City College's Pauline Edwards Theater Director, Miss Faye Siemone, announced that the school's annual Swim Party will be held on March 11 in the gymnasium. The party will offer swimming, dancing, and other activities, and tickets are available at the box office.

In other news, the Student Council has announced a series of events for the upcoming week, including a Hula Queen contest, a Scholl Outbound trip to the Grand Canyon, and a Shabbat dinner at the Hillel House. The council is also working on a drive to support the war effort, with proceeds going to the United War Service Commission.

Incidentally, the school's new rifle range, which has been opened to student use, is located behind the gymnasium. Students are encouraged to take advantage of this new facility to improve their marksmanship skills.

The theater will also be featuring a new production, "The Sound of Music," which opens next week. Tickets are available at the box office, and the show is expected to be a huge success.
Compare Satisfaction at City, NYU and Columbia

By MICKEY RABINOWICH and SELMA BRENNER

The Ticker reports from a course in Public Opinion given last semester by Dr. Norman J. Ornstein, a member of the City College political science department. The course was open to all students and covered a wide range of topics, from the history of public opinion polls to current political campaigns.

The Ticker is registering some of the material from two of these reports which we believe are directly relevant to our readers. We are particularly interested in the comments of those students who have not had the opportunity to attend the course, as well as the opinions of those who have attended.

The study was conducted in two parts. In the first part, a questionnaire was administered to a sample of students at City College, NYU, and Columbia. The questionnaire consisted of 20 questions, covering topics such as political participation, political knowledge, and political preferences. In the second part, the students were asked to rate their satisfaction with the course and the instructors.

The results of the study indicate that there are significant differences in satisfaction between the three institutions. At City College, 72% of the students said they were satisfied with the course, while at NYU, 65% of the students said they were satisfied. At Columbia, only 55% of the students said they were satisfied.

In terms of political knowledge, the study shows that City College students are the most knowledgeable, followed by NYU students, and then Columbia students. At City College, 70% of the students said they knew a lot about politics, while at NYU, 65% of the students said they knew a lot about politics. At Columbia, only 55% of the students said they knew a lot about politics.

In terms of political participation, the study shows that City College students are the most active, followed by NYU students, and then Columbia students. At City College, 75% of the students said they had participated in some form of political activity, while at NYU, 70% of the students said they had participated in some form of political activity. At Columbia, only 60% of the students said they had participated in some form of political activity.

The Ticker's report on this study is based on the results of the questionnaire and the students' satisfaction ratings. We believe that this study provides valuable insights into the political attitudes and behaviors of students at these three institutions, and we hope that it will serve as a useful tool for those interested in political education.

City Five Meets NYU in Garden Wednesday

By Herb Thomas

Witnessed by 5000 spectators, the nationally syndicated basketball game between City College and NYU filled Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. The bugles sound tomorrow, and the victory of the Van Iveren's, due to the combined efforts of the Van Iveren's and the NYU team, brought smiles to the faces of the Van Iveren's.

In a press conference the Van Iveren's expressed their belief that the game would be a close one. They said, "We will be forced to rely on our own merits, but we are confident of our ability to win." The NYU team, on the other hand, said, "We are confident of our ability to win, but we will be forced to rely on our own merits." The game was played in front of a packed house, and the Van Iveren's won by a score of 62-58.

City Trounces St. Joe 85-47, B'lyn 57-54

By AL MILLER

In their most important win in the past two years, the City College basketball team defeated the St. Joseph's team Wednesday night by a score of 85-47. The team, which has been struggling in recent games, finally got the win they needed to boost their morale.

In the first half of the game, the City College team was able to control the game and lead by a score of 35-25. In the second half, the team continued to dominate the game and went on to win by a score of 85-47.

The team's victory was a relief to the fans, who had been waiting for a win for weeks. "This is the team we've been waiting for," said one fan. "They finally showed some heart and played well." The team's victory was also a relief to the coach, who had been struggling with the team's performance in recent games.

The team's next game will be against the Bryn Mawr College team, which is ranked first in the Northeast. The game will be played on Saturday night and is expected to be a tough one. The team will have to play hard if they want to come out on top.

Five faculty members out of nine do not like the facilities, two do as they feel that they have been poorly integrated. Other dislikes were the regimentation of the faculty and the slow advancement in rank.

While the choice of the students, the faculty thought that the most important reason for going to college was to prepare for a specific career and to serve in community life.

It is easily seen that the nine faculty members attached more importance to liberal arts training than did the students. None of the nine thought that required liberal arts should be less than 50% of the credits. In fact, all would increase the percentage of requirements.

Our curiosity quenched, we know that City College is typical of other colleges all over the United States. Among the many things that the students do at Columbia we do the same things. NYU students griped at the fact that the entire student body is in one place and that the student body is in one place.

Students want to know the experience that comes of having another college, having another way of life. They want the knowledge that can be obtained from mingling with learned men, whose ability and ambition have brought them success in their fields. All students want a good education.

SAA Scholarships Aim City Students

To give financial aid to undergraduate students, the Student Aid Association offers Tremaine Scholarships, loans, gifts and jobs. In granting the Tremaine Scholarships, preference is given to upperclassmen, the minimum requirements being one year's attendance at the college at $300 average. The war-time emergency and the return of prosperity has greatly decreased the number of scholarships that have been given. Applications are due by the beginning of each semester by Mr. Frank A. Thornell in 1007.
