NSA Financially Tied to CIA: Berman Warns of Disaffiliation

NSABenefits Cited By SC Head

"I would hope that the current controversy concerning the National Student Association will not lead to mass disaffiliation by member schools," stated Marc Berman '67, president of Student Council.

The disclosure last week that the NSA was receiving large sums of money from the Central Intelligence Agency has led to controversy amongst many people and organizations which are involved.

Mr. Berman added, "It is unfortunate to see that the NSA.

Graduate Center Expands: Enrollment Reaches 2000

By MICHAEL DUNST

The City University Graduate Center is in the process of rapidly expanding in order to accommodate up to 2,000 doctoral students.

Ninety-six percent of these students are currently enrolled in doctoral programs, a thirty-five percent increase over the 634 enrolled in the fall of 1965.

As of December 1966, almost sixty-five percent of the doctoral students are in their studies (completed more than 30 credits toward their degree).

To accommodate the additional students, the center will occupy the remainder of the "seventy-second floor" at 42 Street, where it already has quarters.

In addition three new fields of study—anthropology, biochemistry and philosophy—have been added to the already existing programs in biology, business, chemistry, economics, engineering, English and comparative literature, history, mathematics, physics, political science, Portuguese language and Latin-American literature, psychology, sociology, and speech.

All matriculated and frozen matriculated students taking their courses in the Graduate Center pay tuition at the rate of twenty-five dollars per credit hour although special tuition charges may be set by the Board of Higher Education.

Eighty-nine of the students enrolled are from out of town, including representatives from Taiwan, India, Argentina, England, France, Cyprus, Greece, Hungary, Korea, Lebanon and the West Indies. About thirty-five percent of the students attended colleges other than those of the City University.

The Graduate Center, in an experimental program, is admitting 500 freshmen in an attempt to relieve the over-congestion of the four-year colleges of the City University. This program will make available to the freshmen the facilities.

Ramparts Reveals Monetary Ties

A covert relationship between the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Student Association was made public by a report in the Washington Post last week.

The National Student Association is the largest organization representing the student bodies of American colleges and universities. It supports to have three-hundred member schools across the United States.

In a press release concerning the relationship, the NSA conceded that it had been covertly receiving funds from the C.I.A. from the early 1960's until this past year. In 1966, those NSA officials who knew this relationship took the first steps in trying to phase it out.

A release Tuesday, the NSA confirmed the financial connection and the State Department later added confirmation of the twelve-year affiliation.

The story broke with full-page advertisement in the Washington Post by Ramparts magazine. This advertisement for the March issue.

Students Demonstrate Outside BHE; Want Recognition of College Courses

"Two, four, six, eight, want recognition of college courses!

The students, members of the National Student Association, were requesting a reconsideration of the B.H.E.'s policy decision, stating that these students would have to present for acceptance to one of the senior colleges a high school average of eighty-two percent or a composite score of one hundred and fifty-four.

The students were up last June to accommodate over two thousand students who were denied admissions to the senior colleges because of lack of funds.

The students were notified by mail of the summary of the Board's requirements for acceptance to the senior colleges and that all students would be subject to the payment of September 1967.

According to Melanie Herman, who led the original drive for the establishment of the centers, Dr. Albert Bowker, chancellor of the B.H.E., told them that they were C.N.U.Y. freshmen. Miss Herman further noted that numerous state legislators have taken this statement to mean that as freshmen they should be able to present, in addition to their high school records, their college grades during their stay in the centers, and as a criteria for acceptance.

Administrative Vice Chancellor of the B.H.E. Harry Levy mentioned that "he was glad that those

School Is Praised By Middle States

A report released by a committee of the Middle States Accreditation Association contained high praise for the Baruch School, but strongly criticized the School's poor physical facilities and lack of adequate office space.

The committee members spent four days at the School last week investigating all matters affecting students, faculty, administration, curriculum and plant.

The current report must be accepted by the Middle States Association if the School is to remain accredited.

"The Baruch School has long been a leader in preparing an urban university to accomplish in providing professional educational opportunities in business and public administration, within a metropolitan setting," the report began.

Also emphasized was the statement, "The Baruch School is to be commended on the caliber of its faculty, their responsiveness to the leadership of their dean, their excellent programs in courses in the mathematical sciences, the behavioral sciences, the arts and sciences, and new courses in logic and ethics, the School continues to be a leader in preparing for the profession of accounting."

The areas needing improvement, the report continued, "are recognized by all." Cited were poor classroom facilities, "extremely sub-standard maintenance," overcrowding of facilities for both students and staff, and budgetary problems.

As a result, the report continues, "a deterioration of the effectiveness of the Baruch School has set in." A speedy decision on the future of the School, according to the committee, is imperative to prevent "deterioration" of this deterioration.

The alternatives of separation from the Uptown campus—maintenance of status, but with a greater degree of autonomy, and moving to the uptown campus—were not considered by the committee.

However, the report suggested that not all of the problems have been exploited. It stated, "Finding the present relationship should not be considered as creating a center of authority downtown (such as a vice president) to bring together the business and liberal arts faculties and serve both with good maintenance of facilities."

NSA Scored By Gallagher

President Buell Gallagher announced in his press conference Wednesday, that he was "very deeply concerned about the possibility of student governments and campus being "without a central" in the future, due to assertions made that the Central Intelligence Agency has been subsidizing student associations.

It was brought to light last week that the nation's largest student organization, the United States National Student Association, was being subsidized by the C.I.A.

Dr. Gallagher said that the "U.S.N.S.A. has done a very good job over the years and I would deeply regret it if they will be hampered in future years."

He feels that the C.I.A. "did not influence the practices and policies of the U.S.N.S.A. because the funds were "without strings and attached" and the U.S.N.S.A. almost never takes the position of the Board of Education as the American Chairman of the World University Service since 1953, and furthermore, for the past four years, he said that the organization had for over ten years received funds from the Foundation for Youth of Student Affairs—one of the foundations used as distributing funds of the C.I.A.

After careful inquiry, Dr. Gallagher said he found that the several thousand dollars received was used for traveling expenditures. This released funds, gained by contributions from other agencies, to be used for the actual functioning of the World University Service.
Senior Class Serves Prom

"The Senior Class Council of the 1958-59 year is planning to serve once again this year's senior prom as a major fund-raising activity, featuring a successful variety show, which will be held on Saturday, May 15, at the Forest House in Lake Mahopac, New York, under the direction of the president of the class...

The class is being coordinated by the class officers, Dean of Students, and the new class president, Mr. Daniel Parker, who has been elected the president for the coming year.

Petitions For Positions

Meetings are held in the Forest House on Wednesday evenings. All students are invited to join the class in various activities such as sports, dance, and social events.

Petitions for positions in the Class Council can be found at the desk outside 104 S.C., starting Monday, February 22, and running until Thursday, February 25. Petitions will be accepted for the following positions:

- Treasurer of the Student Council
- Secretary of the Student Council
- Class President
- Class Vice-President
- Class Secretary
- Class Treasurer

Mrs. Daniel Parker, the teacher in charge of the Class Council, will be available to answer any questions and discuss the duties of each position.

Petitions must be signed by at least five students and should be submitted to Mrs. Daniel Parker before the end of the week. The results of the election will be announced on Friday, March 5, at the Class Council meeting.

Poetry, too, is a very important part of Levy's life. He is a great admirer of T.S. Eliot, and, in fact, spent a good deal of time with him during his stay in New York. Levy has written several poems about Eliot, and some of them have been published in various literary journals. Levy says, "I have always been interested in poetry, and I think it is a great way to express oneself. Eliot is one of the greatest poets of our time, and I feel very lucky to have had the opportunity to meet him.

The early works of Levy's poetry, especially the early poems, are filled with a sense of spirituality and a deep understanding of the human condition. Levy's poems are often about the search for meaning in life and the struggle against the forces of evil. In his later works, Levy's poetry becomes more introspective and philosophical, with a greater emphasis on the concept of the individual in the universe.

Levy's poetry has been published in various literary journals, and some of his poems have been anthologized in several collections. Levy has received several awards for his poetry, including the 1960 American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters Award for Poetry. Levy is still writing poetry, and he is currently working on a new collection of poems that will be published in the near future.

The Levy family has always been close, and Levy's poetry reflects his deep love for his family. Levy's poetry is filled with a sense of humor and a sense of the absurd, as well as a deep understanding of the human condition. Levy is a great poet, and his poetry is a true masterpiece. Levy is a great friend, and I am honored to have him as a fellow poet.
School Placement Director Explains Shortage of Summer Employment

By LAWRENCE LANSNER

Director, Baruch School Placement Office, New York City.

In greater New York City, there are as many as 1,000,000 people employed, according to Mr. Laursen, who is in charge of the school's placement office. This is an increase in the number of jobs by 300,000 over the past two years. The main reason for this increase is the federal government's efforts to create more jobs through civil service and to stimulate the economy. The director also noted that the number of available jobs is expected to increase further in the coming months, due to the continued expansion of the federal government's programs. He advised students to take advantage of the opportunities provided by the federal government, as well as to explore other avenues for employment, such as private sector jobs or internships. The director also emphasized the importance of students preparing themselves for the job market by acquiring the necessary skills and qualifications, as well as by networking with potential employers.

Federal Programs Aimed at Needy Students

By LAWRENCE LANSNER

During the past decade, a new manpower service has been established, which helps students find jobs during the summer months. This service is known as the Federal Work Study Program. It provides opportunities for students to work at a variety of jobs, such as in retail stores, restaurants, or offices. The director explained that the program is designed to help students gain valuable work experience, as well as to finance their education. He also noted that the number of students participating in the program has increased significantly in recent years, due to the growing demand for workers in various sectors. The director emphasized the importance of students taking advantage of these opportunities, as well as of the federal government's efforts to create more jobs and to stimulate the economy.

Volunteer, Salaried Jobs Are Set Abroad

By LAWRENCE LANSNER

A number of volunteer and salaried jobs are available abroad, according to Mr. Laursen, who is in charge of the school's placement office. These jobs are offered by various organizations, such as the Peace Corps, the WPA, and the Office of Economic Opportunity. The director explained that these jobs provide students with opportunities to gain valuable work experience, as well as to contribute to the development of underprivileged areas. He also noted that the number of students participating in these programs has increased significantly in recent years, due to the growing demand for workers in various sectors. A Move to Harlem

The above column was signed by Harry Rosen '34, Michael Rosen '35, and John Lindsay '35. The editors would like to thank these students for their contributions and encourage other students to submit columns for publication.

The move to Harlem is a significant step forward for the University. By locating in a neighborhood that is currently underrepresented in higher education, we can provide greater accessibility and diversity to the student body. This move also allows us to create new opportunities for learning and engagement with the community.

Neglected Suggestions

Petitions for Student Council positions as well as concerns about the condition of campus facilities were expressed by students at recent meetings. Many also expressed dissatisfaction with the lack of communication between the University and its students. To address these issues, we encourage the Student Council to take immediate action by creating a platform for students to share their concerns and suggestions for improvement. Additionally, we urge the administration to listen to these suggestions and implement changes as soon as possible.

We will see you in "Theater: A New York Musical" in the spring of 2000. A future issue of the Ticker will have more information about this exciting event.

Of Hobbits and All That

by MARSHALL EPHRON and ROBERT HERZBERG

Hobbits are a creature about four feet in height, built like a small man with a flat nose and an unreflecting eye, in a brown coat or a green coat, and with a cap on. They live in a small house and have a small garden. They are very quiet and never say anything.

Theater, Continued

We note with surprise that the month of July has been completely ignored by the Ticker. The only thing that has been reviewed is the play "The Game of Love and Death." It would be nice to see more reviews of other productions. The theater is a great place to go and see some good acting. It is a great way to spend an evening.

End of Free Tuition?

Currently, many students are concerned about the future of free tuition. We believe that if the university continues to provide free tuition, it will attract more students and contribute to the diversity of the student body. However, we also support the idea of making tuition more affordable for all students. This can be achieved by increasing the number of scholarships and grants available to students.

The Chancellor Speaks

Dr. M. Steven Modell, president of the University, outlined his vision for the future of the institution. He emphasized the importance of maintaining the university's commitment to excellence in education and research. Additionally, he discussed the need to increase the budget for student aid.

The Old and You

by BILL CRAGET

Mr. Modell's remarks were well-received by the faculty and students. They expressed their support for his initiatives and encouraged him to continue his efforts to improve the university's offerings.

TRAINING COURSE SET

BY LAMPORT LEADERS

The regular Lamport Leaders Training Course will begin on Monday, February 20.

The nature of the training will be geared to understanding self and motivation, the importance of group work, and the development of group mental and physical abilities.

Many ways of approaching the core of problems in groups will be introduced. The course will be divided into two sections, each section having a different theme.

The first section will be on "Cooperation" and will be led by the leader of the group. The second section will be on "Leadership" and will be led by the leader of the group.

The training course is open to any student of Baruch College and will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings. The course will last for three weeks and will meet for two hours each evening. It is open to all students interested in analyzing and developing group mental abilities.

AND AWAY WE GO: Beaver Jeff Kalser goes high up for a rebound during a recent C.C.N.Y. victory. The game was played at Wingate.

By LARRY BROOKS

The coach began, 'This is the first team since 1951 that has gone through four consecutive winning seasons, starting with their freshman year.' By their 68-63 thrashing of Hartford Saturday night, this became possible.

The hooters, 4-6 on the year with three games remaining in regular season play, were stopped by Connecticut Coach Sal Rombach on February 4, to extend their winning streak to five games.

The Beavers now have won two straight, with a 58-56 league victory over Rider, February 13. This is the Beaver quintet's second season in the Tri-State League with a 4-2 card, good for second place.

Big Gun

Coach Polansky continued, 'If anyone is to be given credit, it is Mike Pearl, who has led this club, was the playmaker for the past two years before this, and was captain of the freshman team.'

There is a string of suspicion, not to take anything away from the members of the team, that is seen in Pearl's selection.

The coach singled out Pearl, Barry Duke, Eissman, John Clifton and Pat Vallance for their exceptional play against Hartford.

Pearl scored 26 points and led to the most productive game of his career. He had told Vallance, his backhalving and ballhawking also sparked the club.

Coach Polansky's praise

Eissman, who in Polansky's words, played the final game of his career, tallied 25 points while taking down 12 rebounds. The Duke hit 10 for 12 from the floor as the club shot a bit over .500 during the game.

Clifton, who scored a career high of 25 points, with 12 for 19 from the floor, was seen by the coach and his mates for his fine defensive work.

Defensive work

Saturday night marked the first time in Polansky's coaching career that he had three men score 25 points in one game.

Leading 8-6, the Beavers ran off a string of 8 points in a row to break the game wide open.

Great inside shooting by Pearl, Eissman, Clifton and Vallance, plus good work by the big men helped City build up an 18 point lead before the half ended with City on top, 44-27.

The home town Hawks' could never close the gap to less than 15 points for the remainder of the contest.

The game ended with City's subs doing the playing in the dying moments. Coach Newcomb had thrown in 10 of ringing up point number 90.

Levy, Storm Set Marks
In Municipal Swim Meet

"Larry Levy is the kingpin of swimming, mentor Harry Smith, the Queens University championships at Saturday, 'If by some miracle, we can beat them, I'm willing to bet on this thing, he'll be the conference.'

Levy was the kingpin, but compared to Queens, the squad as a whole was just a little wet behind the ears. The Beavers tallied 92 points to trail undefeated Queens (112) but outscore Hunter (48) and Brooklyn (38).

Outstanding efforts

The 18-year-old curly-haired junior paced City by scoring 22 points. He established a meet and varsity record in the 200-yard individual medley in 2 minutes 17.7 seconds before placing second in the 100-yard freestyle in 53.8.

In that medley, the evening's most exciting race, Levy made up seven yards (one lap is 25 yards) on the final lap to win by inches.

His finest effort was as anchor man on the 100-yard medley relay, which included the 100-yard medley four-of the whole machine, " said during the trials of the City.

The Queens College pool Saturday, Levy's efforts were number second in 4:11.8, a varsity mark and three seconds faster than the listed meet standard. Proceeding Levy were Joel Storm (back-stroke), Rich Bastion (breast-stroke) and Al Shapiro (butterfly).

Storm is another non-winner who performed well. A runner-up in the 200-yard breast-stroke, he bettered the meet and his own varsity marks with a 2:24.6 effort.

'Great Job'

'The kids did a great job," said Levy, "but they were just too strong. It was worth it. It was worth it... and a little more."
