Baruch Marchers Protest Recommended Tuition Fees

Thirty-six Baruchians picketed Governor Rockefeller's New York City office at 22 West 55 Street Friday morning, in protest of the recently submitted Heald report recommendation that tuition charges be instituted at the municipal colleges.

Although the governor was vacationing in Puerto Rico at the time of the picket, the news of the protest will probably reach him by means of newspaper publicity. Reporters from The New York Times, The Post, El Diario and La Prensa were there and NBC Radio was also present.

BARUCH SCHOOL STUDENTS picketed Governor Rockefeller's New York office in protest of the Heald Committee's $300 tuition proposal.

The students, who marched from 9:30-11, carried signs on their back and distributed leaflets explaining the reason for the picket to passersby. The slogans on the signs included such sayings as: "Keep Free Colleges Free," "It's the Principle, Not the Price," "Don't Kill Free Higher Education," and "$300 or $1—Matters Not."

The leaflets, which were distributed under the auspices of the Student Council of the Baruch School, stated "The three-man Heald Committee, at the request of Governor Rockefeller, has issued a report on higher education in New York State. One part of the report suggests that a $300 a year tuition be charged at the municipal colleges, which, since their inception 113 years ago, have remained tuition-free for matriculated undergraduate students.

"We are opposed to the part of the report dealing with tuition at the municipal colleges because of our strong belief in the principle of free higher education. We feel that the imposition of any tuition is morally and ethically wrong."

"The principles upon which free higher education were founded over 100 years ago in New York City by referendum of the people are in danger here. We strongly oppose therefore any measures which would mean their extinction."

Seminar Keynote to View Human Relations Studies

By Marilyn Karlin
The National Student Association Committee of Student Council will present its first human relations seminar to the Baruch School December 18 in the Student Center.

The program will revolve around discriminatory policies in the North, with discussion groups focusing in detail on problems of housing, employment, college admissions and discriminatory policies of organizations inside and outside of schools and colleges.

The budget in [unclear] will only provide for large enrollment but will enable the municipal colleges to expand and improve their guidance, laboratory and library facilities. In addition to the municipal college requests, other expenses include almost $4,000,000 for the BHE's teacher education program. The expenses of the chancellor's office and the BHE's administrative units are also included in the $45 million total. Contributions to the teachers' pension system are not included in the Operating Budget figure.

The budget will be financed by city tax levies, state funds and student fees. Preliminary totals provide amounts of about $19,000,000 from city sources, $23,000,000 from state sources and $2,000,000 from student fees.

The program will feature a keynote address analyzing the study of human relations, the college as a force in democratic living, and the responsibility of higher education in human relations. The basic tenets of the major faiths will be probed by a panel of clergymen of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

Two additional problems, the role of the administration in human relations and the role of agencies in the field of human relations, will be discussed. There will be a final summation of what the students can do to develop an effective human relations program.

The Seminar will be held in the Oak and Marble Lounges in the Student Center. Due to the limited seating capacity, a maximum of 120 students can be accommodated. Each organization is allowed two representatives at the seminar.

APO Carnival Set Next Week

Alpha Phi Omega will sponsor the traditional Charity Carnival December 6-8, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the Student Center.

The carnival will consist of booths set up and administered by the various organizations of the Baruch School.

All proceeds will be donated to the Lighthouse of the Blind Scholarship Fund, which is used to help pay tuition, buy braille books and defray other expenses encountered by the recipients.

Various firms will contribute merchandise to be given away as prizes to winners at the different booths. All merchandise remaining after the carnival will be auctioned off.

School Elections

Once again the Baruch School's semi-annual school-wide and class elections are near at hand. We had hoped that recent important issues such as the Head report would stimulate many students into running for office. Unfortunately, this has not been the case, and few upperclassmen are vying for either a class council or student council representative position.

We hope that between now and Friday, the deadline for filing petitions, many more students will have taken out petitions.

The Student Council executive picture is brighter than most other areas, for with the exception of recording secretary and ACB chairman, students are vying for the Council executive positions. Many of these candidates are well qualified, as they have had experience in school affairs both on and off Council.

The ACB story is by far the bleakest. There are only two students eligible for the position of chairman, and one of them is running for the S.C. presidency. The other person, Al Stein, has given us no indication that he intends to run for chairman.

We have previously stated that part of the blame for this situation must rest with the clubs that have failed to provide ACB with competent and industrious representatives, capable of advancement to responsible positions. We still feel this way.

However, the basic fault lies with the archaic restrictions which have plagued both Student Council and ACB semester after semester.

The avowed aim of class rank and other service requirements is to guarantee that Council will have a qualified executive board. In actuality, these restrictions have increased steadily and have severely limited the number of students who can run for executive offices.

We hope that these restrictive provisions in both the Student Council and ACB charters will be carefully scrutinized and overhauled next semester. In particular, we think that the Student Council presidency should be left open to students in their junior year and that the two term requirement for the presidency, instituted last semester, should be repealed or modified to one semester.

Political Activity

The lack of political activity at the Baruch School has been highlighted by recent events. The Presidential campaign has ended, and it should be noted that the Baruch School did not have one prominent partisan political speaker on campus. Professors Daniel P. Parker and William Turner Levy gave fine presentations of the campaign issues. Certainly, however, this should have been supplemented by the appearance of one or two political speakers.

We think there is adequate explanation as to why, with so many speakers touring the city, the Baruch School could not land a single one. There are no political groups on campus, and although other groups such as the Debating Society, Student Council and the Public Administration Society can arrange various political talks, speakers would be more willing to come to the school if there was active political interest, as would be evidenced by the existence of political groups. In addition, an active political club would have its own contacts and would be in a position to bring influential people to the school.

There are additional reasons for having these groups. We believe that interest in political affairs should be a vital part of college life. We also feel that students can play a unique role in politics. When political interest subsides after the Presidential elections, we feel students should play a role in maintaining interest for the 1961 mayoralty and 1962 congressional and gubernatorial elections.

Many Baruch School students have been active in outside political matters. It is these students who must take a leading role in the reactivation of various campus political groups.

Letters

To the Editor of THE TICKER:

(The following letter has been sent to Dean Emanuel Saxe by the ACB Council of Presidents).

Dear Dean Saxe:

We also support the Ticker and Student Council in protest of the Administration's reluctance to permit co-curricular use of the Faculty Council Lounge.

Faculty Council Lounge has been the meeting room of the Inter-club Board, Activities Coordination Board and the Council of Presidents for many semesters. The atmosphere of the lounge is ideal for a formal business meeting and is the only room which can adequately accommodate the Council of Presidents.

It seems that in the new Student Center some meeting room should have been provided for in place of the Faculty Council Lounge. This semester the Council of Presidents has been forced to use Room 1221. This room is entirely too small and cannot comfortably accommodate our meetings.

We understand that if the Faculty Council Lounge is to be used for an academic endeavor we have no right to request it's use. However the Council of Presidents meets only twice a month. Since the Room is not being used we should be allowed to meet in the Faculty Council Lounge. Council of Presidents

THERE IS an old children's song which goes something like, "Everybody has a pooper, that's why we invited you." It was sung to the intruding parents who came to take their kiddies home at the end of a birthday party or some similar affair.

We have our own grown-up use for this song today. In this case, the party that is "pooped" is the Republican Party, and the "pooper" is Senator John F. Kennedy. Senator Kennedy, although he wasn't invited to do so, in 1956 declared that he was going to be the next President, and lo and behold, here he is.

His next step will be the selection of his cabinet, the group of dignitaries who will "advise" and "counsel" him for the next four years. Both parties will be watching his selections carefully, for they will be indicative of the sort of President that a comedy will be during his Administration.

Let's hope that, whoever is selected, all will work together to secure a better world. After all, we didn't recently celebrate Thanksgiving solely to add on the calories.

December 14 is Election Day at the Baruch School. The special elections held in the earlier part of this semester evoked a record number of students for such an event, and I hope that the upcoming elections will continue that encouraging trend. Petitions are still available for students wishing to run for office and for just once, I'd like to see all positions contested.

I've been prompted recently to think of FCSA's standing rule not to allow students who have C-minus averages to serve in an executive position on any organization or run for election for the following semester.

I agree with the former position for students who are foundering in the depths below the "C" level should be concentrating their efforts toward pulling their marks up to a respectable level and not expending their efforts on positions of responsibility.

However, I believe there are a number of inconsistencies in the decision not to allow those students with a C-minus average to run for office during any term they are minus. Evidently, the line has been drawn at "C" because this is the requirement for graduation.

Yet, there is a situation comparable to this in every way: a student who is not going to be at least a junior in his term of office is eligible to run for several executive positions on Student Council while to run for President, the student must be a senior. Yet, elections are held every semester for the following term, and in most cases they are so done on the assumption that a student will complete the courses that semester and thereby compile the required number of credits to be classified as a junior or senior.

I would submit that if an assumption is made that a student will complete 15, 16 or 17 credits safely, that to assume that he will recover 3 or 4 minus points, thereby qualifying to serve during the following semester, is equally valid.

Drawing a line is admittedly a difficult thing to do. Presently the line is drawn at "C" or better, and if this standard is removed it will have to be reestablished at another, less exact point. This would be undoubtedly an arbitrary decision. Should the line be drawn at minus one-half, or minus three or minus nine?

I admit the decision would be a difficult one, but I also claim that it would be far more consistent to allow a student who is a very few points below the "C" level to run for office and assume he will recover the deficit than not to do so. If he doesn't, then he shouldn't serve. But if he does, then there isn't any reason why he will not be as qualified as anyone else to fill the position he declared himself fit to fill.

I find it amusing to note that Governor Rockefeller left to spend the four-day vacation in Puerto Rico with his family. Do you suppose he was fleeing from the picket Student Council held in front of his New York offices Friday?

THEATRON is having trouble these days with fireproofing the sets. The inspectors tear off a minute piece of the end of one of the displays, and succeed in setting fire to this, despite the fact that the remainder of the set is carefully fireproofed.

The obvious solution is for Theatron to fireproof only edges from now on and let the rest go.

Overheard Thanksgiving day: A mother asked her young daughter whether she'd prefer white meat or dark meat for the big dinner that afternoon, and the girl replied, "Just 'tater chips Mommy."

Nobody Asked Me But... Department: I'm always suspicious of those students who claim they never study for a test. I always get the best marks.

Some of the people who passed us by when we were picketed Friday were downright rude. Seems to me that no matter what person's views are, others have the obligation to respect them.

Did you know that an egg cream in other parts of the country is called a phosphate, and that people will take you literally if you ask for the former? Ugh!

WSU Board Declines Speakers Ban Action

(UPS) The Wayne State University Board of Governors adjourned its November 16 meeting without taking any action on their policy of allowing communist speakers to appear on campus.

Originally, the Student-Faculty Council passed a resolution supporting a University decision to rescind a ten-year ban on communist speakers.

The ban was lifted by the Board of Governors acting on the recommendation of faculty groups, and was strongly supported by University President Clarence Hilberry who stated, "We should have policies which permit us to behave as a university should behave."

In June, City College presented Dr. Kornberg with an honorary doctorate degree, of which only ten have been awarded by the college in this century.

The medal will be presented to Dr. Kornberg Friday by President Gallagher at a reception sponsored by the San Francisco Bay Area Chapter of the City College Alumni Association.

The medal is the work of A. P. d'Andrea. It contains a bust of Dr. Kornberg in relief against a design representing laboratory beakers and tubing. On the rim of the medal is the inscription, "First Nobel Laureate of the City College."

The following day Porter modified his threat to block state appropriations. He said he would not use his vote on the appropriations committee to block funds for WSU "because I think I can get results without it."

Dr. Hilberry said Porter had telephoned him after the meeting and assured the president he was in favor of the university's

Beavers to Begin Season Against Wagner, Thursday

By Lew Lipset

Stopping big Bob Larsen will be the problem for City College's hoopsters when they open their season Thursday against Wagner in the Seahawk's gym at 8:15.

The Beavers play Yeshiva in their first Tri-State League game Saturday in Brooklyn College's gym at 8:30.

Last year Wagner's "five" finished the season with a fine 16-8 record, including a 74-59 victory over City.

Four of last year's starters have been graduated, leaving Coach Herb Sutter with the problem of having inexperienced players on his squad, with the lone exception of Larsen. The 6-7 senior was the high scorer for the Staten Islanders in 1959-60, hitting 15.4 points per game. Larsen, although the tallest man on the team, will be playing the corner as he is a deadly shooter and has excellent speed.

The only other big men Sutter has available are 6-6 Van Naher and 6-4 Fred Klittich, both freshmen. Because of the small enrollment at Wagner, freshmen are allowed to play in varsity games.

The Seahawk mentor believes both boys have great potential but how good they will be in their first collegiate encounter is a question mark.

Four available veterans are 6-0 Ken Graham, 5-10 Wally Brooks, 6-1 Herb Wendelken and 6-2 Ollie Smith. Smith will see plenty of action as he is a good leaper and shooter.

Sutter feels his club is adequate offensively, but is worried about defense and rebounding.

Coach Dave Polansky

Lavender coach Dave Polansky will probably start senior Shelly Bender, juniors Tor Nilsen, Irwin Cohen and Mike Gerber and sophomore Mel Marshall. Nilsen has the potential to develop into an outstanding performer. The Brooklyn Tech grad uses his 6-4 frame to good advantage under the boards and scores well from the outside with a jump shot.

Bender, at 6-5, is an experienced center. He averaged nine points per game last season.

Both Cohen and Gerber are smart, aggressive floor men.

Marshall, a burly six footer, led the freshman team last season in both rebounding and scoring.

He also is a fine ball handler with an accurate jump shot.

This year's City team has more height and speed and a stronger bench than last season's squad.

Behind the starting five are veteran reserves Morty Ego, Ted Hurwitz and Bob Paulsen. Hurwitz, a 5-7 senior guard, should see plenty of action because of his good speed and shots.

Sophomores slated for work are Baruchian Jerry Greenburg, Bill Gjebre and Don Sidat.

Baruchian Mike Winston, a 5-8 guard, is also slated for work in the back court.

Yeshiva, which defeated the Beavers last year 58-51, is paced by 6-2 Gary Baum. Coach Bernard Saracheck lost two good men from last year's squad in Iry Bader and Stu Badian. The Yeshiva attack emphasizes ball control and waiting for the good shots.

In 1959-60 Yeshiva was 3-6 in the league and had an overall 11-9 record.

After these games the Beavers visit Columbia and Bucknell, before playing their first home game against Long Island University in the annual Stein Fund contest. The admission charge for this game is one dollar. At all other City home games there will be free admission to college students.

Mermen Capture First In Three-Team Match

By Mel Bernhardt

Hoping to continue where they left off last year, Beaver swimming coach Jack Rider was quite optimistic about his team's chances as they completed their final pre-season practice last week in the Uptown pool. Looking into his crystal ball, he stated that City was just too strong in the breaststroke, relay, dive and the 400-yard freestyle events.

Trying not to disappoint their coach, the Beaver mermen won seven of the eleven events in the Municipal College Triangular Swimming Meet Saturday at the Queens College pool. City College totaled 86 points as against 64 for Queens followed by Hunter College with 12 points. The 64 points tallied by Queens College was a tremendous surprise since coach Rider thought that Hunter would give his team more difficulty than it did.

While City captured the 400-yard medley relay, 200-yard butterfly, 200-yard individual medley, the dive, 200-yard backstroke, 440-yard freestyle and the breaststroke events, Junior Barry Shay scored a double victory with 2:36.5 and 5:33.3 clockings in the 200-yard individual medley and the 440-yard freestyle events respectively.

Co-captain Danny Goldin, the senior breast stroke star who transferred from Hunter College last year, performed adequately in the butterfly event in place of Mike Bayuk, who is ineligible. Goldin won in a 2:46.8 time.

Diver Nick West, winner of last year's Class of 1913 Prize at City College's "Athlete of the Year" and his understudy, Norm Kaplan, placed first and third respectively in the dives.

The other four events proved extremely exciting as Queens College just nipped the Lavender men in the 220-yard freestyle, 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and the 400-yard freestyle events. Although the outcome doesn't indicate it, City was ahead by a single point after the completion of the first four events.
