School Holds A Fire Drill On Last Day

The Baruch School's first fire drill of the term was held at 11:45 on the day preceding winter vacation, fifteen minutes before Student Council's holiday convocation was scheduled to begin.

Students poured out of the building in a festive mood, many without their coats, and congregated in the middle of Lexington Avenue on the south side of Twenty-third Street, blocking north-south traffic.

Within minutes a student was seen carrying a Christmas tree and leading the singing of "Jingle Bells," and two police cars were on scene attempting to get students out of the street.

One student, Sandy Brown, '68, was almost arrested on the charge of inciting a riot when he held up a sign reading "Police Brutal!" It was taken before Associate Dean of Student Affairs Bernard H. Barach School of Business, Public Administration.

Eleven Chosen to Appear In the Who's Who Listing

Eleven Day Session undergraduates have been elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, Dr. Irving Greger (Dept. of Stud. Life) announced.

Who's Who is an annual publication listing and describing the academic careers of students throughout the nation who are active in the co-curricular program of their respective schools.

Elected this year were Stuart Breidbart, editor-in-chief of the Lexington year book; Charles Dreibus, former chancellor of Sigma Alpha; Steven Feldman, president of the House Plan Association; Richard Glahtz, president of the senior class; Paulette Grossman, chairman of the Student Council; William Macaulay, executive editor and business manager of THE TICKER; Thomas Murray, chancellor of Sigma Alpha; James Polzi, a coordinator of the freshman colloquium; Lia Weiss, president of the Inter-fraternity Council, and Irving Yoskowitz, editor-in-chief of the barach Bulletin.

All of the students are seniors. Miss Grossman, Mr. Macaulay, and Mr. Yoskowitz are graduating in January. The others will be graduated in June.

To be elected, a student must receive a majority vote of a committee including Associate Dean of Students, David Newton, and members of the Student-Faculty Committee on Student Activities including Dr. Greger, the president of the senior class, and the S.C.A.C.

CONVOCATION: House Plan Association, Inter-fraternity Council and Theatre lead the singing of Christmas carols in the auditorium.

Capacity Crowd Sees SC Holiday Assembly

The holiday convocation, planned and carried out exclusively by students, drew a capacity crowd in the auditorium the day before the winter recess. The program included skits by members of Theatre, the Inter-fraternity Council, and House Plan Association.

Dr. Irving Greger Announces "Who's Who" January. The others will be graduated in June.

Uptown Students Consider Handbook To Give Faculty Evaluation Results

Student leaders of City Uptown are considering publishing a handbook evaluating faculty members' strong and weak points.

The information for this project will be gained from a school-wide program that began last semester. Larry Yermack, a coordinator of the student survey, said, "This handbook is at least a year from publication. Right now, we are not going to force this project on the faculty. The whole purpose of this type of evaluation is self-help."

If the book is published, it will be factual in its material and will not classify a teacher as either "good or bad."

In the evaluation, that began recently, the student government circulated 4,000 questionnaires to enable nearly every student to evaluate every instructor.

The evaluation has been endorsed to the format of the questionnaire. The format consists of multiple choice responses on faculty performance in such areas as subject matter, ability to explain problems, and encouragement to think independently.

Dr. Bragton Polka (Hipt.) said he would distribute his own poll because the student government survey "lacks intellectual integrity."

Professor Polka says, "There's no distinction among the types of courses. If you give a poll for all courses, one wonders if it can cover necessary concepts adequately."

Although several instructors have questioned the competence of the student body to judge the faculty, student leaders feel that the evaluation is valuable for it may be the beginning of change.

Tuition Crisis: History, Analysis

118-Year-Column Tradition
May Soon Be Terminated

The Board of Higher Education, which administers the State University of New York, has announced that it plans to terminate the tradition of free tuition for students at the University of the State of New York.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the Board of Higher Education, held in Albany on Wednesday, January 5, 1966.

The Board cited several reasons for its decision, including the increasing costs of education, the need for increased funding for other educational programs, and the fact that the tradition of free tuition has become an obstacle to the maintenance of the university's financial stability.

The decision is expected to be met with strong resistance from students, faculty, and alumni, who have long been proud of the university's tradition of free tuition.

The Board has also announced that it will begin discussions with the state legislature about the possibility of creating a new funding mechanism for the university, which would allow the institution to continue providing free tuition to students.

The announcement has sparked a heated debate among educators, students, and policymakers, who are divided over the merits of the tradition of free tuition and the potential alternatives.

In response to the announcement, the university's chancellor issued a statement expressing his concern for the students and faculty who will be affected by the decision.

The Chancellor said, "We understand and respect the longstanding tradition of free tuition at the University of the State of New York, and we recognize the important role that it has played in the history of the university. However, we must also consider the broader implications of our decision and the future of higher education in New York.

We are committed to working with all stakeholders to ensure that the university remains a viable institution, and we will continue to explore alternative solutions that will allow us to maintain the tradition of free tuition for as long as possible.

In the meantime, we urge everyone to consider the implications of our decision and to work together to find a way forward."

Academic Freedom at St. John's

More than 28 members of the faculty of St. John's University have been summarily dismissed by the university administration. Virtually all of the members of the United Federation of College Teachers, St. John's chapter, have been informed of the results of this gross violation of academic freedom.

You can help. Funds are desperately needed to support the strike called by the union on St. John's campus. Your contributions will help to publicize the issue and bring academic freedom to the university.

You can help also by joining the picket-line at Jamaica and Brooklyn campuses.

News Analysis

First, the BHE and the BHE Council will have to decide if the proposal is fair. Under the proposal, the BHE Council will be entitled to a say in the budget and the BHE Council will have to be involved in the decision of whether or not to raise money to put the Master's Day Session newspapers in the city's daily newspapers. Dr. Oppenheimer has made it clear that he will not support the proposal unless the BHE Council is involved in the decision.

In summary, the proposal will be fair to the city's daily newspapers, Dr. Oppenheimer, and a big voice in the city's daily newspapers will be heard.

Lavender Cagers Capture Five Straight Victories

CCNY Takes Tournament
By WARREN BALM
The Beaver basketballers captured the wooden shoe, symbolic of the City University championship, Tuesday, December 28, by downsing the Knights of Queens College, 63-54.

The tournament was staged in the huge Fitzgerald Gymnasium on the Queens campus.

The Lavender qualified for the final game Monday evening by defeating the Hunter Hawks 57-50. The Knights defeated Brooklyn College, 60-58, to reach the championship game.

City had little trouble with either team it faced. The Beavers completely outplayed the Hawks.

The outstanding player in the tournament was Mike Pearl. The Beaver guard played his finest game of the season in the season's final, tallying twenty-four points to lead the offensive attack.

In the final tilt, Mike turned in another brilliant performance. Compensating for a cold-shooting Alan Zuckerman, Pearl scored seventeen points and took charge when the going got rough. He was the most poised player on the court.

Zuck had a rough time scoring in the tourney. The Beavers' leading scorer tallied only twenty-one points in the two games, eight in the final win.

The Beaver defense was excellent. Led by Barry Eisemann and Bob Kissman, City allowed only 94 points for both games. The defense was particularly impressive in the semi-final, limiting a Hunter team that had defeated Quees early in the season to 39 points.

Queens was paced by Larry Zolot, who scored twenty and sixteen points in the two games. Roman Carella, in the Knights' backcourt, tallied eleven in the final, and defended beautifully against Al Zuckerman.

Coach Dave Polanski used only six players in the championship. With Sam Bobinski spelling Bob Kissman for about five minutes in the first half, all the City College scoring was done by the five starters.

In the consolation game, Brooklyn overcame a late Hunter surge, defeating the Hawks 68-56.

Zuck, Pearl Lead CCNY

Way Up: Pat Vallance pulls down rebound against Hunter in tourney.

Knights rally for ten straight and cut the gap to five. However, the ball-control tactics of the Lavender proved too much for the home team.

The outstanding player in the tournament was Mike Pearl. The Beaver guard played his finest game of the season in the season's final, tallying twenty-four points to lead the offensive attack.

In the final tilt, Mike turned in another brilliant performance. Compensating for a cold-shooting Alan Zuckerman, Pearl scored seventeen points and took charge when the going got rough. He was the most poised player on the court.

Zuck had a rough time scoring in the tourney. The Beavers' leading scorer tallied only twenty-one points in the two games, eight in the final win.

The game was played Tuesday, December 28, at the Wingate Hall. Al Zuckerman, rebounding from a cold spell in the C.U.N.Y. tournament, tallied twenty-nine points to lead the Lavender scoring attack.

Barry Eisemann played a strong defensive game and dominated both boards. Pat Vallance turned in his finest performance of the season, hitting on outside jumpers for thirty-three points.

The Baby Beavers defeated the SACE Freshmen, 84-60, in their best performance of the year. Jeff Keizer, the leading freshman scorer, hit twenty-six, eighteen in the first half.

Here's one Beaver who has the world by a string.

Mermen Top "Engineers" For 4-1 Slate

The City College swimming team, led by sophomore Larry Levy, triumphed the Brooklyn Poly mermen, Wednesday, December 22, at the Beavers' pool.

The victory brought the Laver's record to 4-1, a vast improvement over last year's performance, when they won only one meet.

Coach Jack Rider attributes this improvement to "much more experience and depth. The fact that we have sophomores such as Larry Levy, has added a great deal of pep to the team."

There was really never any question about the outcome of the meet. It was obvious that City was a far superior team. The Beavers swept almost every event.

The team is high spirited and has a great deal of confidence in itself. For example, Larry Koester, the co-captain of the freshman team, said after the meet, "Poly was completely out of our class; even the frosh team could have beaten them."

Levy set a City College record as he swam the 50-yard dash in a world class 26.20, the best time of the meet. Other Beavers who captured first place in their events were Jim Halpern, 500-yard freestyle, Buzz Frank, 100-yard freestyle, Joel Storm, 200-yard backstroke, and Al Shiporgo, the 200-yard breaststroke.
