Council Voting Tomorrow; Executive Assembly Fails

Ten Appear to Hear Executives

By Tom Nicas

Candidates for Student Council executive positions cancelled their scheduled debate Thursday when only ten students appeared in the auditorium, the site of the event.

The poor showing was termed an extreme disappointment by the candidates. In a similar forum run for class representatives last week only six students appeared.

Inadequate publicity and student apathy were the reasons cited by the candidates for the failure of students to appear.

As a reaction to the attendance at both election assemblies, Andrew Radding '60, Campus Affairs Committee chairman, announced his intention to disband future assemblies.

The election assemblies were initiated this semester for the first time in several years as a reform measure demanded by members of the student body. In the fall elections over 500 students signed a petition protesting the failure of candidates to make themselves heard on School Issues. At that time, forty students also par­

The major portion of the program will be filled by members of the faculty of both Day and Evening Session.

Speakers from the Baruch School include Dr. Thomas Karis (Politi­cal Sc.), Dr. Edward Sagarin (Soci­ety), Dr. Joseph Ellis (His­tory), Dr. Robert Weintraub (Eco.), Dr. Bhek­pati Sinha (Polit. Sci.), and Pro­fessor Daniel Parker (Polit. Sci.)

Barney Taylor, a representative of the Department of State, was scheduled to appear in order to present the government's position. The TICKER has recently been informed that Mr. Taylor will not be able to attend since he was sent to the Dominican Republic.

We have been assured that the State Department is doing everything possible to schedule a replacement for Mr. Taylor.

Because of the serious situation in the Dominican Republic, the sponsors of the teach-in have asked Professor Ellis, an expert on Latin American affairs, to speak on the recent events in the Caribbean, and to relate them to the present situation in Vietnam.

Professor Robert Engler, a political science instructor at Queens College, will also be present.

Mardi Gras Queen Selected; Depass Entertains Students

Angela Lo Re '68 was crowned Mardi Gras queen Saturday, May 1, before a crowd of more than 200 people.

FRED SCHWARTZ

Executive Vice-President of the Student Council, announced the selection of Miss Lo Re.

The selection was made by Miss Lo Re herself, who was crowned by last year's Mardi Gras queen, Susan Jaffe '67.

The winner was chosen from among 30 eligible students by last year's Mardi Gras committee.

The Mardi Gras queen was to appear at last year's Mardi Gras, held on April 17.

Polls Open 9-3 In Main Lobby

Student and Class Council elections will be held tomorrow 9-3. The voting will take place in the lobby of the main building.

The voting privilege is extended to all matriculated Day Session students. To be matriculated a student must be attending the Baruch School with a minimum twelve credits load.

To vote a student must present his or her identification cards to the student manning the ballot box.

If a student forgets either of his cards, he should go to the registrar's office, 306, and obtain proof of class and registration.

All students are eligible to vote for the entire Student Council executive board and the National Student Association delegates.

In addition, students will be asked to vote for their Class Council officers and Student Council representatives from their class. All classes are entitled to six repre­sentatives.

Prom Changes Location; Lowers Admission Price

Major revisions in plans for the senior prom, including a change of location and a reduction in prices, were announced by the Prom Committee.

The objective of the change, according to David Zeidman, president of the Class of '65, was to provide a prom of equal quality to the one planned at the Malibu Beach Club (the original location) but at a greatly reduced price ($17).

The new senior prom, to be held June 14, the day previously planned, at Forest House, in Lake Miss­bolic, New York, will include a complete smorgasbord featuring unlimited liquor, Mr. Zeidman said.

Dinner will be a seven-course meal featuring prime ribs of beef.

Traveling time to the new location is fifteen minutes more than it would have been to the Malibu Beach Club.

Explaining the reason for the change, Mr. Zeidman said, "After three weeks of ticket selling, the executive board of the Class of '65 and the Prom Committee concluded that they had underestimated the number of students who would attend at $30 per couple."
Clear your eyes for a second, and imagine you’re seated at a prestige business conference. The topic of discussion is, of course, the student role in college-wide issues. The participants are a mix of seasoned professionals and emerging leaders, all engaged in the discussion, which is being held in the New York Times building, and judging by their expressions, they’re performing admirably.

Are you feeling a bit lost? I’m not here to provide a summary of the conference proceedings, nor am I here to analyze the strategies used by the participants. Instead, I’m here to share with you a personal reflection on the event.

As an AI language model, I don’t have personal experiences or feelings, but I can imagine what it might be like to attend such a conference. I can infer that the participants are likely to be feeling a range of emotions, from excitement and enthusiasm to frustration and confusion.

In the real world, such conferences are often attended by professionals who have a vested interest in the outcomes. They may be there to learn new skills, advance their careers, or simply to socialize with others in their field. The atmosphere can be intense, with a focus on achieving goals and making connections.

One thing that’s clear is that conferences like this one are an important part of the business world. They provide a platform for sharing knowledge, fostering innovation, and building relationships. But they can also be overwhelming, with a lot of information to process and a lot of people to interact with.

As an AI language model, I don’t have the ability to attend conferences, but I can certainly imagine the experience. I hope this reflection has been helpful to you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Society Criticized

The latest edition of "The Arts" was one of the best issues of that periodical that had appeared so far in this school year. It contained articles by the students that were well written and informative. The section on art was particularly helpful in presenting the students' views on current art exhibits and trends. However, I would like to see more articles on the relationship between art and society. The Black Power Movement and the Civil Rights Movement are important issues in our society today. Art can be a powerful tool for expressing and promoting social change. I hope to see more articles in future issues of "The Arts" that address these important issues.

City Drops Four One-Run Games

Three Conference Losses Dash Nine's Title Hopes

By Bob Stern

It was reported this space last week, that the Beaver 'nine,' was running down the All-American Conference. At that time, the Beavers were one half game out of first place.

But this is another week. In five short days, the Beavers were parted from their championship hopes. They lost four consecutive games.

Three of those were league games, and City was eliminated from the race.

One interesting factor in the losses was that they were all by one run. They were all decided in the ninth or tenth innings, which until this week had been the Beavers' favorite scoring time.

Two games came at the hands of Seton Hall in a league encounter at South Orange, this Saturday, the one in this conference.

The second, neither team had scored. But in the bottom of the tenth, Seton Hall pinched a left fielder to drive in a run. Lou Henry was the loser, as he held the opposition to only six hits.

At Hofstra Saturday, there was more scoring, but the results were the same. The Flying Dutchmen knocked the Beavers on a walk to McDonald, and a long home run by Cherubino, scoring the fourth run of the inning. That set the stage for the ninth inning collapse.

Trackmen Eighth In CTC's; Ziemba Sets Career Record

The City College trackmen gave their finest performance for the season. They placed third in the field which ran in the Collegiate Track Conference championships Saturday, at C.W. Post College.

Iona, Southern Connecticut and the United States Merchant Marine Academy finished first, second, and third, respectively.

Although the Beavers did not finish in the top three, they placed fourth. And when they did manage to a fourth place finish, they did finish a fourth place finish.

Drexel Routs Stickman 11-7; Baron Sets Up Winter Loop

By Andy Weiner

"Each week the team learns how to play a different part of the game better, but it just takes time." This was the reaction of lacrosse Coach George Baron, after the Beavers had suffered an 11-7 beating at the hands of Drexel Technical University, Saturday at Lewishon Stadium.

Coach Baron has taken steps to assure the success of next year's team. He is going to form a winter league, in which the main team will be divided into two smaller groups which will play each other every week. The coach will also shift goalie Stan Nack to attackman next fall, in order to give the team needed offensive strength.

The stickmen will play Lafayette University, Wednesday. And in the final game of the year, the Beavers will face Union College. The coach, commenting on the team's chances, said, "Against Lafayette we have an outside chance, but Union is really a tough team."
