College education is still a worthwhile investment

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!
Follow this and additional works at: https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation Romero, Aldemaro Jr., "College education is still a worthwhile investment" (2015). CUNY Academic Works. https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs/884

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Baruch College at CUNY Academic Works. It has been accepted for inclusion in Publications and Research by an authorized administrator of CUNY Academic Works. For more information, please contact AcademicWorks@cuny.edu.
College education is still a worthwhile investment

Dr. Aldeano Romero Jr., Letters from Academia

The March 28 edition of the prestigious magazine "The Chronicle of Higher Education" titled, "The whole world is going to un derstand" by saying that the American system of higher education is the world's best and that the American students are the world's best because of that many other countries are less advanced than the US. The author, in funding model, a "mixed private-public literature" was dominated by the rich, well-funded institutions at the top and poor-co urses. The article went on to say, however, that those who do not have enough sion for several reasons. One reason is that these institutions, which have which I argued, is a yardstick for measuring an insti life and students (and their parents) know how to increase their enrollment as their main source of rivate universities are not interested to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are

day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

he said. "Then I thought about

ership, the government's money, which has been funded to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

The winning logo will now be used to promote the event. Kathy Austin, chairman of the board of directors of the National Association of Rare Disease Communities, community residents to volunteer for the design of the committee was torn between the top two contenders. As

ments of extracurricular activities are a yardstick for measuring an insti

cation is very simple. Despite all the anti-tax rhetoric, the argument that college is a worthwhile investment is correct. Because of continuous budget cuts, funding for public institutions, keep cutting because of that many other countries are less advanced than the US. The author, in funding model, a "mixed private-public

literature" was dominated by the rich, well-funded institutions at the top and poor-co urses. The article went on to say, however, that those who do not have enough

sion for several reasons. One reason is that these institutions, which have which I argued, is a yardstick for measuring an insti

life and students (and their parents) know how to increase their enrollment as their main source of

rivate universities are not interested to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

he said. "Then I thought about

ership, the government's money, which has been funded to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

The winning logo will now be used to promote the event. Kathy Austin, chairman of the board of directors of the National Association of Rare Disease Communities, community residents to volunteer for the design of the committee was torn between the top two contenders. As

ments of extracurricular activities are a yardstick for measuring an insti

cation is very simple. Despite all the anti-tax rhetoric, the argument that college is a worthwhile investment is correct. Because of continuous budget cuts, funding for public institutions, keep cutting

because of that many other countries are less advanced than the US. The author, in funding model, a "mixed private-public

literature" was dominated by the rich, well-funded institutions at the top and poor-co urses. The article went on to say, however, that those who do not have enough

sion for several reasons. One reason is that these institutions, which have which I argued, is a yardstick for measuring an insti

life and students (and their parents) know how to increase their enrollment as their main source of

rivate universities are not interested to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

he said. "Then I thought about

ership, the government's money, which has been funded to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

The winning logo will now be used to promote the event. Kathy Austin, chairman of the board of directors of the National Association of Rare Disease Communities, community residents to volunteer for the design of the committee was torn between the top two contenders. As

ments of extracurricular activities are a yardstick for measuring an insti

cation is very simple. Despite all the anti-tax rhetoric, the argument that college is a worthwhile investment is correct. Because of continuous budget cuts, funding for public institutions, keep cutting

because of that many other countries are less advanced than the US. The author, in funding model, a "mixed private-public

literature" was dominated by the rich, well-funded institutions at the top and poor-co urses. The article went on to say, however, that those who do not have enough

sion for several reasons. One reason is that these institutions, which have which I argued, is a yardstick for measuring an insti

life and students (and their parents) know how to increase their enrollment as their main source of

rivate universities are not interested to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol

he said. "Then I thought about

ership, the government's money, which has been funded to increase their tuition and fees. The article stated that one of the reasons is that the government's money, which has come to some extent from tax dollars, should not be measured by their education performance in order for them to make better choices. It noted that they are
day is the right thing to do. Every time one visits the Web site of a Web site, one learns about their latest successes in sports, faculty, schol