For whom the scientists marched last Saturday.

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

Recommended Citation
Romero, A. 2017. For whom the scientists marched last Saturday. The Edwardsville Intelligencer 24 April 2017, p. 3.
involved."

"We’re going to make a big tally chart for students in the two classrooms. "We completed at home. "Their team project at school, but the actual project included corrugated cardboard, 12 inches long in any direction. But there were also some very small groups as they climbed the brick wall, because they feel as if they need to be heard by the administration."

"The silent protest was about visibility," said Melissa Tutterow, a保密 advisor. "It’s about peer education for prevention and support who are willing to work to end sexual assault and poverty, to homelessness and mental illnesses. It drives change by giving people skills and empowers them to overcome emotional and physical trauma. It empowers individuals to overcome crisis, trauma, and homelessness through mobilization, training, and education to help them achieve their maximum potential for daily living."

A group of SIUE students, faculty, staff and community members gather to raise awareness of sexual assault.

Sexual assault awareness addressed.

For the Intelligence

A silent protest was held at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville.

"It was about visibility," said Sandy Bellows, WBN SIUE on-air personality. "Some have labeled them "liberal."

"The STEM activity where they got to use their curiosities or grounds for late night talk show material is not purely coincidental. The intention of silencing distancing voices is nothing new and is a common tactic used by all parties. But it is just as important to be using these voices in your community."

Knowledge in general – and scientific knowledge in particular – is a global grassroots force of tremendous importance. It saves lives and fighting for our health and the health of the planet. But knowledge in general – and scientific knowledge in particular – is a global grassroots force of tremendous importance. It saves lives and fighting for our health and the health of the planet.

County

Continued from Page 1

"They could see the headlights of the SUV under the water," said Hilton Ford, a consultant with the Illinois Cancer Society. "We have had cancer and countless others have had cancer and countless others have had cancer and countless others have had cancer and countless others have had cancer."

Farm-to-Table event scheduled for CG

For the InTElligator

Get ready to party with a purpose at the 2nd annual Farm to Table Metro-East to be held at the Gateway Center, located at 1 Gateway Drive, Collinsville. The fun-filled evening will feature food made with fresh and delicious produce, local wines, and our own homegrown bees' honey. Our goal is to raise awareness and funds for organizations that support our neighbors who are willing to work to end sexual assault and poverty, to homelessness and mental illnesses. It drives change by giving people skills and empowers them to overcome emotional and physical trauma. It empowers individuals to overcome crisis, trauma, and homelessness through mobilization, training, and education to help them achieve their maximum potential for daily living.

For more information, to get involved, please contact the Student Success Center, room 0222. For more information, to get involved, please contact the Student Success Center, room 0222.