Slate Video Series For City Colleges

City College and the other municipal colleges—Brooklyn, Queens and Hunter—will present a series of 26 half-hour educational-television programs over station WABD, starting Saturday at 5.

Six telecasts will be given by CCNY under the supervision of Professor J. Bailey Harvey of the music department. The first program, to be presented on October 21, will discuss the role of a layman in the world. Subsequent presentations will concern "form and design" and "in-interpretation of Charles Dickens."

The object of the series, which will be called "Panorama," is to interpret and enhance the understanding and appreciation of the current events the municipal colleges, and to show how these institutions can be used by the community and individual alike.

"Panorama" will be divided into six broad topics—Issues in Education, Contemporary Developments in the Humanities, Contemporary Methods in Education, Vocational and Professional Studies, the Colleges and Scientific Research, and Contemporary problems in the Social Sciences.

Appearing on the opening telecast Saturday will be President Bud C. Gallagher, the president of the other municipal colleges, and the members of the Board of Higher Education.

Kinsey Scored at Forum; 'May Make a Man Afraid'

Dean Thomas L. Norton has called the Bernard M. Baruch re-naming ceremonies "the greatest convocation the School of Business has had or will ever have."

Emphasizing the expressions of appreciation that have been received from the guests, Dean Norton said, "the School has made a tremendous number of friends in business and public life. Outsiders who attended were astonished at the tremendous spirit that the students and faculty displayed. More than one person mentioned to me that he was impressed by the fine student body that we have at the School."

President Bud C. Gallagher called the response "immensely gratifying." Mr. Baruch was "greatly gratified by the proceedings," Dr. Gallagher added.

Noting that Mr. Baruch was deeply moved by the occasion, Dean Norton said that "one of the finest parts of the convocation ceremonies was the magnificent tribute given to him when he left. I personally knew that he was deeply touched and I believe that for him it was one of the high moments of a great day in his life."

Dean Norton further expressed his appreciation to Chief Marshall Edwin Hill and his staff.

Wagner to Air Party Platform

By Len Morgan

Robert F. Wagner, Jr., Democratic Party candidate for mayor, will review his platform Thursday at 12:30 in 4S. Students for Democratic Action and Young Democrats are the co-sponsors of the talk. The policy statement, Mr. Wagner, the son of the late Senator Robert F. Wagner, Sr., 90, is a member of the Board of Directors of the City College Foundation, beginning his political career in 1927.

Before taking public life in 1948, he was elected to the New York City Tax Commission. As a commissioner of housing and planning for New York City, he gained enough prominence to be appointed chairman of the City Planning Commission.

Elected borough president of Manhattan in 1938, Mr. Wagner, as a member of the Board of Estimate, was an opponent of the Transit Authority, and in his campaign is emphasizing his opposition to the Authority and its resultant higher fare.

Mr. Wagner also holds membership in many fraternal organizations, including the Knights of Columbus, the American Legion, National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. In addition, he has served as Past Exalted Ruler of the Elks and chairman of the National Committee for Re-Electing for the Catholic War Veterans.

U. S. History Called Potent

Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, Joseph Cavallaro, declared Sunday that "it is my belief that ignorance of our history contributes to the success of alien propaganda, so I am convinced that it would be asking too much that such study be required of all students in tax-supported schools and colleges."

Dr. Cavallaro also reiterated his position that the teaching of religion on a non-dogmatic basis, should be reintroduced into the curriculum.

Dr. Mortimer Feinberg, the first of four department members to speak, unleashed the interesting department forum.
Kinsey Scored...

Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, the noted sexologist, has scored another hit in his battle for the recognition of sex as a normal and natural part of human life. He has made his knowledge of sexual behavior available in a standardized interview method to his students and the general public.

Additional support for his work was found by Dr. Kinsey's latest publication, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male." The book, written with the cooperation of Johns Hopkins University and the National Institute of Mental Health, contains the results of a 10-year study of 4,300 men.

Dr. Kinsey's work has been criticized by some, but he maintains that his findings are based on scientific research and are not just the opinion of one man. He believes that sex education should be based on scientific facts, and that this book is a step in that direction.

Orientation Committee To Meet, Revise Self-Regulation

President of the Freshman Orientation Committee said yesterday that an important meeting of the committee will be held this week to discuss and revise the committee's regulations for self-regulation, which were announced last week. Presently the regulations are being compiled and checked by the committee and a list of the regulations will be sent to the committee.

"We have been in contact with the committee since last week and the regulations are being revised," said President of the Freshman Orientation Committee. "It is important to keep the regulations current and up-to-date."

The regulations were announced last week as a means of controlling the activities of the freshmen. The regulations include restrictions on the number of parties and social events that can be held by the freshmen, as well as restrictions on the number of guests that can be invited to these events.

President said that the regulations are being revised to make them more effective and to ensure that they are fair and reasonable. "We want to make sure that the regulations are fair to all students and that they are not too restrictive," said President. "We want to ensure that the regulations are effective in controlling the activities of the freshmen, without being too restrictive for the students."

Booters Battle B'klyn In Key League Fray

By Albert Ginsberg

The City soccermen and the booters from Brooklyn College will pick up where they left off in the 1952 campaign. Both teams will clash tomorrow afternoon at Lewisohn Stadium at 3:30.

In the deciding event, the snake game, the City booters carried off the five-man and unlimited tugs, while the frosh copped the 10-man rope dash.

*57ers the cage ball event by a margin of three goals over Kings Point. The Kings Point tilt was rough from the start, as two Wollemans, John Koutsantanou and Bill Bailey, were forced out of the game as the Booters built up a 3-1 lead early in the second quarter.

The Kings Point defensive line-up was that of the best in the league. The Tie was sufficient to give the crown to unattached Brooklyn, since the City record had been marred by a prior tie with Queens.

However, a determined City contingent hopes to recapture the Met soccer crown that it successfully lifted from the Kingsmen in 1951. If this season’s performances can be used as a yardstick, the Booters should experience little difficulty in breaking the Maroon. The defeated Brooklyn squad has already dropped a league contest to Long Island

City Nips Mariners In Rugged Contest

By Herb Nager

Some stellar defensive play by Lucien Daouphars, two key goals by Tommy Holm, and sheer aggressiveness on the part of Mike Yessis, a little-known substitute, blended admirably to give the City College soccer team a 4-3 victory over Kings Point in the Lavender’s Metropolitan conference opener Saturday at the Mariners’ home field of Great Neck, Long Island.

The game was made even more exciting by the fact that City had to win to regain the Metropolitan Conference championship.
