RAISE HELL WITH MOTHER JONES!

Mother Jones has attracted writers like Studs Terkel, Raymond Mungo, Francis Moore Lappe, Peter Collier, Rita Mae Brown, Barbara Garson, Max Apple, Roger Rapoport, Eugene Genovese, Denise Levertov, and Kirkpatrick Sale. And dozens of new young writers with the promise of a radically different magazine that is complex in times that have grown more simple-minded.

For its efforts, Mother Jones has
• sparked Ralph Nader to demand recall of 3 million cars that could immolate their occupants in an accident
• kicked off a Congressional investigation into a defective nuclear power plant
• sent one huge pharmaceutical company reeling with an expose on its birth control device that can kill women who use it
• been praised as "the best slick radical publication in the country" (The Boston Globe)

All in just a year and a half of publishing. But that's not all.

You'll find stories in Mother Jones you won't see anywhere else: the Doonesbury cartoons most newspapers wouldn't print... the reasons why, if you smoke in a big city, you'd better check with a doctor for lead poisoning... the full story of the FBI's meanest, most effective agent provocateur... why marriages seem to be falling apart, and what's replacing them, not to mention the random sampling of tidbits like the recipe for Oreo cookie filling... how much money the IRS could collect if dope were legalized... why The National Enquirer thinks Teddy Kennedy and Farrah Fawcett-Majors will fall in love... where to find the best roller coasters in America. And more... all in Mother Jones.

It's a unique magazine, designed for a unique reader. And you can try it out with no obligation or commitment. We'll send you the current issue of Mother Jones Free. If you like it, we'll bill you for a year's subscription (9 additional issues) at just $8.88—a 30% saving. But if you don't like it—for any reason—just write "cancel" across the bill when it comes. That's it. Hassle free. And the issue of Mother Jones is yours to keep, either way.

New from Moon Books:

Lost Goddesses of Early Greece
A Collection of Pre-Hellenic Mythology
Written by Charlene Spretnak
Illustrated by Edict Geever

"Charlene Spretnak has offered us portraits of the serene, confident goddesses who were revered long before later patriarchal versions distorted and obscured the original myths. Her sound research, attention to detail, and love of myth-making are all pleasingly obvious."
— Robin Morgan, author of Going Too Far

"An unusual combination of solid research and poetic writing. A pleasure to read."
— Anne Kent Rush, author of Moon, Moon

"Lost Goddesses of Early Greece is a truly beautiful book. With it, Charlene Spretnak has raised new and important questions about the power of myth — and provided some soul-warming answers for us all."
— Merlin Stone, author of When God Was A Woman

"Ms. Spretnak's treatment of the myths is most impressive."
— Walter Burkert, Professor of Classics, University of Zurich

In 1910 a remarkable correspondence began between Maimie Pinzer, a Jewish prostitute just then recovering from morphine addiction, and a distinguished Bostonian, Fanny Quincy Howe. Maimie's letters offer an unprecedented autobiographical account of the life of a poor, working woman in the first quarter of this century.

At thirteen, Maimie began a struggle for survival that led her through jails, reformatories, and hospitals, and brought her into contact with other poor and exploited people whose miseries and hopes she depicted with a writer's gift.

The intervention of a kindly social worker, the warm support of Fanny Howe, and Maimie's own strength and intelligence enabled her not only to leave prostitution and learn secretarial skills, but eventually to use her small earnings and agile management to aid young women like herself.
