Dr. Krase's career as a professor of sociology and as a social activist.

To begin with, there are materials here on Jerry Krase as a student. But, there are also items documenting Prof. Krase's writings and his deep involvement, advocacy and commitment to Brooklyn -its neighborhoods, its community associations and its people. There are research notes, writings, newsclippings and posters. And, as a professor of sociology, there are students' papers, notes, class syllabi, and student observations. Included here as well as are Krase's presentations, grants that he received and correspondences. Professor Krase, as part of who he was, also established the Italian-American Center at Brooklyn College.

Finally, there are some photographs, audio and video materials, miscellaneous papers as well as publications such as journals, magazines, and bulletins that Prof. Krase saved over the years.

Community Service

As a concerned resident of Brooklyn, and a Brooklyn College faculty member, I have provided a wide variety of services over the years to the following organizations. As part of my commitment to bringing the college and community together I have developed courses, and programs which bring my students to the community, and the community to the college. For example, in Research Seminars, paper assignments, and in field trips to neighborhoods through the borough for my graduate and undergraduate courses. This work and my own research have resulted in many of the previously cited publications, papers, and other professional activities. * Denotes current membership or activity.
