Faculty-student cooperation by consideration of the concept of education. Education, it used to be, was the training of the mind, led by the managers of absentee landlords, or is there need for co-operation from the faculty as well?

As a longer step, to be a step-chick in this branch; and that this school was not to be a mere extension of the higher learning places. It is the fact that Mr. Gold's case has been before the City College Administrative Committee.

Necessary indeed that this be done as a reminder.

Theco operation of the COMMERCE CENTER are capitalized. It is that the language Departments, composed of SCY,electron, teaches in the COMMERCE CENTER.

These by-laws, which provided that there be no collection of funds or any admission to the center, were due to the neglect of the Student Recreation Committee. For the sake of the students, the new by-laws will continue our opposition through the years.

We look to the Faculty Committee and Personnel of the COMMERCE CENTER for action.

First change affected the eligibility of the student manager of the University, as President, of the Athletic Association, and barreled from the executive office of the Student Council. However, members of the Inter-Council were exempted from the first rule.

To avoid conflict of opinion which existed in previous cases of resignation, a resolution was adopted whereby upon the resignation of a member, a general election would be held to determine the successor to office.

It was also decided that petitions for various council offices would be closed ten days after the first day of registration.

At the regular Council meeting Monday, the following chairmen of the various committees were elected: Charles H. Loeb, chairman of the Finance Committee; Edward A. Friedlander, chairman of the Education Committee; Myron M. Mauer, chairman of the Political Science Committee; and Sam Engler, chairman of the School Reforms Committee.

Henry Foner, secretary, attended and was re-elected President, and Myron Mauer, education commissioner, was chosen to the position.
