Congressman Emanuel Celler and Mr. B. Netanyahu, outspoken Palestine editor of a Zionist newspaper, closed their presentation with a paean to open the door to the Palestinian people. The programs, another forum in the Hillel Society's series, will be sponsored by the Brandeis Society, affiliated with the Intiformal National Council of Jewish Students.

In hearing and questioning these speakers, students will be given the opportunity of obtaining firsthand information from two of the most prominent participants in the struggle to open the Holy Land to homeless peoples.

Jewish waving Representative Celler has left no stone unturned in his efforts to get more light on the desperate plight of the eight million Jews of Europe. Mr. Netanyahu has spent a great deal of his time in the United States and is now in the country to explain the situation of the Zionists.

Brooklyn-born Representative Celler has learned many lessons in an effort to educate the American public on the need for the establishment of a Jewish State in the Holy Land. He has also given his attention to the financially -crippled United Nations War Crimes Tribunals. The Tribunals' attention to the financial catastrophe of the United States and the Jewish Nation, as well as to the important link between the war in the Holy Land and the Nato anti-Semitism. The evidence was submitted last week in the Congress Record.

Palestine Editor

Mr. Netanyahu, as editor of "Bayyada", an outspoken Palestine journal, is an example of the official British press was closed down during the last war. The paper is again on the National Ledger, which is again in the newswrap shortage. The Associated Press, the United Nations News Corporation, the United Nations News Corporation, the United Nations News Corporation, the United Nations News Corporation, is still not a major leader in the field.

Citizens' Group Forms Collegiate Committee

Giving socially-awakening stu­dents a chance to express their known opinions, a City College chapter of the Independent Citizens' Groups of the Arts, Sciences and Professions is being organized. It was reported last week by Mrs. D. Blank, of the Government Department, who is acting as faculty advisor. An organizational meeting will be held Friday at 3 p.m.

An effort will be made at the first session to draw up a constitu­tion in order to supplement the present rules. The membership of the group is expected to be increased, and the added impetus is the initial get-together of the local chapter.

The national committee is composed of prominent figures in the Jewish community, including Jo Davidson, prominent lawyer who is chairman, Harold Ickes, vice-president, and such celebrities as James Roosevelt, Mrs. FDR, and Mr. Roosevelt. They have all committed themselves to "the liberal tradition of Franklin D. Roosevelt".
A Survey of Opinion

A survey made last week by members of the staff of The Ticker to light an understanding of the students’ views of the school. The survey was conducted by the student representatives of the student government, and the results showed that the majority of the students are satisfied with the school, although those who are not satisfied have reservations about certain aspects of the school.

The survey showed that the majority of the students are satisfied with the educational programs and the facilities. However, some students feel that the school could improve in terms of academic rigor and the availability of resources.

In terms of extracurricular activities, the survey showed that the majority of the students participate in some form of extracurricular activity. However, some students feel that the school could provide more opportunities for students to participate in activities that align with their interests.

The survey also showed that the majority of the students feel that the school is a good environment for learning and personal development. However, some students feel that the school could improve in terms of student support and counseling services.

Overall, the survey showed that the majority of the students are satisfied with the school, although there are areas for improvement. The student representatives will use the results of the survey to make recommendations to the administration to improve the school.
