

Legislature Approves University Bill; Board of Regents to Control Program

The State Legislature gave the city colleges university status Saturday during the Legislature's late closing session. A bill sponsored by Senator Neil Mitchell, which authorized the formation of a university of the City of New York consisting of the four municipal colleges and the three community colleges, was approved by both houses of the Legislature.

The bill (Senate intro. 3,239; Assembly intro. 4,527) is now awaiting Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's signature.

Gustave G. Rosenberg, chairman of the Board of Higher Education, on receiving news of the passage of the bill, released the following statement to the student press:

"It is extremely heartening that Senator Nelson A. Rockefeller, the Senators and Assemblymen who represent the people and who have seen eye to eye with Mayor Wagner that in the public interest of the people of the city and the state increased opportunity for advanced training must be made available. It is the tradition of New York's public colleges, which have met the needs of the public for education for more than 100 years, that again they will meet the social need for high-trained people."

Buell G. Gallagher, president of City College, said that under the system established by the passage of the bill, the City University will submit its master plan for future development to the Board of Regents. Simultaneously the City University will submit information copy to the State University.

The State University will submit in turn its own master plan to the Board of Regents with an information plan for the City Uni-

Speech Marks to Be Posted

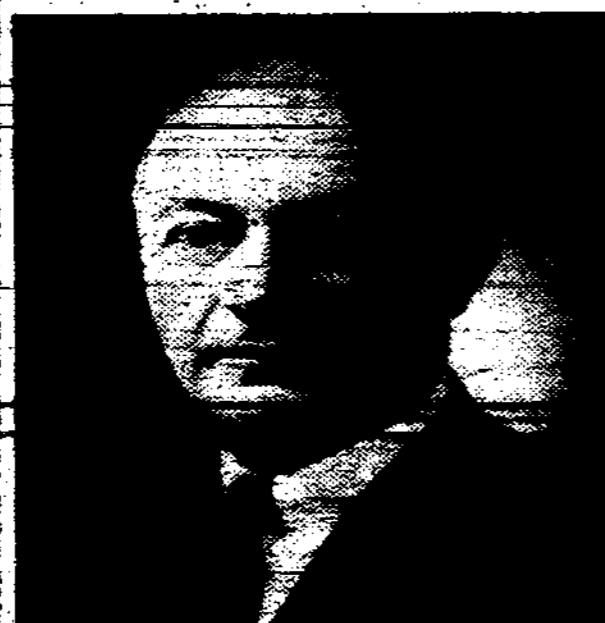

The Baruch School Speech Department will post mid-semester notices near the department office on the fourth floor this week.

Professor Louis Levy, chairman of the Department, said that the department of the College should either post grades or advise students exactly where he posts.

"Often students do not know exactly where they stand until after final examinations," said Professor Levy. When the mid-semester notices are posted, the student will know just what he has to do during the remainder of the semester, he said.

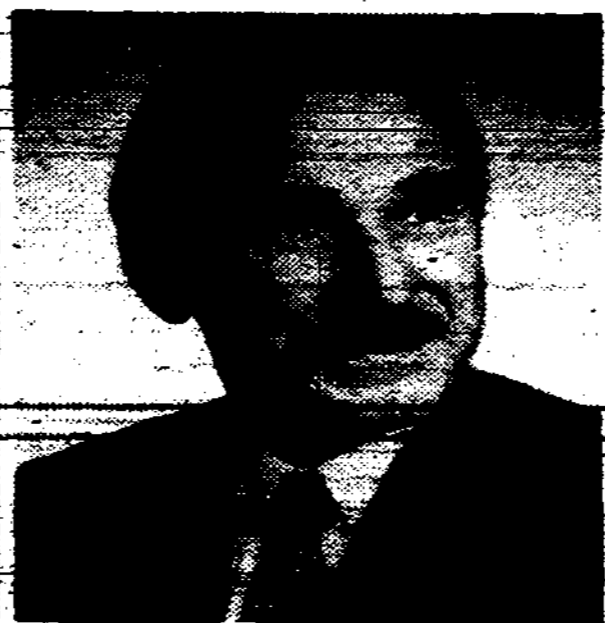

The plan, which Professor Levy called "educationally sound," will ensure that the student's final grade will not be a total surprise.

Proposed Amendments Fail At Student Council Meeting

By Marilyn Karlin

Student Council, at its Friday night meeting, defeated three proposed Charter amendments, each requiring a two-thirds vote. In addition, a motion brought up by Student Council Vice-President Dave Podoff passed by acclamation.

The first was a motion by Brendan Heneghan, corresponding secretary of Council, that members of the N.S.A. delegation must not necessarily have been members of Council's N.S.A. Committee. The motion failed 4-16-2, the majority contending that students not on the Committee would be unfamiliar with the working of N.S.A. if they went to the Convention.

The second proposed amendment, presented by Bob Brooks '63, would have permitted corresponding and recording secretaries to be members of the upper sophomore class. Presently only juniors and seniors are allowed to serve in these offices. Those favoring the amendment stated that many qualified upper sophomores were being needlessly eliminated; those in opposition indicated that lower classmen might not have the maturity necessary for an executive position. The motion failed 11-10-2.

The third proposed Charter amendment was submitted by David Diaz of the Class of '65. This amendment would have given Student Council the power, by a two-thirds vote of its members, to make inoperative any section of the Charter or by-laws initiated by referendum. Council, in a 3-13-3 vote, indicated that it felt that the student body should have the final say on issues brought up for a referendum vote.

Student Council Vice-President Dave Podoff brought up a motion concerning next term's proposed All-College Conference which passed by acclamation. It proposed that the Educational Affairs Committee be charged with the responsibility of making specific recommendations for the Conference.

but was pigeon-holed in an Assembly committee and never reached the floor for consideration.

Dr. Gallagher indicated that the Mitchell bill originally came from

Wyatt Art Exhibit Scheduled From Tomorrow — April 24

The Activities Coordination Board is sponsoring an art exhibit by Mr. Stanley Wyatt, a lecturer in the Art Department, in Oak Lounge from tomorrow until April 24 from 9-9.

A small reception will be held tomorrow. Attendance is by invitation only.

Mr. Wyatt was born in Denver, Colorado in 1921 and received his A.B. from Columbia College and his M.A. from Columbia University. He has also studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the Brooklyn Museum Art School.

He has had one-man exhibits at Columbia University, Rockland Community College, Rockland Foundation, Yankton College in South Dakota and Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Wyatt's group exhibits have been featured at Barzansky Gallery in New York, the New York Public Library, Colorado College and Barnard College.

the Senate Rules Committee and was taken over in its entirety in the Senate under the nominal sponsorship of Senator Mitchell.

An Assembly spokesman informed THE TICKER Friday that the Zaretzki-Brook bill was dropped and indicated that Governor Rockefeller had submitted a new bill to the Senate Rules Committee.

After a certain date, all new bills must be submitted through the Rules Committee.

Dr. Gallagher said that the bill eventually approved by the Legislature was really "Governor Rockefeller's bill" although it was by title "Senator Mitchell's bill."

In regard to funds for the City University, President Gallagher said that there is "no change in the present situation." Presently, money for the municipal colleges is allocated through the State University.

When asked how soon a graduate program would be in operation at City College, President Gallagher said that that question raises the query of how the graduate program will be financed. "So far as I know, the State did not appropriate any funds," he said.

Books written by Mr. Wyatt include "Poetry of Rimbaud" and "Poetry of Verlaine."

In addition to teaching at the Baruch School, Mr. Wyatt has taught at Waynesburg College, Columbia University's School of Painting and Sculpture, Uptown City College, Yankton College and the Potomac School in Washington, D.C.

Last semester five of Mr. Wyatt's illustrations appeared in THE TICKER's literary supplement, with explanations as to the type of art portrayed.

University Approved

A plan proposed last December became a reality Saturday when the State Legislature gave the city colleges university status.

It is a well-known fact that graduates of the city colleges rank second in securing doctorates.

We were also happy to note that the Board of Higher Education will submit its own master plan for the University set-up.

One of the areas which we find objectionable concerns the channels to be used to finance graduate work at the University.

We concur with President Gallagher's belief that this basis for allocating funds would give too much power to the State University members.

Without the necessary funds, the entire program of a City University would fail.

If the City University is to succeed and it must if the wonderful educational opportunities that it embodies are to become a reality.

I was appalled at the turn-out of students for our semi-annual Blood Drive.

We always shrug this accusation off by saying "Impossible." Students, it is true, I walked out to countless students.

Theatron Review

By Bob Brooks

Theatron's production of Damn Yankees, presented Friday and Saturday evenings in Pauline Edwards Theatre, was an extremely successful and unforgettable performance.

The two-act musical comedy, which concerns the Washington Senators and an avid fan of theirs, Joe Boyd, started off with a bang with the song "Six Months" and the initial impact was never lost.

Martin Gage, in the role of Mr. Applegate, the devil, was without a doubt superb. His casual, but scheming manner won over the audience and his solo of "Those Were the Good Old Days" was without parallel.

Ellie Wood, who portrayed Lola, the crafty henchwoman of the devil, also turned in an unforgettable performance.

Adrienne Ellis as Gloria Thorpe, the inquiring lady sportswoman, and her real-life husband Rick Ellis, who portrayed Van Buren, the Washington Senators' manager, also gave admirable performances.

The Cast

- DAMN YANKEES, a musical comedy in two acts by George Abbott and Douglass Wallop, with music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross was presented by Theatron Friday and Saturday evenings, March 24 and 25.

P.E.T. as she belted out "Shoeless Joe" with the aid of the chorus or Mr. Ellis' singing of "Heart?"

Bobby Wolkowits gave his usual fine performance as Rocky.

In his relatively brief part, Jerry Singer performed adequately.

Sister and Doris, two zany friends of Meg Boyd, were excellently portrayed by Theatron president Bunni Schmidt and Carole Goms respectively.

Another unforgettable portrayal was given by Harold Rann who played the part of Smokey, the crossword puzzle enthusiast of Senator team.

In other supporting roles Warren Pincus as Welch, Joel Kaufman as Henry, Al Schneider as Sobovik, Lee Ades as Lynch, Mary Strossner as Miss Western, Majorie Meyerson as the helper, Bleaman, Barbara Newfeld and Joel Terrace as the three teens.

Special commendation must also be given to the individuals comprised the singing and dancing chorus.

The behind the scenes workers such as Judi Horowitz, costume and Jerry Arrow, scenic design and lighting, helped beautify and enhance the production.

"Damn Yankees" is truly one play which the members of Theatron always look back at with a feeling of achievement and pride.

'Dictator' Huey Long Discussed by Israel

By Neil Palomba

During recent times there have been only two real threats of a dictator coming to power in the United States.

By 1934 Senator Long was confident enough to extend his operations to the national scene.

At the age of nineteen he entered law school and was graduated two years later.

Undaunted, Long continued to publicize himself and with the slogan "Every man a king and no one wears a crown," he was elected governor in the next gubernatorial election.

When he triumphantly entered New Orleans, the merchants got in line to bribe the new governor.

With a razor-sharp mind and the liberal use of money and muscles, Governor Long defeated all his political enemies and was elected to the United States Senate in 1930.

While in the Senate, Long violated every rule, insulted every prominent Senator and loved to bustle for hours, said Dr. Israel.

Villard Says U.S. Economy Must Attain Highest Level

By T. William Lombardi

Professor Henry H. Villard, chairman of the Economics Department, presented the theory Thursday that the lethargic American attitude towards the Communist challenge

The coming conquest of communism is a considerable probability," he said.

He chastised the United States for not awakening and taking action to demonstrate that economic development is possible under the free enterprise system.

During a question and answer period, Professor Villard cited President John F. Kennedy's statement that "the fundamental task of our foreign aid program in the nineteen sixties is not negatively to fight communism."

In response to the question, "What's wrong with the United States' economy?" Professor Villard expressed a belief that two factors are involved in the answer to this question.

Professor Villard noted that in the last fifteen years there was not an underdeveloped nation in the free world which made significant economic advances.

Psychology and Religion Compared by Feinberg

By Ellen Cahn

"There is no connection at all between psychology and religion" stated Dr. Mortimer Feinberg in his lecture on "Psychology and Religion—a Minority View" at Hillel's headquarters Thursday.

"We have gotten off base," stated the Baruch School associate professor of Industrial Psychology, "in trying to establish a relationship." To understand psychology and religion, we have to go back to their roots, which are entirely different, he said.

Psychology is an objective approach to the understanding of human behavior. The religious approach is, on the contrary, subjective remarked Professor Feinberg.

Continuing, Dr. Feinberg said that psychology is concerned with real people as they are, while religion involves the ideal image of man.

The author of "Economic Development" spoke on "The Coming Conquest of Communism" in a lecture sponsored by the Economics Society.

CCNY Baseball Squad City Thirteenth Starts Spring Practice In Fencing Tilt

By Mel Bernhardt

Paralleling the major league teams' start of spring training in Florida, the 1961 edition of the City College baseball team is practicing at Lewisohn Stadium in preparation for their opening game against Brooklyn College April 1. With only four men graduating from last year's 2-16 squad, the Beavers will retain the nucleus of the 1960 team with the addition of a few men from the Frosh club.

This season marks the beginning of the reign of a new coach, Al DiBernardo, an all-star athlete in his undergraduate days at City. He replaces John LaPlace, diamond mentor for the past six years. DiBernardo returns to the lavender after a stint in the Detroit Tiger organization.

After winning the Metropolitan Collegiate Conference championship in 1953, the Beavers have found themselves in the second division since then. Last year's 2-16 record placed them seventh just ahead of the Kingsmen from B.C., the cellar club. This year however, coach DiBernardo warns the other Met Conference members that his club is seeking a first division berth.

The diamond mentor's opening day line-up will probably be as follows: Bill Catterson, a converted outfielder, will be at first. At second will be John Francesconi, who is being brought up from the Frosh squad. At the hot-corner will appear Lou Rubin and playing at the other keystone position will be George Lopac. Among those who will be backing these men up are Dave Gantman, Tom Baldante and Frank Costa. Patrolling the garden area are Goldner in left field, Marzio in center and Baruchian Kenny Rosenblum in right field. Catterson and Lopas are co-captains.

In the battery positions, Bill Rotwinik will wear the tools of the catching trade. The pitching staff will be bolstered by the return of Alan Jacobs, Al Riebesehl, Richie Silver, Bobby Stodhard and Murray Steinfink, an all-Met selection last year. Steinfink had a 2-5 record but his 2.54 E.R.A. was very impressive.

Coach DiBernardo feels quite optimistic and believes that the team should have a good season. He adds that his experience both as Frosh coach and as player in the Minor Leagues will be of great benefit to the team. During Easter week the team will play three road games at B.C., Hofstra and Army. The home game will be played against Manhattan April 8 at Macombs Dam Park (opposite Yankee Stadium) at 2 p.m.

City College's fencing team placed thirteenth in a field of thirty-one schools Saturday in the National Collegiate Fencing Championships at Princeton's Dil-lon Gymnasium.

Last year the fencers placed sixth in this tournament. The Championships, consisting of bouts in the foil, epee and sabre events, were captured by New York University. The Violets triumphed in seventy-nine of eighty-six bouts.
