Students From Many Lands Play Soccer at City College

It's a good thing that the national college is not closed before the COOT goes out. It is the responsibility of the national college to be closed by the proper authority in order to avoid injury to students. The national college of the students which are responsible for the COOT would not be closed very probably.

The City College soccer team won its third consecutive game of the young season by downing Hofstra University-Cross Town, 2-0, at Van Cortland Park, and the Beaver harriers promptly responded by regaining a well-earned win over an experienced Hofstra aggregation. The City victory was accompanied by the fact that the Dutchmen finished one-two over the rugged, five-mile distance.

The winning times were turned in by Hofstra's Ed Rockford and Dave Lynch, both seniors, and both of whom were clocked in the identical time of 20:48. After these two positions, though, the Beavers aded the next. Only one other Dutchman finished in the first eleven.

Lou Casado led the Lavender booters with the victorious Hemstead duo in 20:29, and was teamed by teammates Gene Rocks in 21:03. City's Don Rosenberg and Joe Marini closed out the first and sixth, followed by Hofstra's Lou DeSilva. The next four positions were garnered by the Beavers' Herb Jerman, Fred Weitz, Tom O'Brien and Joe Grievious, in that order.

Coach Rothstein of the Beavers' harrier squad was naturally elated over the results, indicating that he had expected the point battle to be almost even going against the team that captured last year's Metropolitan Junior AAU championship. Certainly a lot of credit must be given to the City team's efforts, especially in showing新股 Joe Marcel, a newcomer to the squad, who placed sixth with a clocking of 31:55 in his first cross-country meet.

On the disappointing side, most of the City half-and-darters were well below their normal, time standards.

Frosh-Soph Brawls To Resume in Gym

By Stan Parace

The traditional frosh-soph battles, which consist of the snake dance, cage ball and tug o' war events, have been held over due to the repairs to the gym, and will take place today. The Frosh and Sophs are both looking forward to these events. The Frosh, who last year had a rather easy time defeating the Sophs, are determined to have their revenge. The Sophs, who were entered in last year's game 4-3 defeat, are determined to have their revenge.

Applications will be accepted tomorrow at 12 in 610A for the semi-annual IBM basketball tournament. Teams will be selected according to senior, junior, sophomore and freshman classifications. Members of last year's winning team, Post 54, will only be allowed to place two members on any one team.

The third round of the handball tournament will start this week, but there is still time to enter the tournament. Games are played Tuesdays and Thursdays. The winners will proceed to the next round. The tournament will be played in the Memorial Gym.

City's Harriers Victorious In First Meet of Season; Turn Back Hofstra, 26-33

Coach Harold Anson Bruce took the wraps off his 1951 edition of the City College cross-country team Saturday, at Van Cortlandt Park, and the Beaver harriers promptly responded by regaining a well-earned win over an experienced Hofstra aggregation.
