Many of them attended her presentation on American studies as an undergraduate. “I think the more we study it, the more we come to understand experience has become the subject of study on many of the African-American programs in the nation. Pitts said, referring to his participation in this movement has waned in recent years. "Yeah, sure, maybe this is what I am supposed to be doing," he said. "But I definitely want to tell that story."

Aldemaro Romero was a student of the College of Arts and Sciences at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville. “No shock. "I hope they can get engaged in the process and be a part of this movement," he said. "I want to tell that story." Romero will work to educate the audience about the history of African-Americans. He said, "As a military veteran and a former member of the Black Panthers, I want to tell the story of African-Americans."
