College of the City of New York.

December 10, 1888.

To the Board of Trustees:

Gentlemen—At a meeting of the Faculty, held this day, the subjoined Report was adopted, the President and the Secretary were directed to sign it and to transmit it to your Board.

Very respectfully,

Adolph Werner,

Secretary to the Faculty.
REPORT

To the Board of Trustees of the College of the City of New York:

Gentlemen—In compliance with section 19 of the Manual of the College, the Faculty herewith submit their report for the year ending June 29th, 1883.

Total \[ 1,239 \]

For the names of the students admitted, as required by the Manual, the Faculty respectfully refer you to the Thirty-fifth Annual Register of the College of the City of New York.

The class which was admitted at the examination held on the 4th, 5th and 6th of June, is the largest that has entered this College, and even deducting those who may reasonably be expected not to present themselves in September, it is certain that the Sub-Freshman Class of 1883 will be of unusual size. It is certain that the numbers admitted will tax severely the capacity of the college building to afford to all the requisite accommodation without undue overcrowding. And it is also certain that the corps of instructors, already lessened in numbers by several changes, will need additional members to enable it successfully to meet the increased demands upon it. The Faculty feel confident that this pressing need will be met by the Board by the appointment of suitable instructors.

In response to a resolution of the Executive Committee, the Faculty transmitted to the Board a plan for the establishment in the College of a two years' course of study, embracing English, Mathematics, and one foreign language, to be pursued in connection with a course of mechanical instruction in a workshop, the establishment of which had been determined by the Board, and providing further that this mechanical instruction might also be given to those students in the regular collegiate classes who might desire it, and who might be able to undertake it without detriment to their other studies.

The condition of the Commercial Course in the College has also for several years past received much attention and consideration both from the Faculty and the Board of Trustees. Several resolutions have been passed by the latter in regard to it, and the Faculty, in response to these, have at various times suggested changes which have in general been carried out. After long consideration of the whole subject by several committees, and much discussion, the Faculty finally on May 11th adopted a plan for an enlargement and extension of the course, continuing it through two years, and making it parallel to the course of mechanical instruction already recommended. This plan, with a statement of the reasons for its adoption, was transmitted to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees on May 25th.

The Trustees have also authorized the erection and equipment of a chemical laboratory, and have adopted plans which will secure for it very spacious and convenient accommodations. By this action, what has been for many years a great want of the College bids fair to be supplied in a liberal and generous manner, and the Faculty trust that their next report will contain an account of the advantage the College has derived from the increased facilities of instruction and practice thus afforded.

The Faculty would respectfully call the attention of the Board to the remarks made in their last Annual Report upon the necessity of additional assistance for giving instruction in English Composition.

The Faculty have to lament the death of Professor Charles Edward Anthon, who so long filled the Chair of History and Belles Lettres in this College. Our appreciation of his ripe scholarship, varied attainments, fidelity to duty and honesty of character, has been formally expressed in appropriate resolutions recorded in our Minutes. He died while on leave of absence, June 7, 1883, at Bremen, Germany.

On the 22d of June, the Faculty recommended the transfer of the study of Belles Lettres from the Department of History to the Department of English Language and Literature, as being more cognate thereto.

In presenting the foregoing report, the Faculty desire once more to express their lively sense of the attention and fidelity with which the Board has devoted itself to the interests of the College, and to assure it of their own continued endeavors to maintain its high standard.

ALEX. S. WEBB, LL.D.,

ADOLPH WERNER, President.

Secretary.
