Parents Day Sunday Deemed As Successful

On Sunday, December 16, 1969, the annual Parents Day activities were held at the University. The day began with a special convocation in the auditorium and ended with a concert in the gymnasium. The day was dedicated to the memory of late Dean Grape. The convocation was attended by 2,000 people, including the university's student council and faculty. The concert featured music by the university's symphony orchestra and the university's marching band. The day was a success, and the University received praise for its efforts.

Baruch Turned On at Drug Symposium

By Vic Breveno and Wendy Drucker

At the New York Public Library, Baruch College students gathered last night for a Symposium on Drug Rehabilitation. Among the speakers were Mr. Luis Santana, Mr. Edward Gallego, and Dr. Bryan. The symposium was sponsored by the Graduate Student Government of Baruch College and by the American College Health Association. The meeting was led by the administration of Baruch College and by various community organizations.

The symposium was divided into two parts. The first part was devoted to presentations by the speakers, while the second part was a question and answer session. The speakers talked about their personal experiences with drug addiction and the different methods that have been used to help them recover. The audience was also able to ask questions and discuss the issues with the speakers.

Mr. Santana, who is 21 years old, related his personal experience with drug addiction. He started smoking pot at 13 and 2, and later went through a whole process of addiction and finally became addicted to heroin.

Mr. Gallego, who is 24 years old, also shared his story. He started smoking pot at 13 and was later addicted to heroin. He was forced to quit due to the negative effects of the drug on his body.

Dr. Bryan, a specialist in drug rehabilitation, discussed the different methods that are currently being used to help people overcome drug addiction. He also talked about the importance of education and prevention in the fight against drug addiction.

The second part of the symposium was a question and answer session. The audience was able to ask questions and discuss the issues with the speakers.

The symposium was a success and it raised awareness about the issue of drug addiction. It also provided an opportunity for people to ask questions and discuss the issues with the speakers.

Interview...

Magazine journalism there is a greater opportunity for journalistic freedom. When you went to Russia, where they are much against SOVRA, is this true today?

G: Well, I don't go to Russia. Remember, I have to go to our third world war, I have been read up on the US Army war and have rules to keep it in line for the people. I have had no dealings with the Soviet Union.

What has happened is that the rules of the military in America are different than in the Soviet Union and the military in the Soviet Union is controlled by the army. The army is the service to the nation, the army controls the people. I think that anything is a threat to the United States.

T: Do you think that there is such a thing as perception, if so, when do you think about the future?

G: Well, you can't say a whole lot about the military because you have to deal with the people on the ground. As you know, I am concerned with the people on the ground. It's a very subjective concept. It is highly beyond some time. With the United States, we have had no dealings with the Soviet Union and the Soviet Union is controlled by the army. The army is the service to the nation, the army controls the people. I think that anything is a threat to the United States.
