Dear Colleague:

You will receive, or have already received, a copy of A BROOKLYN BRIDGE TO MORRISVILLE, the report on the farm labor project of last summer, generally recognized as an important educational experiment.

The project was financed by city and state support, as noted in the report—plus services and financial contributions by the College faculty and students. Staff and students are being recruited for the 1944 project on the same basis as for the 1943 enterprise. In view of this circumstance it was felt that the College staff in general might be willing to contribute to a fund that would cover such necessary items as welfare and recreation.

Because of the restricted budgetary provisions we have no other way than this appeal to secure financial aid for phases of the project that concern both the welfare of the students and their educational development.

We are fully aware of the heavy financial burdens imposed on you by campaigns for funds, tax payments, bond purchases and more personal matters. Yet we believe that if you are in sympathy with the aims of this enterprise, and see in the project not only a war-time aid but a pioneer program designed to develop better understanding between the rural and urban segments of our population, you will wish to make some contribution to this work.

We hope that you will be able to help. Whatever contribution you feel free to give will be gratefully acknowledged. You may, in a very real sense, consider it your personal contribution to "Feeding a Fighter in Forty-four".

The enclosed envelope is provided for your convenience.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Friends of the Morrisville Project

P. S. Copies of the printed report, for distribution among interested members of the community as well as friends, are available either through this Committee or at the College Bookstore, priced at 25 cents each.