Regents Seek Additional Time To Consider Baruch Proposal

The State Board of Regents failed to vote upon the formation of the Baruch College at their Thursday and Friday meetings. According to Dean Emanuel Saxe, coordinator of the Master Plan for Expansion of the City University, the Board discussed the proposal, but wanted more time to look into the matter. He said they would probably vote on the plan at their next meeting scheduled for the second week in December.

The State Board of Regents is the final body which must approve the plan before the Baruch College becomes a reality. The Board of Higher Education gives its consent October 22. If the Regents accepts the Baruch College as a new unit of the City University, several questions which have been voiced by many faculty members and students must then be answered.

The Baruch School, currently granting a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree, if transformed to college status, might offer either Bachelor of Science or Bachelor of Arts degrees.

According to Dean Hollander, the Board of Regents would have to vote on the plan and then it would be up to the Board of Higher Education to approve the specific curriculum of the College which would offer degrees such as this.

In addition to his work as president of the new College, this question also remains unanswered for some time as the Baruch College Committee of the board, who makes the selection, will hold their first meeting Tuesday night with plans for the transfer of the school to the City University. The selection will be made by December 1, L.L.U. has received admissions for next year.

Authorization for application to the school for September 1968 was halted October 10 when L.L.U. made its official offer to sell the school.

Since then, Brooklyn political leaders and students and faculty from L.L.U. have opposed the plans and negotiations halted when the Board of Regents began studies of the proposal.

Under the direction of Dean Hollander and the B.B.E., a committee to rewrite the Master Plan for Expansion for the Baruch College has been formed. The committee, which held their first meeting Tuesday, was to complete work sometime in February and will only discuss broad plans.

"Small Increase Seen in College Population"

"I don't envisage any change in the student population" said Dean Emanuel Saxe at a press conference Friday.

The dean said that he felt there would be a small adjustment, but he does not forecast one of any consequence.

In addition, Dean Saxe announced the names of the faculty members who were nominated in Thursday's election to serve as administrative advisor role to the Baruch College of the Board of Higher Education when they choose a president of the new College.

Today, the faculty will again vote from the list of ten nominees for three instructors. The person receiving the highest vote will be the editor of the Baruch College, while the two next highest will be the student editors.

The affirmative vote of the student members of the Board of Higher Education would indicate the college is to be established.

"Don't have to vote on this tonight, but we don't want to wait too long," said Mr. Bloom.

The dean also commented that "we're not sure how many people will be interested in the college but we are optimistic that it will grow slowly."

The dean also commented that "we're hoping to have at least ten students interested in the college before we open the school." He also added that "the students will be involved in the decision-making process."

New York City's trainee plan gives you a "clear path" to some of today's best, most specialized careers.

Modern city government is far different from "the old days." Now the mayor and city administrator are focused on making New York City a more efficient, more productive place. The city is divided into 17 units, each with its own managers and staffs. The city is organized around specific goals and objectives, and system and management methods are being used to achieve those goals. City administrators are responsible for planning, organizing, and staffing, analyzing, and evaluating. In the new city government, people are evaluated on their performance, not just on their tenure. The city is a dynamic, fast-changing place, and the people who work for it are expected to be innovative and creative. The city is a place of opportunity, and the people who work for it are expected to be innovative and creative. Afro-American Culture

Many people were disappointed when it was announced that the first offer of courses in African-American Studies would be available next spring. The course, which has been offered elsewhere in the United States but not at Baruch, is designed to provide the American student with an understanding of the Negro's contribution to the world. It is hoped that the course will be popular and that it will make many people realize that the study of the Negro is important.

The course consists of stagnant, segregated educational systems which are not well planned. Many Negro students are hopelessly isolated from the rest of society. They are unable to understand the culture into which they have been born. The Negro's language—and Swahili—is taught in order to provide the Negro with a culture which he can accept and give him the right to participate in the society. The Negro is also taught to read and write in his own language so that he can become a more effective member of the society.

The direct merits of teaching Swahili are difficult to measure. However, there are some indirect benefits. For example, the students who are learning Swahili are also learning about the culture and history of the Negro. This is important because it helps them to understand their own culture and to appreciate the contributions of other cultures.

The culture from which the Negro has come is very different in minor points, but which is basically the same. The Negro is a proud people who have a rich history. They have contributed greatly to the world and have a great deal to offer to others. The study of Swahili is an important part of the study of the Negro.

The next issue of The Ticker will appear on December 15.

Deadlock NYU Nip Adelphi - Final Record at 4-4-2

By LARRY BROOKS

It is not often that a sports squad will go through almost half a season as a razzmataz, rag-tag outfit and transform itself into a confident, spirited, well-oiled club. It’s not often, but it happened to the 1967 City College soccer team.

There is little resemblance between the team which opened its season with a 3-0 loss at Adelphi, Saturday, at Lewisohn Stadium.

The overall picture was not as especially bright one: 4-4-2 overall with a 2-4-1 log in the Metropolitan Conference, giving the booters a tie for sixth place. But he booters’ play during the latter part of the season was classy and courageous.

“Best Game” Site March

What happened? Probably just three feet: L-L-U. The Beavers lost to the Trojans, 2-0, on October 28, in what the club termed “its best game in three years.”

After that, the change was evident.

Brooklyn fell, 1-0, knocking under the record six-goal barrage averted a losing season. Then, the Mike DiBono-led offense, sparked their lacking offense.

Victorious Mad Dogs celebrate their triumph.

What happened? Probably just one: a sophomore, was subbed in for the alert Tiger, fighting their hearts out, bowed to the English Department Mad Dogs Sunday in the annual Toilet Bowl in Central Park. The score was 3 touchdowns to one.

The cold weather kept the official scorekeeper and the referees away, and the final score is still being disputed.

The Beavers broke their three-year scoreless string by tallying on a brilliant run by head editor Russell Squire. Rogoff took the snap from the halfback position.

Contest News

The winner of the football contest will be announced in next week’s issue of The Ticker. The sports staff was flooded with entries, so the contest was attempted to pick the outcome of Sunday’s clash between the Trojans and the Mad Dogs.

LATE NEWS

The final cross-country meet of the season, the 58th annual Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association, held yesterday at Vassar College Park in the Bronx with City College running with an incomplete team of four runners.

Knights Scratch City In CUNY X-C Meet

By MARC BLOOM

The Beavers got the seven-year itch and were scratched by Queens Saturday in their attempt to continue domination of City University cross-country.

For the first time in seven years, City was beaten in the CUNY.X-C cross-country championships at Vassar College Park in the Bronx. City’s 43 points was enough to edge Brooklyn by one point but three short of the 9th that enabled Queens to capture the title.

The battle for team honors was hotly contested and looked as if the bodies’ meet even after the six runners had crossed the finish line. The following six were separated by only 17 seconds. A sudden burst of speed on any stretch by any of the runners would have altered the order of finish and changed the final outcome.

Another tally (a pass received by Bootleg Booters, after the alert Ticker free safety knocked the ball from the Tigers’ hands). With the temperature dipping into the low forties—which, by the way, is the average English grade of the Trojan team—the Journalists engineered a come from behind victory in the “I” formation, only to have the Tigers intercept—and tally once again.

The Beavers were splendidly well-balanced with Alas Perkin & the high mark. Captain Paul Kouskoch set the tone, 50 yards to the 12. When he was intercepted two Tiger aerials and also took a Lensy Greenbaum pass for a touchdown.

The College rifle team amassed 1162 points Friday night to whip the United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point. The losers tallied 999.

It was the seventh triumph for the Beavers who had won three triangular matches prior to this one. Their point total is the highest in the league since the last rule change three years ago.
