1-25-2018

Higher ed is in need of fresh ideas

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!
Follow this and additional works at: https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs
Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation

Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr.

To study mathematics and physical sciences. He obtained very good training at both the College of Romans and the University of Vienna, from the different religious orders. Mendel never had much need of money, so he could afford an education. The only reason was because his family was too poor for it, the Bishop of Prague sent him to the University of Vienna.

He will be remembered fondly not only the issue of hereditary disease. His belief in the importance of education is still remembered today. The University of Vienna is one of the institutions that have benefited from his teachings.

STUART

From Page 1

Bob Stuart was a compass- ing individual who spent more than 30 years as the principal at Edwardsville High School District 7. He was a teacher, a principal, a great community leader, and a superintendent of schools.

"Bob was a strong advocate for students and dedicated to ensuring that each child had the best educa- tion possible," said his former assistant principal, Don Keown. He will be remembered fondly by many teachers, administra- tors, and students for his dedication to making education accessible for all.

Stuart was born in Granite City, Illinois, in 1957. In 1961 he moved to St. Louis, Missouri, where he grew up. Stuart attended the University of Missouri and received his degree in education in 1982.

"Bob was an exceptional educator and leader," said his former colleague and friend, Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr. "He was respected for his knowledge and commitment to improving education."

RUN

From Page 1

"I thought I could do anything," Carenza said. "I didn't know what it would be like." He had never run a marathon before.

But Carenza was at the finish line of the 2017 New York Marathon on Oct. 27, 2017. He had run 26.2 miles and crossed the finish line in 3 hours and 8 minutes.

"I never thought I could do it," said Carenza. "But I did." He has since run many marathons and continues to inspire others with his dedication to healthy living.

Library

From Page 1

"You can use verbal clues. You can use physical cues. You can work on your environment so that it helps them to remember," said Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr. "If there is a silver lining out of this, it is that all the credit, and a lot of it, goes to the staff who made this school district one of the best in the nation."

"Alzheimer’s makes up two-thirds of all dementia cases, and those cases that can frustrate caregivers and patients alike. Our job is to change that," said Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr. "We want to help people understand the disease and its progression.

"The lady who placed him at the finish line, he got a hug from each daughter," said Carenza. "It was just such an emotional moment."

"The lady who placed him at the finish line, she gave me a hug," said Carenza. "It was just such an emotional moment."

After the surgery, Carenza recovered quickly and started working with the American Heart Association.

"I would say I deserve all the credit," said Carenza. "But my family, and the staff at Edwardsville High School, were part of that team."