First Fees Charter Approved
In Principle By Dean Newton

After terms of defining the composition and function of the Fees Committee, the first constitution for that body was approved in principle yesterday by Associate Dean Newton.

The dean noted the importance of the constitution (approved in principle because the final draft had not yet been worked out) that the committee is composed of students and that it establishes the necessary financial controls in distributing funds.

The Fees Committee has traditionally delegated the authority to distribute fees for student activities. Dean Newton, under the Board of Higher Education by-law, must retain ultimate control of this committee.

The purpose of drafting a Fees Committee constitution, according to Student Council President Max Berger '68, is to assure Council and the student body a greater voice in determining policies involved with the allocation of Student Activities Fees.

The student faculty committee, which has operated under several names since 1962, will be restructured to make a more student-controlled committee with two faculty members as ex-officio non-voting members, noted Mr. Berger.

According to the constitution, the committee will be made up of representatives of the presidents of the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Class Councils; the Student Council Treasurer as chairman; two students chosen by the student body and the two faculty members, Professor John Burton (Acct.), the School Bursar, and Professor Irving Greger, coordinator of student activities.

This new committee will distribute fees monies to The Ticker, Student Council and the Department of Student Personnel Services.

The constitution provides for representation of student activities, including student newspapers, student publications, athletic teams, cultural events, social events, and other activities.

The Inter-fraternity Council and House Plan Association, last term, were to be appropriated money through the old Fees Committee.

Dean Newton however, expressed his desire to let the committee be self-functioning.

In line with this he stated, "It is both my belief and expectation that under the new constitution the membership composition of the Fees Committee will be more representative and that the appropriation and allocation of activity fees monies will be more equitable.

Dr. Gallagher reports Fall Enrollment

By BONNIE LINDBER

The estimated total enrollment of City College day session for Fall '67 is 12,309, according to President Gallager.

Dr. Gallagher at a press conference for student papers yesterday, Freshman enrollment increased to 2,935 which is an increase of 256 students.

These figures are based upon enrollment figures of September 15 and are rounded out to include an estimated number of registrants excluding the graduate division.

Doctorate students total 7,135 and undergraduate students, an enrollment of 6,925, with pre-baccalaureate students numbering 460.

Commenting on the College's budget, President Gallagher said that since it had applied to the College by the city, the College, with careful budgeting, will probably not find itself in a financial condition. He did say, however, that "this is the tightest budget that City College has had in a long time."

Dr. Gallagher also announced the signing of a contract with John Carl Warnecke and Associates. They will draw a master plan for the future construction on the uptown campus.

RUINS IN THE U.S.

A New York Times article recently reported that the U.S. has lost its status as the world’s leading economic power to China. The article pointed out that while the U.S. still has the largest economy in the world, China is closing the gap and may surpass the U.S. in the near future.

The article also noted that a number of Chinese companies are expanding into the U.S. market, and some analysts believe that this trend will continue.

The article concluded by saying that the U.S. must take steps to address this challenge, and that it is important for U.S. companies to be aware of the changing landscape in the global economy.

Smoke Gets in Their Eyes

By ALAN WEBNER

The Editor of The Ticker. Like most "House Pink Associates," I was very proud of The Planet as it appeared last Saturday. Its coverage of many important events was thorough. I must say that the content and layout of the article "A Beginning," by the dean in his veto position, is an example of what I think is a good student editing policy.

Missed Opportunity

"The Village," an attempt to portray the life of a dollar in quite a different way, has missed the opportunity to be all it could be. The village, for it is what it is, has all the potential for making a good story. It has been restricted to one or two pages, but its possibilities are many. It could be a great source of information on the social and economic life of the city. The possibility that this area could be more than a collection of houses and people is one that is often missed.

Student Expectations

Students have a right to demand that their teachers be challenging. Whether the subject, the teacher must place the emphasis on the importance of the course. They must demand from him that he be a master of his subject. The teacher must have convictions, but he is unworthy of his post if he is more interested in being popular. What is shocking, however, is that the Times does not even admit to this. It is true that the Times may have other concerns, but it is not in the interest of its readers to have a newspaper that does not even admit to knowing this.

The building deteriorates further. The tenants' problems multiply. The city's view of Harlem as a place make this possible. The Times, humanizing its view of the city, through the use of its news coverage, has paved the way for this. What is needed is a change in the way the city views Harlem. There are decent landlords and tenants in Harlem. It is necessary to understand this and report it. The Times has a responsibility to do this. The Times, in its attempt to be human, has taken the wrong path. It has failed to understand the problem and to report it honestly. The Times, in its attempt to be human, has taken the wrong path. It has failed to understand the problem and to report it honestly.
