600 Welcome Dr. Gideonse, New Head of Brooklyn College, at Dinner

Speakers Laud Boro Students

New President Gets Picture of Problems Of His New Charge

More than 600 persons, including members of the Board of Higher Education, faculty members, educators and representatives of colleges and universities from every part of the United States, attended a reception and dinner in honor of Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, newly installed president of Brooklyn College, last night at the Forum Hotel.

Dr. Walter N. Matt, getting president of the College, who discussed the problems of finding talented students and assisting them in their studies, said that the college is "very much in need of support from the community." He added, "Our goal is to provide a quality education that is affordable for all." The forum provided an opportunity to meet with potential students and to discuss the challenges faced by universities today.

Brooklyn College came into its own yesterday as educators and public figures gathered for the inauguration of its new president, Dr. Harry D. Gideonse. Dr. Gideonse is inducted into office by Ordway Read, chairman of the Board of Higher Education (top left), in campus ceremony. At dinner for Mr. Gideonse in the Forum Hotel last night were: Prof. James M. O'Neill, Mrs. Mary J. Graham, member of Board of Higher Education, and the Very Rev. Edward J. Walsh, C.M., president of St. John's University, with Dr. Carmen Lombardo, member of Board of Higher Education (right). (Eagle Staff photos.)

Events Tonight

Brooklyn Academy of Music will present "America," a musical that explores the contributions of all Americans to the nation's culture. The concert will feature a diverse group of performers, including musicians, singers, and dancers, who will celebrate the rich heritage of American music. The performance begins at 8 p.m. at the Brooklyn Academy of Music (BAM).

One of the most impressive academic processions in the history of the city winds across the Brooklyn College campus as delegates from 500 institutions of higher learning gather to participate in the inaugural convocation (above center). (Wide World photo.)

A word for free college education and for men of learning in public office was spoken by Mayor LaGuardia (above right) at induction ceremony. (Eagle Staff photo.)
SHIPPING NEWS

ALMANAC FOR NEW YORK, OCT. 20

Arriving Today at New York

STEAMER LINE

From

ESTIMATED DOCK TIME

ARRIVING

SILAS, PANDORA B. K.

TOMORROW

2.00 a.m.

2.30 a.m.

2.30 a.m.

2.30 a.m.

2.30 a.m.

2.30 a.m.

NEW YORK TIMES
10 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y.

Redeemers, member of Board.

Events Tonight

Mr. James M. Flanagan, assistant director of the University of Chicago Library, will speak tonight in the auditorium of the University of Chicago.

Referees Appointed

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

JAMES M阵NISTER

GEORGE WHITING

Justice Smith

Brooklyn, October 19, 1911

PROOF OF COLLEGE

"We are proudly proud of our college," said Dean Coons, "and the second scholarship of its kind that has been developed as a result of the college." The college is proud of its achievements and the pride rests in the success of our students.

The President

Among those present were Reverend President of the Brooklyn College, Dr. A. W. T. Davis, and President of the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Dr. J. A. C. Blanding. The Brooklyn College, President of the New York Institute of the Arts, and President of the Brooklyn Academic Union, Dr. H. B. Blanding, was present.

The Vice-President

Also present were Rev. Dr. Pauline Maguire, President of the Brooklyn College, and Dr. Robert G. O'Connor, President of the Brooklyn College of Medicine and Surgery, and President of the Brooklyn College of Medicine and Surgery.