I. M. THIRSTY SEEKS JOY

Wanderer Achieves Solace At Foam Party

By Ralf Oster

Last week we again came across I. M., a fellow who is a man after our own heart. We were laughing in a fashionable bar when we noticed a man who was very disappointed in the City College students whom he had met. We tried to restore his faith in human nature, but he was unimpressed. We tried to save him with our own happiness, but he would have nothing to do with us. He was sitting in a bar, drinking and smoking, but he was too occupied with his thoughts to notice us.

I. M. told us that he had been thinking about his misery. He had been sitting in the gutter as he said, and he had lost all his money. He had no one to turn to, and he had no hope of getting out of his misery. He was sitting in the gutter as he said, and he had lost all his money. He had no one to turn to, and he had no hope of getting out of his misery.

"I have to make my own bed," he said.

We felt sorry for him and offered to help him, but he refused. He said that he had made his own bed and that he had to live with the consequences.

"You'll have to make your own bed," we cautioned him.

"Swell. Here's a hammer and a rake," he said.

Thirstily, and with some cause, he declined and we noticed his messy crotch. This touched our heart so that we decided to help him. He was sitting in the gutter as he said, and he had lost all his money. He had no one to turn to, and he had no hope of getting out of his misery.

By Windy Ginsburg

With the increasing demand for summer jobs, the newly organized College Employment Service has initiated a vast investigating program to pursue previous unsought opportunities of employment. Cookies are being mailed to firms in the city and out-of-town resorts in an effort to get jobs which are ordinarily handled through other channels.

Mr. Kelly, head of the reorganized staff, comes from the Employment Service to take the place of Miss Strong who was forced to resign because of illness. Miss Pink, interviewer, and Miss O'Neill, receptionist, together with Mr. Kelly, form the new Employment Service staff.
