Open Hearings Held By Liberal Arts Group

The initial meeting of the Ad Hoc Committee for the Liberal Arts was held last Wednesday. The meeting's format marked a faculty effort to listen to students. The meeting was open to students, and committee members received recommendations from both student and faculty guests as to the required liberal arts 'curricular' courses for the freshman year. The discussion, which ensured was a valuable free-for-all of ideas and plans.

- Prof. Joffen (German) reasoned that departments add up like a result of the elimination of courses, and that students register just how now before departments. The Chairman (Acting) commended Prof. Joffen for bringing the issue of the permissible interests to the surface. Dean Lavender, the Committee's Chairman, labeled the meeting most successful. The Committee met again in open session yesterday at 7 p.m. in room 907.

Mr. Cole (Eng.) believes that all core courses must be eliminated; it is unfair to compel students to take such courses. Prof. Cole pushed for a super-saturated English course, a course which would make students think outside the box. Mr. Cole was one of the more successful chairmen of the committee. The meeting was a free-speech forum that the students were able to discuss

Informal Discussions Planned At Faculty Members' Homes

This term, Student Council has once again sponsored the Fireside Chat Program. At the beginning of the term, all clubs were invited to help sponsor or co-sponsor this program. No clubs responded. Student Council then undertook the responsibility themselves. The construction is completed by Neil Bergman, Neil Lebowitz, Richard Weisinger and chairman Stewart. So far, there have been chats at Dr. Harris home and at Prof. Frazier's home. Between ten and fifteen people attended each and the consensus of opinion was that it was wonderful and that more students should experience it. The idea is that the club programs should be able to cooperate, and discuss various problems in an informal atmosphere.

Atlantic Terminal Site To Be Cleared; Fort Greene Market To Move By 1970

The new Brooklyn Campus for the Baruch College came a step closer to reality as the approval of a new site for the Fort Green Meat Market.

In making the announcement of the new location, Mayor Lindsay said it had been approved by the Site Selection Board "after many conferences and lengthy study." The new location is bounded by Water, Fulton and Main Streets. It is estimated that the cost of the new market will be $11 million with $2 million to be self-liquidating. According to Mayor Lindsay, the facilities will handle the distribution of $200 million in meat products annually.

It is anticipated that preliminary building plans will be completed in six months with construction scheduled to get underway immediately after. Occupancy is forecast for early 1970. The new Brooklyn Campus for the Baruch College in the area which includes the meat market.

OBJECTIONS TO SITE

At a hearing before the Site Selection Board, Brooklyn Councilwoman Mildred Rosen, and others of the tract, claimed that the site was not in the public interest. She said that building a meat market in the backyards of Brooklyn Heights would tend to drive some of the Heights residents away. O. P. Pearseall, secretary of the Municipal Art Society, also opposed the "so-called urban renewal project" for the proposal is a political— he the desire to create the market somewhere agreeable to the meat men as fast as possible. The site is on the Atlantic Terminal urban renewal project can proceed.

The Bernard M. Baruch College

The City University Construction Fund yesterday refused to accommodate the request from the Board of Education to purchase the RCA building from United Cerebral Palsy. The Board had requested the Fund to accommodate $2,450,000 for the site. In August the CUCF had appropriated six million dollars for the purchase and renovation of the property. Of the sum, $1.6 million was to have been for the purchase.

The board determined last week that the board had made a mistake on the actual fair market value of the property. According to Pro- vest Thomas, "the matter is still under discussion." The Construction Fund will meet again on Monday to consider this decision.

Student Council President Hal Framer deplored the lack of positive action on the part of the Council. To this strong campaign for their views. The qualifications needed to hold the various positions that were set-up. In addition, ap-
Techniques of Policy Discussed At Educational Conference

A program to train school board members in techniques of dealing with increasingly sensitive education policy questions included a full-fledged round-robin panel, back-and-forth board meetings and educators. Panelists included: Professor Morris Hamburg of the New York State Board of Education's Committee on Board Training Curricula who was involved in setting school boards throughout the state.

SAVE OUR SCHOOL

We condemn the City University Construction Fund and all of its members for their failure to support the Rockwell Hall Building Project. The Board, which is responsible for raising additional funds for the proposed building, seems not to recognize the need for additional funds or to understand the significance of the Rockwell Hall project.

The situation has been further complicated by the lack of communication and understanding between the Board and the people who are supposed to support the project. The Board has failed to take into account the needs of the students and the faculty, and its proposals have been met with disinterest and resentment.

We do not believe that condemnation is a feasible method of acquiring the property. The demands for the construction of the proposed building have been made in a format that is not acceptable to the students and faculty. It has not been possible to communicate with the Board in a manner that is understandable to the people who are supposed to support the project.

The situation is urgent and requires immediate action. We urge the Board to take steps to correct the situation and to provide a means for the people who are supposed to support the project to have their voices heard.

The Little People

By JOHN SCKOROHOD

There are some people on this planet, prone, as they are, to a self-righteous belief that they are the exception to the rule. These are the little people, those who believe they are the only right kind of human creature. They are the ones who refuse to accept any challenge to their beliefs, and who are willing to use force to make others accept their point of view. These are the people who think that they are the only ones who have the right to exist, and who will not tolerate anyone who disagrees with them.

You have no right to ask! How dare you question me! They will be their own destruction. They have dug their own graves, and it is only natural that they should be buried in them.

A new type of leader is coming, one who is concerned with the little people, who will not be remembered when they are gone. The little people will not be remembered when they are gone, as they are now, as a result of their own actions. They are non-compensated, and they come in all sizes. Classification is on the basis of men, and the little people are the only ones who are left.

Deans' Recommendations By S.C., Four Selected From Baruch

Deans recommend four students for election to the Alumni Commission. The recommendations are made by the Committee on Nominations, which consists of Robert Brown, Leon Levy, and Thomas Allen. The recommendations will be considered by the College at its next meeting.

We further feel that those students who have demonstrated leadership qualities during their four years of study should be elected. This will enable them to continue their leadership roles and contribute to the school's growth.

S.C., the president of the Student Council, has been selected for the position of editor-in-chief of the Baruch Alumni Magazine.

Dilemmas In Corporate Accounting Discussed At Wollman Lecture

Under the auspices of the Baruch Alumni Society, in celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the establishment of the Institute of CPA's, a Distinguished Morton Wollman Lecture was given by Mr. Wollman, former president of the AICPA. The lecture was entitled "Dilemmas in Corporate Accounting" and was attended by students, faculty, and staff.

The lecture addressed the challenges faced in corporate accounting and the importance of ethical considerations in financial reporting. Mr. Wollman stressed the need for transparency and accountability in financial statements and highlighted the role of accountants in ensuring accurate and reliable financial information.

We encourage all students to attend future lectures and discussions to gain a deeper understanding of the importance of corporate accounting.

Gentlemen:

The Students and Faculty of the Bernard M. Baruch College have “existed” for the past 15 years in inadequate, substandard facilities. These deplorable conditions, in an Academic Community, can no longer be tolerated.

Your action in failing to approve the funds needed to acquire the RCA building for the Baruch College, is a dereliction of your duty to the future students of Baruch.

The special mission of the Baruch College, to meet the problems of our Urban Society, makes our need of additional facilities all the more pressing and your failure to act all the more criminal.

The letterhead of the City University Construction Fund states “The City University Construction Fund Supports The Educational Purposes of the City University By Providing Facilities For The City Colleges.”

With this noble purpose, the Fund has both the moral and the legal responsibility to provide adequate space for the Baruch College.

The accreditation of the Baruch College, and of the entire City University, may be in jeopardy because of the unconscionable facilities that we “live” in. The Middle States Accreditation Teams reports, for the past 12 years, have attacked Baruch’s physical Plant. Their latest report discusses the failure to meet interim space acquisition plans, and demands that no new programs be initiated until the space problem is no longer a factor.

Sincerely,
