2011

DeGarmo can explain the nuclear threat

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!
Follow this and additional works at: https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs
Part of the International Relations Commons

Recommended Citation
Romero, Aldemaro Jr., "DeGarmo can explain the nuclear threat" (2011). CUNY Academic Works.
https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs/685

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Baruch College at CUNY Academic Works. It has been accepted for inclusion in Publications and Research by an authorized administrator of CUNY Academic Works. For more information, please contact AcademicWorks@cuny.edu.
Next year marks the 50th anniversary of the Cuban missile crisis, the closest the United States came to nuclear war, and everyone knows it. This year we are witnessing the discomfort in a large segment of society to be concerned about nuclear material in the hands of bad people.

These are all big problems. To better understand them, we need to get into specifics. Few people are prepared to do that because Alden DeGarmo, as associate professor and chair of the department of political science at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, has been born in Syracuse, N.Y., and raised in the Midwest. “I studied social science at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, and have fielded complaints from his neighbors,” DeGarmo said. “This is a common sight.”

DeGarmo has studied how the Kennedy administration dealt with crisis andHmm, it seems there might be some text overlap here. Let's continue.