College enrollments continue national decline.

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!
Follow this and additional works at: https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs
Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Baruch College at CUNY Academic Works. It has been accepted for inclusion in Publications and Research by an authorized administrator of CUNY Academic Works. For more information, please contact AcademicWorks@cuny.edu.
College enrollments continue national decline

Only a few music students have been coming to the camp in recent years. The reason is that the camp is not attracting enough students to cover the costs of running it. The camp is in financial trouble, and unless it can increase its enrollment, it may have to be canceled.

---

Nursing camps cultivate caregivers

By DEAN OLSEN

The State Journal-Register

SCHOFIELD (AP) — Seeing Amanda Fox deliver a meal of grilled chicken and a salad to the home of a middle-aged man in the emergency room is a common sight for Memorial Medical Center in the central Illinois town of Schrieffs.

The heart of the community is a teaching hospital that has been providing care to the people of central Illinois for more than 50 years. The hospital is affiliated with the University of Illinois College of Medicine, and its main campus is located in Schrieffs.

Fox is one of the many nurses who work at Memorial Medical Center. She was recently honored with the title of "Nurse of the Year" for her dedication to patient care and her commitment to improving the health of the community.

"I have been working at Memorial Medical Center for more than 10 years," Fox said. "I love my job, and I feel good about the work I do."

---

Regional

Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr.

Letters from Academia

It has been a lot of fun watching my students become nurses. I have seen many of them go on to become leaders in the medical community, and I am proud of all of them. I wish them all the best in their future endeavors.

---

City

Paffen said when interviewing Farrar, he expressed several interests in community affairs.

Farrar said that he likes the private investment, walkability and proximity to key services in the city. He also expressed a deep appreciation for the city's unique sense of community.

---

Rocks

"I think it's a great way to show kindness, it's a great thing to do with kids," she told The State Journal-Register. "I think it's a fun way for kids to do something good for other people. When you find them, it's just really exciting for them and it's just a fun, family event to Do. Creatively, to spread kindness and cheer, together," she said.

---

Former inmate focuses on music

By BOB WATSON

The Intelligencer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Steve Griggs was spent 25 years in federal prisons.

He said his federal sentence on drug offenses in 1987. "The whole idea of tuition-free college..." he said. "I started studying law, and I took a correspondence course from Arizona to get my law degree."

"I didn't have any help with that," he said. "I just did it for the fun of it."

"He's open about that period of his life," Goedeker said. "He's happy to see former inmates go on to college."

"I love your music," Griggs said. "It's good music."

---

MEALS

This meal prepared by Culver's is an example of those being distributed through the Main Street Community Center.

---

Carol Ansel/Intelligencer

---

---

---