Uptown City Hears Gates

John Gates, former editor of the Daily Worker, addressed a student group at the Finney Student Center Wednesday.

Gates reiterated his view that the Communist Party, for all practical purposes, had ceased to exist. However, he said that he still had no faith in capitalism. He contended that a Socialist movement was needed in the United States, and declared that there is "a base right now for a radical movement in this country."

Gates had been previously barred from speaking at the municipal colleges because he had been convicted under the Smith Act. However, after he had re-signed from the Communist Party the Administrative Council of the Board of Higher Education decided that he could speak. Gates was invited to give his address by Observation Post: an uptown student newspaper.

The Other Side

By Stewart Kampelmacher

It's a simple and straightforward statement, but it was very significant. Today it is virtually unheard of.

To some people, the statement, "It's a simple and straightforward statement, but it was very significant. Today it is virtually unheard of." is a form of Marxism. To many others, it is the voice of the same individual that is used as the basis of saying: "But, in certain instances, it is the basis of the 1917 Russian revolution." The statement, "It's a simple and straightforward statement, but it was very significant. Today it is virtually unheard of." is a reflection of the editor's personal opinions and is not related to the current political climate. In the field of education, it is significant that the editor has used a form of Marxism in his statement, "It's a simple and straightforward statement, but it was very significant. Polansky Bids ‘5’ Goodbye; Stars to Return Next Year

By Larry Seem

Although one couldn’t tell by his warm smile, it was obvious that Dave Polansky was finding it exceedingly hard to say farewell to the Beaver after five it suffered a 61-59 defeat at the hands of New York University.

Polansky has taken the helm during Nat Holman’s two-year absence and has earned the admiration of his players and critics alike. Despite the eight point loss to the Violets, Polansky was pleased with his team’s efforts.

In the dressing room, the coach remarked, ‘The boys’ spirit and desire made this a very enterprising team to me.” Asked if he would return to his former post as freshman mentor, Polansky replied, “If they assign me.”

When Holman takes command next season, he will have at his disposal most of last year’s squad. Joe Bennardo and Bob Silver are the only graduating starters. Silver, a forward and co-captain of this year’s team, proved to be a bulky under the boards.

The loss of Bennardo, a sparkplug with a deadly two-hander, could prove to be a disastrous one. Holman’s main problem will be that of finding a replacement for Bennardo, who directed the Beaver floor attack.

On the brighter side is the return of four of this season’s top scorers, three of which are returning stars. Johnny Bucek of the 1957-58 season, he turned St. John’s Alan Seiden and N’YU’s Mike Gomshay. Heetor Lewis, Julio Delatorre, Baruchians Rudy Romanich and Herb Brandwein are held as possible varsity material for the coming season.

The 1958-59 version of the College’s basketball team should be able to improve on this season’s record. Although it is still quite early, the indications seem to be for a team that will be able to score at a much faster pace than this season’s. While the loss of Bennardo could very possibly put a dent into the Lavender attack, there seems to be sufficient material for a good defense. The rebounding department should also be manned adequately next season despite the loss of Silver.

Fencers to End Campaign In EIFA Title Tournament

The College’s fencing team will conclude its 1957-58 season Friday and Saturday when it competes in the Eastern Intercollegiate Fencing Association Tournament at the Concourse-Plaza Hotel.

City fencing coach Edward Lucia is hopeful of winning the saber matches this season. “He is banking his optimism largely on Baruchian Manny Fineberg who was a stalwart for the Lavender during the past season. The two Top rebounder for the Lavender during the past season was Baruchian Bob Silver with a total of 193 rebounds. The only other man on the squad to obtain more than 100 rebounds during the season was Joe Ascher with 123.

Other Men Expected to Compete for Bennardo, who directed the Beaver floor attack.

The Carnival of Charleston, IMB’s version of the Decathlon, will be held March 27 and April 3. The events will be held in the gymnasium and East River.
