Gallagher Rejects Appeal Of Five Campus’ Editors; Two Others Reinstated

President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday refused to rescind an order by Dean of Students Daniel F. Brophy suspending five editors of Campus for the remainder of the semester. Dr. Brophy ordered the suspension Thursday after reviewing the suspensions of the remaining editors. He also announced that the newspaper will be allowed to resume publication.

The difficulties arose after Campus published an April Fool issue Wednesday, April 4, which contained material administration officials called “indecent, vulgar, obscene and probably criminally libelous.” Seven editors were suspended immediately and the suspensions of Morton Schwartz and Sam Stein were lifted Thursday. Gallagher apologized publicly to Stein for his temporary suspension, but did not apologize to Schwartz because he remained silent and did not say that he was in part at fault.

In a statement issued to the press yesterday, the president said, “I am concerned that a member of the faculty or staff would justify summary dismissal. Are the standards prevailing throughout the community generally and applied specifically to teachers and administrators? I believe not. On the merits of the offensive publication alone, the offending person should be permanently expelled from the college.”

Gallagher, however, because of personal considerations to the students and their families, did not seek expulsion.

He said that when the fire returns to the College in the Fall semester, he will seek expulsion.

SC to Discuss Basic Issues

Student Council, instead of its regular business meeting, will debate its entire Friday evening session to a discussion of “Basic Values in Higher Education.” SC President Steve Mann has urged that all students and faculty members attend the meeting.

The discussion by SC is focused on a general trend in the academic community toward emphasis on “basic” educational problems. In this area all such issues as teacher salaries, faculty salaries, increasing enrollments and what the National Student Association calls “the education definition”—why are we in College?

In an action taken at Friday’s meeting, SC refused to authorize the in absentia resolution on the “Higher Education” motion of the “Attorney General’s List.” The resolution attacks the arbitrary continuation of the use of the lists, and its boycott by the council.

Disqualification Committee

On the recommendation of SC’s Disqualification Committee were: Berger ‘75, Fred Cooper ‘55, Lawrence Levy, English Department, Elise S. Nathan ‘67, Stu. Rosen, ‘70, and Howard Rubenstein, ‘70.

SC Prexy Mann Says, “Will Not Run Again”

Steve Mann, president of the Student Council, in a personal interview with THE TICKER, has asserted that he is “definitely not a candidate for re-election to the office of president.” He said, “I cannot assume the financial loss which would accrue if I maintained the executive position. I feel that I must go on the cooperative program next semester and I do not feel that I could devote the time necessary for the position.”

Thus far, there are three aspirants for the Student Council presidency: Dave Golitsky, Harvey Isaacs and Ida Rauker. When queried as to his opinions of the prospective candidates, President Mann stated, “Having worked closely with Ida Rauker and Dave Golitsky, I feel that she is capable of stepping into the presidency.”

In discussing his term’s program, Mann said, “The success of the Council is determined, not so much by the president, but by the Council reps in the cooperation and responsibilities which they show. I hope that the whole student body will devote itself to the presidency.”

City’s Baseball Team Beats Brooklyn, Stickmen Romp Over Adelphi, 9-3

By Danny Siegel

Scoring two runs in the seventh, the City College baseball team rallied to defeat Brooklyn College, 6-5, in the Beavers opening game of the Metropolitan Collegiate Baseball Conference, Saturday.

Previously, the City College lacrosse team, which entered the season by defeating Columbia University, 7-4, in non-league tilts.

After spotting the boys from Flatbush a run in the third, the Beavers took command with four runs in the fourth.

After two were out, Johnnie Ryan was given an intentional pass. Vince Ciccone hit the first pitch for a single. Raul Nazinovich filled the bases when Al Werner, the Kingman's ace hurler, struck him with a fast outside throw. A walk was then issued to Ted Brimat forcing in a run and evening the count at 1-1.

Fred Rivers, Beaver infielder, then crashed a single to center field, scoring Ciccone and Nazinovich. Fourwide, Trotta filled the bases again and another was pushed across when Bill Granam hit a sacrifice fly and Joe Perinachio. Gene Caiafa and Joe Perinachio. Gene Caiafa and

The Beavers clinched the win in the seventh. They opened the inning with singles by Lucich and Andy Tellinger. A passed ball enabled them both to advance to second. A sacrifice and a single to pull ahead of the Lavender, 5-4.

The Beavers were held by McQuade to four hits. He walked one batter and hit one with a pitched ball.

The Rams picked up five runs in the eighth frame on a walk, three errors and singles by Gene Caiafa and Joe Perinachio.

Scoring six of its runs within the first three innings, the Beavers began their season Wednesday by defeating Columbia, 7-5, at Baker Field.

Queens and Manhattan

The City College tennis team swished by its first two games in fine form, scoring a 6-3 win over Queens College and downing Manhattan College, 6-1.

In the singles, Jong played in the number two position and beat Eric Berman by scores of 6-0, and 6-2. In doubles, he teamed with Mel Dricman and stopped Bill McCarthy and Sid Ganter, 6-3, 6-4.

The number one spot for Beaver was filled by Guy Ferrara who defeated Ronald Stutta, 3-6, 6-3. He then combined with Jong Woodley to take the doubles match, 6-3, 6-4, from the Queens team of Stutta and Berman.

The final doubles match was brought to a close when the team scored against the City College of New York, 4-0.
