Dr. Aldemaro Romero Jr. Letters from Academia

The American public seems to intuitively “get it.” Contrary to some claims that online education is not worth the effort and money, the majority of Americans agree that college education is essential for economic development.

Three in four Americans believe that education is even more important today than it was for their fathers. Americans say colleges are not in tune with today's job market. Americans say that experiential learning, meaning learning through hands-on activities and working in teams, is very important.

According to a document from the Edwardsville Public Works Director Eric Holshauser, said.
