Vice President's Report (Robert Laurich)
Collection development committee recommended that the ARTFL and Current Contents databases be cancelled. Products that are kept may use different vendors. Rick Uttich (CC) spoke on the importance of Current Contents in light of the 80th St. science initiative. Marsha Ra pointed out that it cost $100 per search during the last fiscal year. Also that Table of Contents services is available via Ebsco Online and Science Direct.
Lexis/Nexis will be renewed.

The colleges entering the contract can purchase ScienceDirect records. The “Serial Solutions” product may be a useful tool for dealing with records.

ILL Taskforce announced that Intracampus borrowing would be available by the fall. Libraries were asked to check ScienceDirect titles before using ILL.

The Office of Library Services reported that ExLibris is not going as smoothly as expected. NOTIS may be extended while the ExLibris project is completed. Staff computers need 64megs to run Aleph500. Aleph500 Website is http://ols.cuny.edu. Username: Aleph500 (may be case sensitive) and Password: documents.

All librarians are asked to review EbscoNet. May 4th is the deadline for the recommendation of to the Council of Chiefs. SilverPlatter and CSA products may also be switched. Susan Vaughn indicated that you could link PsycLit with the Academic full-text.

Matching funds will be released to the libraries in early May.

The IL taskforce distributed draft 4A of the “White Paper”. This will be the final document after some minor changes are addressed.

The IL tutorial has hit a roadblock. Minnesota besides asking a $7,000 fee included a contact that was extremely problematic. The Chiefs are considering the tutorial from Cal Poly.

The Aleph500 Implementation Committee has formed an Instructional Materials Taskforce. The members of the taskforce are Michael Adams (GC); Alexandra
Publicity for Aleph will begin in the fall.

The Council of Chiefs will meet during the summer to deal with Aleph issues.

A call for nominees for the Council of Chiefs meeting went out. Deadline is prior to the May meeting to be held at the CUNY Law School Library.
