WORKING THEMES OF THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

A. Developing In-depth Knowledge About the World

B. Becoming Skillful, Reflective Practitioners

C. Educating For and About Diversity

D. Nurturing Leadership for Learning

E. Building Caring Communities

COURSE DETAILS

1. How the coursework meets the conceptual framework:

- Developing In-depth Knowledge About the World: Candidates develop knowledge about emergent literacy. Candidates study how literacy development includes the word and the world and shapes the practices that are happening in school structures. Candidates collect data and share knowledge of one child's literacy experiences.
- Becoming Skillful, Reflective Practitioners: Candidates learn to skillfully use a variety of tools for designing, conducting, analyzing, and implementing knowledge of literacy practices. Candidates engage in hands-on teaching, learning and research techniques to further theoretical and pedagogical understandings of emergent literacy practices. Candidates experience a multitude of literacies and reflect upon their past, present and future roles as teachers and literacy users.
- Educating for and About Diversity: This course encourages the candidates to explore issues related to the emergent literacy in the context of socio-cultural aspects of development including the notions of race, gender, sex, sexuality, class, ability, and language. Candidates read, critique and develop ideas and strategies for teaching and learning with a lens on cultural diversity. Candidates immerse themselves in diverse literature and strategies with a focus on improving their teaching and pedagogies.
- Nurturing Leadership for Learning: Candidates are responsible and accountable for their peers. Through work in groups, candidates will provide feedback, critique, suggestions, and directions for the class and individuals within the class.
- Building Caring Communities: Candidates work as members of a learning community to support, enhance, and critique others in order to develop life-long literacy learners. Candidates will begin to see themselves as a part of multiple communities and understand how their research and learning has potential to positively impact their communities.

2. Course Outcomes:

Student outcomes expected upon completion of course

- Candidates will develop an understanding of literacy and how it develops.
- Candidates will learn current theories of reading development and instruction, and the curriculum and its impact on all learners.
- Candidates will learn about effective classroom libraries, book leveling and reading workshop, and observe effective literacy environments.

- Candidates will begin to develop the understanding and practices needed in order to effectively observe, instruct and assess children’s developing reading and writing competencies, especially those of diverse learners.
- Candidates will understand the balanced literacy model of instruction and its impact on all learners.
- Candidates will observe these ideas and strategies in practice and will reflect on what they have seen with their peers, classroom teachers, administrators and the professor.

3. Instructional methods implemented in the course:

- Reflection through in class discussion, Blackboard quizzes & essays;
- Video-taped teaching experiences;
- Classroom and schools observations, recording of data use of educational technology to archive student work quickly;
- Emphasis on small group work and decision-making, on literacy development, and on formative instructor feedback throughout.

4. Methods of assessing candidates:

COURSE POLICY/REQUIREMENTS

1. Submission of work:

Regarding technical difficulties: periodically save your working copy of an assignment in duplicate. For example, save your working file on your hard drive and on another hard- or flash drive. As a general rule, you should always email yourself the last saved version. If papers are turned in late you will lose points on the assignment's grade.

2. Attendance and Class Participation:

This class requires that you be a committed, responsible member of a learning community. The expectation is that you will attend class each week, arrive on time, and remain for the entire class meeting. Absences, frequent tardiness or leaving early will result in a lower participation grade.

IMPORTANT: Your presence and active engagement is essential to the quality of the learning experience for us all. You will be asked to engage in group activities with your peers. Please be respectful to your peers by coming to class having read the required readings so that you can engage productively with them.

Missing more than two classes, will mean that you are at risk for not receiving credit for this course. If you know ahead of time that you will need to miss a class, please let me know as soon as possible by email or phone. However, there is no difference between excused or unexcused absences.

Our classroom community is a media-free zone (unless otherwise instructed). Please turn off cell phones before entering class. If you need to receive a call during class (in an emergency), please let me know ahead of time. This includes no reading or responding to text messages during class. There is no need to bring a laptop to class. Infractions will be counted against points for class participation.

3. Academic Integrity:

<https://www.ccnycuny.edu/about/integrity>

"Includes submitting downloaded term papers or parts of term papers, paraphrasing or copying information from the internet without citing the source, and 'cutting and pasting' from various sources without appropriate attribution."

4. Disabilities and Accommodations:

<https://www.ccnycuny.edu/accessibility>

5. Withdrawal from courses

If you will be unable to complete the course, you must withdraw by November 6 to avoid an "F."

6. Incompletes

A grade of incomplete will ONLY be given for medical/family emergencies. Work turned in after the term will not be accepted.
