Baruch Gives $10,000 For Fifth Straight Year

By Andy Meppen
Bernard M. Baruch has given two gifts of $5,000 each to the Baruch School, it was announced by Dean Emanuel Saxe yesterday.

This gift marks the fifth annual contribution of Baruch, who was a member of the graduating class of 1889, to the Development Fund.

One of the gifts was made directly to the Baruch School, while the other was given through the City College Fund.

The City College Fund gift was given in honor of the fifth anniversary of the installation of Dr. Buell G. Gallagher as president of the college.

Baruch Development Fund

Both gifts will be used by the Baruch Development Fund of the School. In the past, the Development Fund has supported a number of special programs and projects at the College.

Groups Split Fees Money

The Fees Committee composed of the three student heads of the TICKER, Student Council and the Intra-Mural Board and their respective faculty advisors, met Friday, to divide this semester's Student Activities fees. It was the largest in Baruch School history.

THE TICKER received $3,605; Student Council, $6,615.11; and the Inter-Mural Board received $566.30.

Out of a total of $9,222.91, available for distribution, $1,457 was deducted for lounge furniture, Muzak, Student Life supplies and a contingency fund.

The unusually large sum of $680.91, consisting of undistributed fees, was included in the City College President-Buell G. Gallagher said Wednesday that the possibility of moving the Baruch School to the Uptown Center was being given serious consideration.

However, he added that there were several strong objections to such a move.

Friday, Baruch School Dean Emanuel Saxe said that he was "strongly opposed" to any such move. Dr. Saxe said that "as a business school, we must be located in the business community.'

Dr. Gallagher's main objection to any move was concern for the possible loss of many evening session faculty members and student life in the heart of midtown during the day. He stated, nevertheless, that this objection was "definitive, but is an important consideration.'

The question arose at Dr. Gal­

lager's press conference. He stated that no matter where the School might be moved, new development would be made. It is the lack of money for such major construction that caused the School to be taken over by the Baruch School, it was stated from this year's City College budget.

Dean Saxe said that since the Baruch School is a private school of business in the city, it must be centralized so that students from all boroughs would have no trouble reaching it.

He added that it must be situated in the heart of business community for the benefit of faculty members who hold outside positions and students who work after school. Dean Saxe defined the midtown area in which the School must

Professor Brandt:

History Chairman Dies of Stroke

By Charles Grupp
Professor Walter L. Brandt, sub-chairman of the College of History's History Department died Wednesday in his home. The 60-year old teacher suffered a cerebral hemorrhage.

Baruch School Dean Emanuel Saxe said: "The members of the Baruch School faculty are deeply saddened by the passing of one of our late colleague, Dr. Walter L. Brandt. Professor Brandt was a great believer in the intrinsic ability and character of Baruch School students and they, as well as his colleagues in the faculty, will miss him sorely.'"

"Severe" Loss

Professor Joseph K. Wilson, Chairman of the department, told THE TICKER: "He was a wonderful man and has been a dear friend to us. We have been faced with the sad task of notifying his friends and family that he died in his sleep, apparently asleep at his desk."

Dr. Brandt's death was confirmed by his wife, who is a teacher at City College in New York.

Baruch School, 111 East 25th Street, also informed the teaching staff at City College in New York of the passing of an older professor. In 1943, he was named sub-chairman of the History Department and in 1948 he received a full professorship.

Dr. Brandt was born in South Dakota and received his bachelor's degree from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa. In 1917 he earned his master's degree at the University of Wisconsin, wherein he obtained his doctorate three years later at the same institution.

Before coming to City College, Dr. Brandt taught at the University of Wisconsin, Western Reserve University and the State University of Iowa.

Zion Lutheran Church

Professor Brandt was very active in religious affairs. He served on the Board of Directors, board of directors of the Zion Lutheran Church of Brooklyn. In addition, he was its president of his congregation.

In 1956, he was elected to the Board of Education of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

In closing his talk, he pointed out that church officials have stated that church is a potential delinquent and all children should be instructed in self-respect and self-discipline.

The real "villains of the peace" he said, are the news media, all persons who adopt a feeling of self-righteousness, and strike a pose of morality. In such cases, the advantage of unnecessary self-assurance makes their Olympic oratory fit for the children of the desolate.

The organization sponsoring the meeting is composed of members of the Baruch School faculty, who volunteer to eliminate cases of "demonogrophy." The "compassionate" people referred to in his talk were George Godfrey, principal of the John Marshall Junior High School in Brooklyn, Godfrey, himself, when confronted with a possible indictment on unspecified charges.

Later on in his talk, Dr. Gallager admitted that cooperation was needed between the schools and said that "in controlling anti-social impulses and bringing youth to maturity and self-discipline."

The Curriculum

There is a growing feeling at the Baruch School that its students are not adequately preparing for the real world and that a change in the curriculum is needed. Students and faculty alike are concerned about the lack of practical training and the type of education they are receiving. They feel that the curriculum is not meeting the needs of the Student Body.

Add New Courses

The Baruch School of Business and Public Administration is considering adding new courses to its curriculum. These courses are aimed at providing students with a more practical education and better preparing them for the real world.

Add courses in:

- Business Ethics
- Entrepreneurship
- Financial Management
- International Business
- Project Management

These courses will provide students with the knowledge and skills necessary to succeed in the business world.

Frost Tours Trains Training Methods

Professor Attacks Train Lines

By Anne Sigmond

Most graduates of business schools are concentrated on developing skills in the areas of management and finance. However, many employers feel that these skills do not fully prepare students for the real world of business.

Dr. Bernard Rosenberg, an economics professor at the School of Business and Public Administration, has been critical of the current curriculum at the Wharton School of Business.

"I have found that many of the courses at the Wharton School are not relevant to the real world," Dr. Rosenberg said. "Many students are not prepared for the challenges they will face in the business world.

"I believe that the curriculum should be reformed to include more practical training," he added.

Dr. Rosenberg has proposed a number of changes to the curriculum, including the addition of courses in business ethics, entrepreneurship, and international business.

The management staff of the Wharton School has been receptive to Dr. Rosenberg's proposals and is considering implementing them in the next academic year.

"We are always looking for ways to improve the curriculum," said the director of the School of Business and Public Administration.

"We want to ensure that our students are well-prepared for the real world of business."

SPORTS

Polanskymen Play Rams at Fordham

Jim Cunningham of Fordham University and City College's Hector Lewis will be the centers of attraction tomorrow night when the Beavers take on the Rams in the Bronxies' gymnasium.

Said one of the top scorers in the nation last season and a possible All-American selection this year, has been the Rams' big gun since he joined the varsity three years ago.

With an amazing jump shot and tremendous speed and driving ability, Cunningham has averaged about 25 points a game so far this year. A sure bet for All-Met at season's end, the 6-5 senior is probably the best player Fordham has had since the graduation of Ed Conlin.

Hector Lewis

Hector Lewis

Lewis, the player upon whom coach Dave Polansky will rely to help turn back the Rams, will have to be in top form if the Lavender is to again upset the Bronzebacks. The 6-6 junior has been one of the most potent of Polansky's squad. Against St. Francis, Lewis completely bottled up the Terriers' Al Innis, both outrebounding and outscoring the Terrier star with 17 points and 14 rebounds.

IMB to Hold Cage Contest

The Intra-Mural Board has planned a full schedule of events for the coming term. The Fresh-Soph battles will open the semester February 20. The classes will compete in a tug o' war, a friendly game of cageball and a mass basketball game.

A basketball tournament will begin February 27; applications will be available in 610A.

The semi-annual co-ed dip will be in April and the Carnival of Champions will be held in May. Late in the term the Faculty will meet the students in their annual contest. Last term's game was won by the students.

Baruch '5' Beatens, 68-59, To Face Beaver Frosh Next

A second half rally by the Baruch basketball team fell short by nine points as the Baruchians lost to Long Island University, 68-59, Wednesday. Their record now stands at 9-9.

Trailing 33-17 at halftime, the Baruchians went into a zone defense in the second half and were able to come with five points of the Blackbirds with minutes remaining in the contest. However, the rally fell short when LIU converted two foul shots and took control of the ball to secure the quick basket and clinch the victory.

The loss was due mainly to the Baruchians' inability to hit from both the field and foul-line. High scorers for the team were Bill Gallantini with 19 points and Jack Ross with 11.

ECNY Visits Kingsmen Meets Queens Monday

By Isaac Sultan

Dave Polansky's Baruch Rams defeated Brooklyn College Roosevelt Hall Friday night in an attempt to duplicate their January victory over the Kingsmen.

The Beavers romped over Brooklyn by a margin of points in this season's first meeting of the long-standing rivalry. Brooklyn's high-scorer, Nick Gaetani, was subdued by the City College defense, held to far less than usual mark of 20 points.

Gaetani is the Brooklyn averaging well over 20 point game; the senior is the big man in the school's history.

In Brooklyn's 66-64 victory, the Hunter College, Gaetani scored 25 points. He tallied points in his team's 91-71 rout the hands of St. John's. In six contests, he proved to be a notch playmaker and will definitely be a threat against the Beavers in the tournament. In which Gaetani avenges his previous sub-par performances the contest against the Kingsmen.

Brooklyn's recent loss to winner brought their overall record to 6-3.

Joe Bennardo:

Inexperienced Ballplayer Succeeds

By Sid Davidoff

It is both difficult and unusual for a man with hardly any basketball experience and lacking the advantage of height to win a position on the starting varsity. Under the coaching of Dave Polansky, Joe Bennardo achieved this.

Bennardo, a 5-9 senior majoring in mechanical engineering, started playing basketball for the Col­lege as a freshman. He did not play on the varsity during his first two years and had no real experience until he came to City. At this time Polansky was the coach of the freshman team and from him Joe learned the defense and offense of the game.

"I consider coach Polansky not only a coach and instructor, but also a good friend," says Joe. With the help of Polansky, the Joe earned a starting spot on the varsity.

Last year Bennardo was one of the main reasons City College started the right to play in the college division tourney of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

So far 35 Foot Set Shot

Joe's biggest thrill came last year in the Fordham game when he sunk a 35 foot set shot in the last three seconds to give City a 58-56 victory.

Thus far this year, co-captain Bennardo has been the playmaker of the team, and second high­scorer on the squad with a twelve point average.

Joe's best games were against Adelphi with 22 points, and Hunter Avenue Bridge, north on Grand scollored 28 in the straight-set advan­tage.

SPORT SHORTS

City College's swimming team halted its losing skid when it defeated Brooklyn College 44-42 in a meet held at the City College pool, Friday night. The victory was the team's second in six outings. Its next meet is Friday evening attended by the University Heights pool; the meet is scheduled to start at 6:30.

The College's fencing team suffered its third defeat in five outings when it was defeated by Harvard University, 17-10, Saturday afternoon. The only triple winner for the Beavers was Baruchian Manny Fineberg who posted three victories in the saber competition. The team's next match is tomorrow against Brooklyn College at the Wingate Gymnasium.

City College's rifle team was defeated by West Point, 1,450-1,391 at the veteran's range, Saturday afternoon. The losing sets were tied 10-10, against St. Peter's Col­lege, Friday, February 21; match will take place in beer.

The College's women's basket­ball team will meet Wagner College, Wednesday, February 26. The game will take place at Finley Center Park Gymnasium at 7:00.

City College's basketball team will have an opportunity to its second straight Manhattan League crown which means Brooklyn College and Queens College in basketball, this week. The Beavers currently are tied for the lead with both teams sport 5-1 league records. Last year, the Beavers won the crown when they defeated the Kingsmen in a contest played in the Wingate Gymnasium. Queens College's basketball is in a vacuum at the present time.
