THE NEW UNION

EDITORIAL

An American Student Union has been forged! Meeting in Columbus last Christmas week, militant student delegates to the convention to elect the new national executive committee and adopted a platform which embodies the principles of peace, economic security, and academic freedom.

A resolution adopted by the Student Council will hold a symposium on the American Student Union program, beginning January 9th, at 12 o'clock in room 45. The forum, the delegates who went to Columbus, Ohio, will outline their reports.

The principal speakers are to be: Mary Migliore, Y. W. C. A. delegate, who will speak on "The Role of the Student in the American Student Union," and Jack Kilian, secretary of the Student Council. The Student Council, acting editor of the Tickler, will talk on the formation of the ASU and the national student Union at the opening session of the A. S. U. convention. The Student Council will hold an open forum of the Student Union Thursday, January 9th, at 12 o'clock in room 45.

LOCAL CHAPTEARS OF ASU PLANNED

Steps for the organization of a regional chapter of the American Student Union on the campus of New York City schools and colleges were drawn up at a conference held in New York City on January 27th.

While clubs and Student Councils could affiliate with the National organization, the basic idea is to build autonomous groups. The ASU chapter which seeks a "united-front" with members of the American Student Union and the Student League for Industrial Democracy, the Student University League, and the National organization.

PLATFOM OF A.S.U.

- Because American students want peace:
  - Because we, like their forefathers, are devoted to freedom, peace, and equality.

- Because they seek education, and economic security:
  - The ten-day world-wide fight against the skyrocketing price of living is only a belated protest against the United States, whose government is throttling our freedom.

- Because the national Student Union believes that our society can and should provide a high school education for every person:
  - And industrial education for every person.

EDUCATION AND A JOB

The American Student Union believes that our society can and should provide a high school education for every person; and industrial education for every person. This proposition is not due to lack of ability or inclination on the part of these millions, rather, it is a lack of funds which prevents them from getting an education. In the distribution of the funds which would regiment American students of diverse political opinion, four hundred and twenty-seven delegates convened in Columbus, Ohio, on December 27, 28 and 29, and voted to form the American Student Union, as a non-partisan organization that would encompass within its folds thousands of college students.

Side by side, liberals, radicals, R. O. T. C. delegates representing 76 colleges and 37 high schools, formulated a program, which embodied the principles of peace, economic security, and academic freedom.

The ASU program, for he has always recognized the truth of statements such as the following: "The ASU opposes militarism in education not only because it is and has always been a brutalizing force but because it represents the preparations of the American Government for entrance into another world war."

And democracy, there has been a constant struggle between an alienized political elite and the plain people; it has been bitterly reflected in the attempt of many politicians to curtail public education. The dominant characteristic of the day has been unemployment after graduation, in which countries has produced a feeling of defensiveness and guilt easily exploited by reactionaries.

The attitude of the City College student to the ASU should take the tone of, 'We've been thinking these problems and reacting. It is up to us to talk in the name of the student body of the entire country.'

The primary aim of the ASU convention was to draft a program which would embrace all sympathy varying only in sentiment. The chapter must not stand as an instrument of the United States, but be a broad base. The chapter must be member of the American Student Union and the Student League, and the Student League for Industrial Democracy. Democrat, or republican, the chapter must be a non-partisan, non-political body. The chapter must dominate if it is to affect the liberal principles embodied in the ASU program.
