High Court Rules Against
Hearing Reinstatement Suit

By Leonard Dworkin

Arthur Steier, 24, expelled from Brooklyn College in December, 1956, suffered another setback in his battle for reinstatement, when the Supreme Court refused to hear his case last week. Steier, who claims his dismissal was arbitrary had previously been ruled against by both the District Court and the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Although Steier admitted that his chances for a rehearing are slim, he hopes to have the case remanded to the Circuit Court where all seven justices would sit in judgment.

While Judge Ernest Gibson, in the majority opinion of that decision, felt that the court would be usurping state function if it considered the issue, Judge Charles E. Clark, in a minority opinion, held that Steier's case is not one of

After attending the students' committee meeting by special invitation of the business manager, the eight students who were chosen by the committee met on the third floor, Mr. B. 35.11.

The business manager received the impression that the meeting was not well attended. He was supposed to be the only one who actually attended the meeting, but he was not sure. It was agreed that the attendance at the meeting was not the best and that it should be improved. The eight students were asked to be more active in the meeting and to be more ready to participate in the discussion.

The business manager expressed his concern about the lack of attendance at the meeting. He was of the opinion that the majority of the students were not interested in the meeting, and that they were not willing to participate in it. He suggested that the students should be more interested in the meeting and that they should be more ready to participate in the discussion.

He also pointed out that the students should be more active in the meeting and that they should be more ready to participate in the discussion. He suggested that the students should be more interested in the meeting and that they should be more ready to participate in the discussion.

Sabre, Foil Teams Unbeaten As Beavers Crush Brooklyn

Ed Lucia's fencing team closed out its 1959-60 regular dual-meet season Saturday, with a 23-4 win over the Brooklyn College Knighties. The win was the team's sixth against only three defeats, in contrast to Brooklyn's

The Beaver total was the highest the team had run up in several years. The previous high this season was 30 points, both in the Rutgers match early in the season, and the Harvard match two weeks ago.

Fencing Tournament: Friday and Saturday, as a roundup of the season, the teams will compete in the Intercollegiate Fencing Association tournaments in the Bronx.

In other fencing matters, Mike Goldstein was elected captain of next year's squad.

Captains

Two upperclass students have been named co-captains of the 1960-City College baseball team. They are Bill Sullivan, a center-fielder, and Bill Nickerson, a catcher.

Bill Sullivan led the Metropolitan League in batting last year.
