Everett Resigns Top Position; No Successor Plans Decided

By Tolfi Nicas

Dr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, chancellor of the Board of Higher Education, has announced that Dr. John R. Everett, chancellor of the City University of New York, has resigned.

Dr. Everett's resignation was moved with shock and deep regret by Dr. Rosenberg. The Board of Higher Education in its April meeting decided to recommend to the BHE that Dr. Everett be relieved of his duties as chancellor of The City University of New York. The board was unanimous in its decision that Dr. Everett was not suitable for the position of chancellor of the university.

The forty-three-year-old educator will be present at the ceremonies in his capacity as chancellor of The City University of New York.

A New Downtown Site with New and Larger Facilities for Baruch School was recommended by the Board of Higher Education at meeting last night.

In addition, the "eventual elevation of the Baruch School to the status of an independent college in the City University system" was also recommended.

The report recommended that the new facilities for the Baruch School be shared by the presidents of the City University system.

Baruch to be Present at Ceremonies Today

Bernard M. Baruch and Dr. Buell G. Gallagher will be present at the Baruch School on May 25 to witness the dedication of the bronze beaver in the Student Center.

The dedication will take place on the annual Founders' Day activities which will be planned for today. The activities will be held on the campus.

Bob Brooks, editor-in-chief of THE TICKER, and next semester's Student Council president will accept the beaver.

Dr. Everett has played an important part in initiating the doctoral program to start in September 1965. Dr. Rosenberg claimed that the board is "grateful for the tremendous impetus the chancellor put into the creation of the City University." Without him we would have not have it.

However, recently there has been strong criticism of the lack of financial support provided for the new doctoral program by the state and city. Although Dr. Everett had urged a doctoral program to begin in nine fields, funds are available for only four fields. It has been noted that there were many bitter behind the scenes arguments about the graduate program, in which the board frequently disagreed with the chancellor.

The chancellor has stated that he would not be available for any future positions in the City University system.

Dr. Everett has been a comparatively salary and inadequately de- rate

Beavers End Season With Loss to Hunter

City College's baseball team ended a disappointing season by losing to Hunter, 9-4, in a non-league encounter Thursday on the Hawks' field. It was the Beavers' seventeenth defeat in nineteen outings.

They finished in eighth place in the Metropolitan Conference with a 2-12 record. This is the ninth time since 1963 that the Beavers finished in the second division for the first time in four seasons that the team has finished in the second division.

The Beavers dropped their final league tilt to Met champion St. John's, 14-2, May 14 on the winners' field.

However, hopes for next year are brighter since the team's leading pitchers are returning. Mike Lester and Zane拉m

Columbia had to wait until the final event to defeat a stubborn City College track team, 59-49, 63-59 at Baker Field Saturday. It was the Beavers' third defeat in six dual meets.

The Lions victory in the one-mile relay put them on top. It was Columbia's thirteenth first place of the seventeen events.

City's Benny Zane won the one-mile run in his best time of the season, 4:25.5. The Lavender also had the first three finishers (Mike Dufy, Mike Lester and Zane) in the two-mile run.

Athletic Tradition Praised

Awards Presented At Sports Night

The City College sports tradition (scholastically talented students who excel on the athletic field) was praised at the college's twentieth annual All-Sports Night Thursday at the Prince George Hotel.

Twenty-seven players were accorded special honors, while 236 major and minor letters were awarded at the dinner attended by more than 500 C.C.N.Y. athletes, alumni, faculty members, friends and students.

Benny Friedman, director of athletics at Brandeis University and former football coach at City, was the guest speaker. Friedman was a former all-American gridiron star at Michigan.

President Buell G. Gallagher also spoke and expounded the College's free tuition policy. He noted that 34 schools which offer no athletic scholarships must put an extra drive into sports contests.

Other speakers were Dr. Gustave Rosenberg, the chairman of the Board of Higher Education, and LeO Klauber '33, the president of the Alumni Varsity Association.

The toastmaster, Clifford O. Anderson, was a former Beaver basketball standout in the early 1920's.

Mr. Anderson made a special point of introducing Dr. Rosenberg, believing that many freshmen would confuse him with Nat Holman.

Mr. Klauber's talk concerned the College's future athletic policy. He said that the teams' schedules should be made with schools of above average academic qualifications. At this remark, fencing coach

Houtkuyer Cite As Athlete-of-Year

Ed Lucia beam ed, His team played mostly Ivy League schools.

The College's athlete-of-the-year award, the Ben Wallace Memorial Award of the Class of 1953, went to Andre Houtkuyer, a senior soccer goalie. Houtkuyer is in the armed services and Coach Harry Klarin accepted the trophy for him.

The Walter Tunick Award as the most valuable basketball player was awarded to Tor Nilson, a Tri-State League first team selection and an all-Metropolitan major college second team choice.

Nilson also received the National Scholarship Award for his former basketball coach. This presentation evoked a round of applause, in appreciation for Professor Holman.

Mike Winston was honored with the Dr. Morris Schwartzfarb Basketball Award for the most improved player. Winston had his scoring average by more than 6 points from his junior to senior year.

Nilson and John Orlando of the lacrosse team were given the Varsity Award at the dinner attended by more than 500 C.C.N.Y. athletes, alumni, faculty members, friends and students.
