A higher education degree is good for your health

Aldemaro Romero Jr.
CUNY Bernard M Baruch College

How does access to this work benefit you? Let us know!

Follow this and additional works at: https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs

Part of the Higher Education Commons

Recommended Citation
Romero, Aldemaro Jr., "A higher education degree is good for your health" (2015). CUNY Academic Works.
https://academicworks.cuny.edu/bb_pubs/899

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Baruch College at CUNY Academic Works. It has been accepted for inclusion in Publications and Research by an authorized administrator of CUNY Academic Works. For more information, please contact AcademicWorks@cuny.edu.
Disappearance remains an FBI cold-case file

Associated Press

This December 1938 file photo shows student William Gary who vanished in 1939 after enlisting in the Army legal fight to attend the University of Missouri's law school as its first black student.

Gary's parents, who moved to Kansas City in 1939 after attending a teacher's college in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, later settled in Chicago. As a result, he was placed in a separate school for black students. His parents have never given up hope that he is alive.

Gary's case is one of many that have been brought to the attention of the public through the advocacy of a group called the National Coalition of Black LawSchools. The group has been working since the 1970s to bring attention to the issue of educational segregation.

The coalition's website, www.ncbl.org, provides information about the case and other Supreme Court decisions that have addressed the issue of segregation in education.

Property taxes may rise in Chicago

CHICAGO TRIBUNE (AP) — A preliminary budget released by City Hall Thursday called for an increase in property taxes to help pay for pension deficits.

The city is facing a $1.4 billion deficit and is looking to increase property taxes by 2.7 percent.

The budget blueprint would also increase the city's property tax rate from $2.08 per $100 of assessed valuation to $2.15.

Mayor Lori Lightfoot said in a statement that the budget was designed to "provide the essential services our community needs while being fiscally responsible."