Unlimited Cuts

The question of allowing upper-classmen to register for courses in advance has been discussed recently, but it has never been in our minds—least of all ours—because of the fact that we are not students. We believe that this is a good idea, because it would allow all students to register for courses. It is not a question of whether or not the upperclassmen are better students, but whether or not the upperclassmen are allowed to register for courses. We believe that the upperclassmen should be able to register for courses, because it would make it easier for them to register for courses.

The Management

The Management Department's decision to cut staff this term is much appreciated by all students. The cut in staff is a move in the right direction, and is necessary for the continuation of the management program.

The Draft

The decision of the Board of Higher Education to allow the use of the draft to the students in the management program is a welcome change. This is a positive step in the right direction, and is necessary for the continuation of the management program.

Letters to the Editor

Brooks Speaks to Ward

To the Editor:

To Ward: I think your letter is a good one. I agree with your point about the need for a new administration. However, I disagree with your suggestion that the current administration is solely responsible for the problems that have arisen. I believe that the problems are a result of the current administration, but also the responsibility of the students.

It is important to remember that the students are the ones who are affected by the problems, and they should be held accountable for their actions. It is not fair to blame the administration for all the problems, as they are not the only ones responsible.

I believe that the students should be more involved in the decision-making process. They should have a say in the direction that the school is going in, and be able to express their concerns.

I hope that the administration will take your letter into consideration, and that the students will be more active in their role in the decision-making process.

Sincerely,

Brooks
Ward: 'You Just Do Your Best'

By LARRY BROOKS

You are a college student in your freshman year. True, you are co-sports editor of your school newspaper, but you are still a freshman. You still have the notion that a major league baseball player is something special. So when you meet one and interview him, you think it is something special—special enough to write about.

It started to rain as two friends (also writers on their school papers) and I waited for Pete Ward outside Yankee Stadium. We explained that we wanted to interview a major league baseball player for a column we planned to devote to him. It was decided that he would meet us the next day after the game in the leftfield bullpen at Yankee Stadium.

Although the home runs rule, we were not permitted to wait in the bullpen. Obviously, the new friendly look of Yankee Stadium has not been contagious. The guards acted as if they had never heard of goodwill or public relations. So here we were waiting outside Yankee Stadium in the rain, not knowing whether or not the subject of our interview would find us.

Pete Ward, leftfielder, first baseman for the Chicago-White Sox, just missed being selected as the American League Rookie of the Year in 1963, losing to teammate Gary Peters, a pitcher, by the narrowest of margins.

Since that year Pete has had one good year and two undistinguished ones as he has been hampered by injuries. This year he is healthy and the White Sox have an excellent shot at the pennant.

Then he emerged from under the bullpen gate and was immediately engulfed by autograph seekers. After waiting us, he walked quickly to where we were standing.

"I think that college baseball is something special," said Ward, "as do all leagues to the little leagues.

When the Sox have shuttled a third baseman (he came up as a third baseman) this bothered one's hitting."

"This all depends on one's personal effort—no matter what position you take. A guy should be thankful playing there playing and let the rest take care of itself.

Ballplayers all have different habits and eat and do before a ballgame. "I like to eat pretty well before to get up at 6 or 7 in the morning."

I'm on the road, and eat breakfast to go, back and nap for a couple of hours before going to the park."

"The swiftest athlete," former manager of the New York Giants, "is fast for himself."

With Army leading, 3-2, in the ninth inning, Lavender left fielder Delmar Fick entered the game with his third double for the day. Fick had not hit since May 9 and his average dropped below .300. The overconfident White Sox pitched Fick and the Cadets loaded the bases with two walks and a single. John Fick hit a single to make it 3-3 and the game was tied.

With the bases loaded, Lavender manager Pete Ward made a play for the ninth and runners on first and second. Joe Sebor singled, knocking Fick on his heels, and two runners reached safely on errors.
