Another proposal was to join the 50 Charter, which was discussed here last Wednesday. The senate then voted to allow three representatives to the Board of Trustees.

The next step is for the Board of Trustees to decide if this proposal should be sent to the membership for a vote. If the proposal is approved by the Board of Trustees, then it will be put on the ballot for the membership to vote on.

The proposal is not yet final, and the Board of Trustees will have to make a decision on whether to approve it.

The University of Southern California (USC) and the University of California (UC) are facing a significant challenge in maintaining the balance of power in their respective conferences. The University of Southern California is currently leading the PAC, while the University of California is leading the Big Ten.

The University of Southern California has a significant advantage in terms of resources and facilities, which has allowed them to maintain their lead. However, the University of California has a strong history of success and has been able to attract top talent to their athletic programs.

Both universities are keenly aware of the importance of maintaining their conference dominance, as it provides them with significant advantages in terms of exposure and revenue. The two universities are currently engaged in intense negotiations to try to resolve this issue.

The University of Southern California would like to maintain their lead, but they are willing to make some concessions if it means they can continue to compete at a high level. The University of California, on the other hand, is willing to make some changes if it means they can maintain their status as a top conference.

The two universities are currently working together to try to find a solution that will benefit both of them. They are hoping to reach an agreement in the near future.
Young manager handles finances for $40,000,000 business

General Electric is made up of more than 90 product departments that operate as individual "businesses," and conducting its own legal, financial, manufacturing, engineering, marketing, and research activities.

One of the most important is the Technical Products Department that makes broadcasting and communication equipment and semiconductor devices. Responsible for managing the finances of the $10 million business is Robert H. Plank.

Plank's job is important, responsible.

In the next few years, the Technical Products Department is expected to reach the $100 million mark—more than doubling its present size. That's why Plank has kept his eye on everything from cost, and general accounting to budgets, quotations, and final details, and internal auditing.

20,000 College Graduates of General Electric

Experience gained in the Boston Training College and as a traveling auditor gave Plank a variety of financial knowledge like that of over 25,000 college graduates employed. He was given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. It was a four-year job to be expected of a General Electric engineer.

City Tops Queens As Jensen Stars

The City College basketball team ended a nine-game losing streak by defeating Queens College, 84-68. Friday night in Wingate Hall, bringing its record to 5-14 for the season.

The game, which was televised over WATV, channel 13, was decided by City's superior field goal shooting accuracy. The Beavers connected on 30 of 70 shots or 42.8 per cent, while Queens was only able to hit about 30 per cent of their shots.

Queens, which now sports a not too self-inspiring 6-6-1 record, drew first blood in the contest as Leo Saldinger, a guard, threw in a 30-foot set shot with about 15 seconds going in the first half. Then City took over.

George Jensen, who has fully recovered from his mid-season slump, began popping them in from the inside, drawing fouls in the process.

At the five minute mark, with the score, 10-5, in favor of City, Sid Levy and Ralph Scheffian began to give assistance in the scoring department, building up the score to 29-13. With less than five minutes to go in the half, the Beavers finally left the court at half time leading, 42-21.

After the ten minute intermission, the Beavers started from where they left off in the first half, continuing their torrid scoring pace.

Led by Jensen, who wound up as the evening's high scorer with 24 points, Scheffian and Levy, who controlled the boards, snaring 24 rebounds, the Lavender shot to a 32 point lead, 72-40, with about ten minutes remaining in the game.

The Queens, who had been playing dead for the most part, suddenly came to life. Employing a full-court press and aided by the talented shooting of Bob Bass, Queens brought the score to a ten point deficit, 77-67, with six minutes to go.

That was the nearest they came as Lou Bersen, Beaver captain, came off the bench and steadied the Beavers down with his fine ball handling and beautiful feeding.

Sorbera, Small in Stature, Gains Four Major Letters

Whoever it was that said, "little men should stay clear of sports," had clearly not met John Sorbera.

Last month, Sol Sorbera, 5-3, phy-ed major, became the first man in the history of the College to win four major letters. Furthermore, they were all won within the span of a year. Sorbera, who weighs only 125 pounds, captured his letters in cross country, rifletry, track and wrestling.

At present, the 23-year-old ex-Marine is Metropolitan Senior Champion in wrestling and in AAU competition is ranked third nationally.

As a freshman at the Baruch School, he managed to pass the wrestling room one day and, curiosity aroused, walked in. By the time the afternoon was over, Coach Al Tannenbaum had helped launch Sol's athletic career.

This spring, if all goes well, Sol will attempt to obtain an Olympic invitation by competing in the tryouts.

As captain of the wrestling and rifle teams, Sol said that his biggest thrill in sports came when he encountered the National Champion in wrestling, "I remember when the champ was unable to pin Sol, as the match was ended by a decision. The champ was from Queens, Sol, who graduated from Morris High School in the first place in his class.

The Beavers were without their top scorer, Morty Glasser, who won a $100 bet by shooting a perfect score in the tryouts. Glasser's absence forced Tannenbaum to substitute the likes of Sol and Bob Silver, 5-8, who should provide added board strength.

This marked the final act of the season for the Beaver fencers who finished with a 5-3 record. It was announced that Tannenbaum will attempt to obtain an Olympic invitation by competing in the tryouts.

The College's fencers got to a running start by garnering the first six wins and never looking back.
