U.F.C.T. Wins Half of Faculty Election Run-Off Scheduled For Next Week

The U.F.C.T. has been selected the union bargaining agent for some 6000 non-tenured instructors in the City University in last week’s election. However, the election results for bargaining agent for the 5700 tenured faculty members proved indescribable: a runoff election will be held next Tuesday between the U.F.C.T. and the Legislative Congress for the 5700 tenured faculty bargaining agent (for the past three years).

Last Thursday’s voting was broken not between two sections’ unit I- non-tenured instructors’ only, unit II- non-tenured instructors staff and those members of the tenured faculty who were on two payrolls, such as professors teaching in both day and evening sessions.

According to the U.F.C.T., if traditional election practices had been pursued by the Public Employees Relations Board (the governing body administering the election under the Taylor Law)—if there had been one unit and no dual voting—the U.F.C.T. today would be the representative of the whole instructional staff, since the combined votes in the two units would have constituted a U.F.C.T. majority.

Professor Kellar, Baruch College’s elected representative to the Legislative Conference, stated that he felt certain the Legislative Conference will sweep next Tuesday’s election. The no union vote, which prevented the other side from gaining a majority in unit I, was termed by the professor as the “Bowker vote.”

He told The Ticker that Chancellors Bowker’s effort to prevent the recognition of a union had backfired and that the no union votes would be won by the Legislative Conference.

Professor Levine, Chairman of the Baruch Chapter of the U.F.C.T., conceded that the U.F.C.T. is the underdog in the upcoming unit I election. He pointed out, however, that there were more than 1300 eligible voters who had not cast ballots in last week’s election. U.F.C.T. hopes to capture these votes.

Professor Levine, believing the U.F.C.T. will also attract votes from the no union and Legislative Conference camps because most faculty members will realize “the undesirability of split bargaining,” hopes that the results of the election will be a victory of the employer and the employees.

Two unions at the bargaining table which are forced to compete with each other to make a better showing, must outbid each other to prove their mettle. Employers have learned that they too are better off if they recognize their employees. (Continued on Page 3)

Questionable Practices in Promotion Procedure

By MIKE LEMELLE

I think we have finally discovered, what I believe is the root of the very unhealthy atmosphere of complacency, and indifference at the Bernard M. Baruch College. The fault lies largely with the faculty. The fault is not peculiar to lecturers or full professors. All of the faculty must share in the blame.

Many people, students, administrators and faculty have occasionally discussed in and around themselves the roots of the very unhealthy atmosphere of complacency, and indifference to the Bernard M. Baruch College. The fault lies largely with the faculty. The fault is not peculiar to lecturers or full professors. All of the faculty must share in the blame.

In one of the most controversial elections, Neil Bergman defeated Glenn Davis for the position of Vice President of Community Affairs by a margin of 171 votes. They received 384 and 213 votes respectively. After hearing the results, Mr. Bergman said, "I’d like to thank those who invested their trust in me. I know that it’s significant that I ran a campaign for the programs I promised." Mr. Davis was not re-elected as Legislative Secretary for the Legislative Conference camps because most faculty members will realize "the undesirability of split bargaining," hopes that the results of the election will be a victory of the employer and the employees. STEWART KARLSKY
DOROTHEA HAMEL
To Dr. Weaver

For the past several weeks we have tried to contact our new president, Dr. Weaver. We have made several attempts to ask him about the many problems that have arisen on campus.

To date, we have not been able to reach the president. As a result, we are writing to this public request for an interview. The purpose of this letter is simply to express our questions and concerns about the current state of our campus.

The articles you have written about the University have raised many issues that we believe need to be addressed. We are concerned about the lack of attention being given to these problems, and we urge you to take the time to meet with us and discuss these matters further.

Thank you for your time and consideration. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely yours,

Election

One of the most important parts of yesterday's election was the new Student Council Constitution. The Constitution had been written by the Constitutional Revisions Committee under the chairmanship of David Tague. The voting was on the basis of a "Yes" or "No" vote on each of the nine articles. All articles were approved by an average vote of 380 in favor and 97 against. The new constitution will become effective February 1, 1969.

The Student Council Executive elections marked the first time in Baruch history that voting booths were used in place of paper ballots. Although paper ballots were available for those who desired them and to alleviate any backlog that might have developed at the booths when students were trying to get to class, the majority of students voting did use the machines. However (1308 versus 1304).

The polls were opened at 9:00 a.m. and closed at 12:05 p.m. After tallying the votes and cross-checking the results, the election officials, Kathy Gabriel, Sanford Goldstein, and Richard Baekofen, announced the winners at 4:50 p.m.

It's What's Happening

By Neil Bergman

... It's here, we've waited three years. It's Jack Mandel's Senior Beer Blast. With booze, girls and of course, Jack Mandel himself. Tickets are going fast. You'd better hurry. It will be held on Dec. 19th 2:30 to 4:30 at the George Washington Hotel. It seems that two faculty members have been denied tenure because they voted against their department chairman. Will there now be a shake up in I.F.G.? Why is it that a worthwhile play such as "We Bombed In New Haven", is closing when "Hello Dolly," worthless by comparison, remains open?
