Eco Dept Sets Co-Op, Grant

A cooperative training program in economics and a $1200 economics fellowship will be available to seniors next semester, Jerome B. Cohen, sub-chairman of the economics department, announced yesterday.

Under the cooperative program, students specializing in economics will be placed by the department in part-time jobs. Credits will be awarded for the work from the College.

Students wishing to enroll in the course, Economics 300-301, should consult Professor Griffin. Credits will be offered for the year's work.

The economics fellowship is being offered to enable an outstanding student to finance his work at the College. The award is for the academic year 1954-1955 and will require participation one day a week assisting the department.

Applications for the fellowship will be submitted to Mr. Cohen by March 15.

The Business and Main Economy Societies at the Baruch School and Main Center Economics Societies, will go on sale beginning next week. The price is $1 for 25c a copy. The 48-page magazine is dedicated to Bernard M. Baruch to commemorate his re-naming of the school.

All articles in the issue have been contributed by students at City College except the lead story, which was written by Professor Griffin on the "Iron Ore Business in the World." Norman Adler, editor of the publication, has reviewed David K. Eshenhof's book, "Big Business: A New Era." Other articles have been written on "The Sherman Antitrust Case," "The Race Between Population and Development in India," "Fallacy Profits and Declining Profits in the Classical System," and the "Economic Recovery of Germany."

Decision Due On Holman, Sand Trial

The fate of suspended basketball coach Nat Holman and assistant coach Bobby Sand will be decided just thirteen days hence when the Board of Higher Education trial committee delivers its verdict at the January meeting of the BHE.

The trial, which lasted over six months and consumed almost 5000 pages of testimony, came to an end December 1.

Holman was charged with conduct unbecoming a teacher, neglect of duty, and failure to comply with a directive of the Board. Sand was charged only with conduct unbecoming a teacher.

The pair have been suspended since November 18, 1952. In addition to their positions on the College faculty and the retroactive pay due, Holman faces the loss of his 34-year pension privileges.

Quorum Call Delays Plan

A quorum call which found only 18 members in attendance halted the last Student Council meeting, shortly before the Christmas vacation, and barred the presentation of a proposal to revise the structure of SC.

The author of the proposal, Harvey Stein, said he would bring his plan up at the first Council meeting next semester.

Four Years of Memories To be Climaxed at Prom

With four years of memories fast drawing to a close, the Senior Class will hold its annual Prom Saturday evening, January 23, at the Essex House.

Tickets for the affair, which features the singing of Sandy Solo and the orchestrations of Dave Carlson and his band, will be distributed Wednesday, January 13, at the ninth floor booth or in the Lexicon office, 927.

Additional information supplied by Prom Committee chairman Dick Bogen and Bert Wasserman:

• Orders for tuxedos will be taken Thursday, January 14. Orders of $25 or more, and $250 for the total of all orders will be taken Thursday, January 14. Orders of $25 or more will be taken Thursday, January 14.

• Orders for flowers will be taken next week and during the week of final exam at the ninth floor booth or in the Lexicon office.

• Seating arrangements must be submitted to the Prom chairman by Friday, January 15, at the Lexicon office.

Dewey Rejects State U. Bid

Governor Dewey emphatically rejected last week Mayor Wagner's proposal to have the New York State University College incorporated as part of the State University of New York system for the year's Legislative session.

An assistant to Mayor Wagner, Charles Peer, said Wednesday that "without the support of the state, we cannot hope to push through our program."

Mayor Wagner's proposal came at a point in the session where the state was considering raising the state for an additional $143,000,000 in state aid for New York City. Governor Dewey charged that the request was "obviously in bad faith."

In his request, the Mayor declared that $13,000,000 annual educational cost of the college was "unjustified to any other community in the state is burdened. But Governor Dewey countered that if this request were granted, "additional new taxes would be required to provide funds for all state colleges and other communities."

Mr. Peer said that a majority of the college had been "in favor of the proposal in the past. But, really, they say that the state college is burdened, nearly always follows Governor Dewey's program."

The State University now operates ten-year and projected budgets, financially supported by the state. In addition, the system runs over two-year schools.

While attacking Mayor Wagner's proposal, Mayor Wagner pointed out that the Mayor "completely ignores the fact that for the first time in history the state has taken over the cost of teacher education in the city colleges."

Like Salami? Hear This! Get the urge to munch salami for a couple of hours? Then this is for you!

A contest sponsored by the City College Community Chest, which was expected to be the largest of this type ever held at the school, will cost five cents each.

The formal wearing ceremony will take place Thursday afternoon.

Carnival at Christmas Time," held Friday, December 18, included a $100 in state aid for the College. The "Can- dy Cane Drive," conducted by the Boosters, collected $25.

Rutgers Slated To Face Five

By Richard Kwartler

Following an inactive Christmas recess, City College's unpredictable cagers return to action Saturday night when they trek to New Brunswick, New Jersey, to face a strong Rutgers five. The Polanskymen will then take another three-week vacation from the courts before facing Wagner, Rider, Montclair State Teachers and Manhattan during intersession. The Beavers will meet both Wagner and Manhattan at the City Gym.

With a game marked by several temper flare-ups, the Beavers started off a late Brandeis rally to nip the Judges, 77-76, in a contest held prior to the Christmas vacation. Merv Shorr, Jerry Domerschik, and Jack McGuire were the top City scorers.

Wagner, which won its first five games of the season, looks as formidable an opponent as Coach Dave Polansky's charges. Two members of the Scarlet starting five, Walt Porter, a guard, and Jim Tighe, a forward, registered on 40% and 41% of their shots respectively. Last year, this year, however, the Jaspers boast a mediocre 4-4 mark, while Montclair sports an equally unimpressive 2-2 record.

Around 'n About

A Final Word

By Stan Pink

Last semester, my first as sports editor of THE TICKER, a few members of the track team informed me that they were more than somewhat dissatisfied with the coverage that their team received in this newspaper. Reasoning that the runners could do nothing but catch me, I fearlessly accepted the sports editor's position against this term. Recently, however, the fencers voiced a similar protest. When the gents with the swords start coming after me, I believe it is time to depart.

Seemingly, though, as I pen my "thirty" column, I would like to thank the many people who have been instrumental in aiding me turn out the weekly sports page. Lack of space prevents me from listing in detail the individuals whom I would like to thank publicly. It is a group that includes the coaches and athletes, the members of the AA office and Public Relations, my former Sports Editors, the members of the TICKER managing board and the guys on the sports staff.

Since entering CCNY in September of 1950, I have witnessed the birth of a new basketball era at the College. I, as not a prophet and will not attempt to predict whether or not the cagers will continue to improve as they did last year and again this season. However, the fact that three members of the starting five have been converted from inexperienced cagers into better than average performers here at the College enables me to at least sound an optimistic note for the future.

Working on an athletic budget that is comparable to a pair of pants without a belt or suspenders, City College still managed to win its first Met Conference baseball crown last May, and the day after Thanksgiving the soccer team copped its second Met championship in three years. Despite many handicaps, the Bears enjoyed one of their best athletic years in 1953.

After a while, writing the same things over and over becomes rather irksome. However, the many laughs that I enjoyed, the friends that I've made and the vivid experiences that I will remember for a lifetime, more than compensated for the accompanying headaches.

As I return again to the life of a weary student and patiently await the sheepskin that is slated for delivery this June, I realize that for a period of one year, I wouldn't trade the sports editor's spot even up for a majority interest in the New York Yankees. Well, not on an issue night, anyway.
