Chicago vies for second Amazon headquarters

CICERO (AP) — A spokesperson for Mayor Rahm Emanuel says Chicago plans to pursue Amazon's second headquarters.

Amazon on Thursday announced that it's hunting for a second home for its groundbreaking cloud-computing business.

The company said it will spend more than $10 billion to house as many as 50,000 employees.

The Chicago Tribune reports that Amazon spokesman Grant Klaiman says the mayor has spoken with Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos about choosing Chicago for the company's second headquarters.

Klaiman says the company plans to keep the facility in the growing Seattle-based incubator and the new space will be a "full equal" to its current home.

Cities and states have a little more than a month to apply and the company said it will make a final decision next year.

Settlement

According to a news release from the EPA's Office of Enforcement and Compliance Service, the companies were also ordered to pay a penalty of $1.27 million to the United States, $575,000 to the state of Illinois and $150,000 to the state of Ohio.
